CITY SOLICITOR O'SULLIVAN RESIGNS

RESIGNATION WAS IN MARCH 20

Could Not Agree With His Honor's Veto of 1923 Salary Ordinance

New Appointee Well Known Attorney and Son-in-Law of Mayor Donovan

Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan, city solicitor since the inauguration of Mayor John J. Donovan, today resigned his office and Patrick J. Reynolds, son-in-law of the mayor, has been appointed to succeed him and will qualify for the position next Monday.

Mr. O'Sullivan's resignation was tendered to the mayor on March 20, to become effective on April 1, but more than a month has elapsed since the date it was to have become operative, because he could not agree with the mayor's message to the city council on March 19, which accompanied his veto of the 1923 salary ordinance, calling among other things for an increase of $200 for the solicitor, is given by Mr. O'Sullivan as his reason for asking for the acceptance of his resignation.

Mr. O'Sullivan requested a salary increase of $1500 and although he was granted $200, it came only after the city council had over-ruled the mayor's veto.

His letter of resignation follows:

Hon. John J. Donovan,

Mayor of Lowell.

Dear Mr. Mayor: Agreeably to you, I ask that my resignation as city solicitor, tendered on March 20, 1923, to take effect April 1, 1923 and presented because I believed I was not in complete accord with your message of March 19, accompanying your veto of ordinance establishing the salaries of administrative officers of the city of Lowell for the year 1923, announced at that time, be made effective today.

At your urgent request I have remained until the present time, when the acceptance of my resignation and the immediate appointment of my successor is mutually agreeable.

I wish at this time to express to you my deep sense of appreciation of the

$150,000 INVOLVED IN REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS MADE PUBLIC HERE TODAY

Property transfers totalling approximately $150,000 were reported today by Lowell real estate dealers.

In reporting the sale of the J. J. Sheehan property in Central, Mill and Richmond streets and the transfer of a four-tenement block in Grand street to Lawrence men, Edward J. Smith ran his week's gross sales to nearly a quarter of a million dollars, which embraces the $20,000 sale of the Demers property a few days ago.

From the office of E. Gaston Campbell came the announcement that today he sold to Ambrose Vigant, well known marketman, all of the store and tenement property at 650-660 Merrimack street and 21-23 Cabot street for a price in the neighborhood of $40,000.

The sale of the J. J. Sheehan property through the office of Mr. Smith, included the transfer of 17 tenements and four stores to Max Brown of Lawrence at a reported price of $50,000; two six-tenement blocks in Mill and Richmond streets to Louis Marshall of Lawrence, for $17,500 and a three-tenement block at 11 Richmond street to Marshall for $5500. The four-tenement block at 158-160 Grand street, owned by John Bourke was purchased by H. Kaplan for a sum said to be in the vicinity of $8000.

The above sales, with the $20,000 Demers estate transfer, give Mr. Smith a record amount of business for the week and comprise one of the biggest real estate turnovers in recent months. The Merrimack and Cabot street properties sold by Miss Anna Tasker to Ambrose Vigant through the office of E. Gaston Campbell will result in extensive improvements and alterations and the ultimate establishment there of a large and modern market. More than 5770 square feet of land changed hands with the sale of the buildings. This property has been in the James Tower family for nearly a century and today's sale is the first transfer from the estate for 90 years.

GREAT CROWD AT BIG FIGHT

Record Gathering in New Yankee Stadium for Heavyweight Battles

Series of Eliminations to Determine Logical Contender for Dempsey's Title

NEW YORK, May 12. (By the Associated Press.) Virtually all the available heavyweights of the world, who are active contenders for Jack Dempsey's title, will meet in the Yankee Stadium today in a series of elimination contests that promise to provide some pugilistic sensations.

At least one world's record is expected to be hung up today. While the fighters may not furnish any records, the stadium affair in itself is expected to provide a top mark in sportsman's donations to charity. For the proceeds of the tournament of big men are to go to the purchase of milk to be distributed free to the poor children of New York.

The card, under Promoter Tex Rickard's management, is to be under the auspices of the Free Milk Fund of the mayor's committee of women.

Seats in the Yankee's bright new field, now transformed into a gladiatorial arena, will accommodate 70,000. If they are filled the receipts will total $450,000, admission fees running from $1 to $20. Early indications pointed to a full house.

Taken by and large, the card displays good waves in the big men's division of the pugilistic game. It follows:

Louis Angel, of the Argentine Republic, vs. Jack McAuliffe II, of Detroit, 15 rounds.

Al Reich, New York City, vs. Jim Herman, Omaha, six rounds.

Joe McEann, New Jersey, vs. Harry Drake, of England, four rounds.

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF POLLS LISTED

The work of listing male and female residents of this city, who are 20 years of age or over, has been completed and today the members of the listing board issued a statement to the effect that the number of polls listed this year exceeds that of last year by 319. The reason for the increase, it is said, is due to the fact that a great many young men and women have this year attained their twentieth birthday, and also that some polls, which heretofore had never been listed, particularly in Ward 2, were taken up this year by the police officers, who did the work.

Ward two leads the city with an increase of 341 over last year's figures, while next in line is Ward 8 with an increase of 711. The largest ward in the city as far as the number of polls is concerned, is Ward 6 with a total this year of 11,315, while the smallest is Ward 1, with 6,000.

Wards	1922	1923
1	6,000	6,000
2	6,257	6,598
3	4,935	5,254
4	5,662	5,971
5	4,254	4,573
6	10,585	11,315
7	6,585	6,896
8	8,777	9,488
9	6,477	6,796
TOTALS	61,602	64,921

These figures, however, may be somewhat after the assessors have been given the list, for it is believed that some polls were duplicated and that the names of deceased persons may have been listed.

AND STILL ANOTHER BIG SALE REPORTED

One of the oldest parcels of real estate in the up-town district, the 12 1/2 building located at 650-660 Merrimack street, owned by Mrs. Anna Tasker, has been sold to Ambrose Vigant, the well known market man. The property consists of a large warehouse containing four stores and several tenements as well as a 1 1/2 acre lot.

The sale was effected through the office of E. Gaston Campbell and the price said to be in the vicinity of $40,000. Mr. Vigant plans to convert the building and it is his intention to make his business, which is now located at the corner of Merrimack and State streets, to his new place.

Auditorium Doors Opened at 10 O'Clock This Morning For Fourth and Last Day of Splendid Exposition—Bungalow to Be Sold at Auction Tonight—Yesterday's Baby Show an Unqualified Success—Over 300 Babies Registered—Many Prizes Awarded

With its unqualified success already assured to a degree far beyond the fondest hopes of its sponsors, the Lowell Home Beautiful Exposition has reached its fourth and final day at the Memorial Auditorium. The exposition doors were opened at 10 o'clock this forenoon and will not close until 11 o'clock tonight.

When a check-up of tickets has been made it is expected the attendance for the four days will reach the unprecedented local figure of 60,000.

Tonight the auctioning of the attractive bungalow, which has been the outstanding feature of the many splendid exhibits, will be the last feature of the exposition.

Visitors this forenoon gave a clear idea of the size of the crowds that will flock to the Auditorium before nightfall and as large as were yesterday's throngs while the baby show and public wedding were in progress, today's patronage is expected to establish new records.

A crowd which rivaled in size that which recently thronged the streets of London to watch the wedding party of the Duke of York and Lady Louise-Lyon, last night packed itself within the halls and corridors of the Lowell Memorial Auditorium to witness the nuptials of two young people from Manchester, Mr. William A. Holland and Miss Agnes M. Anderson, whose public marriage was the crowning feature of the exposition.

It may stand forever as Lowell's biggest wedding, for a conservative estimate of the crowd placed it at 5000.

CELEBRATE MOTHER'S DAY IN SPIRIT

By N. E. A. Service
PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Observe Mother's Day, in spirit, not in mere ostentation. This is the plea being made by the Mother's Day International association.

ANNA JARVIS, FOUNDER OF MOTHER'S DAY

As the whole world prepares to celebrate the beautiful new international holiday.

Charges of profiteering by florists seeking to capitalize Mother's Day have been met with a response that doing something for mother's joy, not mere flower wearing, is the object. The association is opposed to paying outrageous prices for white carnations, according to its president, Anna Jarvis, founder of Mother's Day.

"There is only one thing important this day of days," says Miss Jarvis. "That is to remember mother."

"Go home and see her if you are away in another town. Take her some joy. If you can't do that, write her a special delivery letter or telegram to reach her Mother's Day."

"That is what Mother's Day means—remembrance of mother."

Meanwhile, observance has spread to all parts of Europe and to Japan, China, Africa and Palestine.

ECRU LACE

Ecrú lace over black satin is one of the favorite combinations this season.

WATCH THE SLEEVES

If there is a sleeve, watch it. It is doing many peculiar things this season.

Take, for instance, the one of the dress illustrated. It is loose and fastened with a single button so that the elbow and arm can be seen either in motion or at a standstill.

This is just one variation of the loose, flowing sleeve. There are many other sleeves that seem to be a mere graceful flutter on the arm.

The bell sleeve, the somewhat subdued Mandarin sleeve, the monk's sleeve and the slit sleeves of all varieties have come to help us through the hot weather months.

FEMALE ROLES IN "THE WITCHING HOUR"

"The Witching Hour" by Auguste Thomas, which is to be produced by the local council, Knights of Columbus on May 21 grew out of the great public interest in telepathy. Now a four-act drama, it was originally a one-act play, being built-up from time to time by the author.

Clay Whipple, a young architect accidentally murders a man because of a hereditary aversion and fright of a certain cat's eye scarf pin. As the author says "To merely report the murder and describe the prisoner is not enough, the audience must see the occurrence and must know the individual who is interested in him; and know him in a way that will make them like him. That his mother loves him is not sufficient. To make the interest deeper it is best to give him a sweetheart, who shall also suffer through his trouble; and by our sympathy for her give us an additional emotional stir."

"Again, every force in the theatre is unconquered until it is personified; therefore, we must carry through the play a representative of that civil law that is opposed to our boy. This representative is our prosecuting attorney. As an officer of the law his opposition to a criminal is logical; enough; but it is stronger when the personal equation also comes into play; this rule invites us to make our exponent of civil law not only a prosecuting attorney but a rival for the boy's sweetheart."

Since it was the purpose of the author to wind a story about the then current belief in telepathy and hypnosis, both are dominating factors in the play.

Female roles are played by Mrs. Alice Dacey Delmore, who plays Mrs. Alice Campbell, sister to Jack Brookfield, sporting man and gambler, and in whose home the plot of the story is laid, and by Miss Mary Casey, who plays Miss Viola Campbell, sweetheart of Clay Whipple.

Mrs. Delmore is well known in local musical and dramatic circles, having most recently appeared in the Girls City club presentation. Miss Casey, now attending school in Boston, is a protégée of Miss Mary Joyce of the high school under whom she starred in one of the annual high school plays. As the old saying goes, "The world loves a lover." The audience will more than love Miss Casey in her new role. Miss Helen Newman, known prominently as Mrs. Helen Whipple, mother of Clay.

LOWELL PEOPLE AND CHURCHES TO JOIN IN OBSERVANCE OF MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY

Tomorrow will be nationally observed as Mother's Day and it has become a custom to wear a flower in her honor or remembrance—a red one if she is living, and a white one if she is dead.

The day is not restricted to individual observance, however, for many churches will devote a portion of the morning service, at least, to mothers and in a number of instances locally, especially prepared programs have been arranged.

Through all ages a mother's love has been the world's most priceless jewel. Through days of happiness and adversity it has overruled all else beside. It has come into glorious reality with the first quickly drawn breath of a new born babe and has glowed like a great, all-consuming fire until earthly cares have been put aside. It is matchless in its intensity, unswerving in its loyalty, sacrificial to the point of death itself and has and always will be the beaconlight for all mankind.

Mother never has been false to the faith and adoration of a child and no word in any language or tongue is so symbolic of those things for which the Christ came into the world and left it again that all men might be free.

Tomorrow the world kneels in adoration and humbly tries to recompense for some of the things a mother's love has wrought—a love which is matchless, unabating and everlasting.

Ham Canapes

Cut slices of bread one-fourth inch thick. Cut them with cutter into rounds. Toast slightly and spread with a mixture of butter and mustard, called mustard butter. To make this mustard butter, cream one-half cup butter and add to it one tablespoon mustard, and then, drop by drop, one teaspoon lemon juice. After each round is spread with the mustard butter, cover with a layer of finely chopped cooked ham.

To Achieve Grace Keep Away From the City and Imitate Nature

MISS AGNES KAIMAN RUSH, AND (INSET) IN ONE OF HER PRESCRIBED DANCING POSES.

By A. H. FREDERICK
N. E. A. Service Writer
SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—If you would be graceful, leave the city. For the city is the greatest enemy of feminine form and charm.

"This is the warping and charge issued by Miss Agnes Kaiman Rush, teacher of artistic dancing and lecturer on gracefulness for women.

"Woman's grace lies in curves," says Miss Rush. "But the modern city is all straight lines, sharp angles and squareness."

"Being imitative, our tendency is to follow that which we see most of the city. Unknowingly we more and more pattern ourselves upon its plan of ungraceful lines and angles.

"American women of the pioneer days lived right with nature. It was from their surroundings that they acquired their poise, and naturally it was graceful, patterned as it was upon curving grasses, gently rounded trees, the light movement of the butterfly.

"It is to such models as these that we must look for salvation from ungracefulness."

"But merely to bend like a tree is not enough. A woman must bend like a tree because, like a tree, she is a thing of curves, and curves bend naturally."

Miss Rush cites as examples of exercises which will restore grace, the swaying tree, the poppy moving in the breeze, the caterpillar slowly creeping upward, the water lily floating upon the ripples of a pond.

She explains them as follows:

Poppy Exercise

Stand in an erect but relaxed (not strained) position, with heels together and feet placed naturally. Then think of your head as a heavy poppy head and drop it forward slowly until the chin touches the chest. Now the head starts to blow gently, and sways the head toward the right, while the neck does not turn, and so on around a complete circle. The body follows, as the poppy stem follows, only so much as necessary to allow a graceful swaying of the head. This should be done six times and then repeated with head in the opposite direction.

Still thinking of the poppy, imagine the wind blowing more strongly, until it has swayed the head and part of the stem, the rest of the stem being represented by the empire waist line. Then sway as before.

Now the wind is blowing strongly from a point in back of you. It blows you forward at the waist, the head hangs naturally and loosely as nearly straight down as possible, the arms fall forward limply. For this exercise the feet must be about a foot apart. Then repeat the rotary motion, shifting

Water Lily Exercise

Think of yourself as in a pond, your arms out in a curve which will bring the hands almost to level of shoulders. Then, as a ripple reaches you, you are gently lifted (rising slowly on toes) and your arms are floated upward several inches, slowly and sinuously. Now the water recedes and you sink down until knees are well bent. At the same time your arms float lower.

If you want to try these exercises to music, Miss Rush suggests the following:

"For the poppy exercise, 'Shepherd's Hey' for the caterpillar exercise, McDowell's 'To a Wild Rose.' The swaying willow, Schumann's 'Träumerei.' The water lily, Brahms's Opus 29, No. 1 waltz."

RED HATS

Red hats are very popular for wear with the red shoes that also are so popular. They are shown in chiffon and georgette with soft crowns and little trimming.

BREAKFAST COATS

Very lovely and cool looking breakfast coats are made of georgette crepe trimmed with puffings of the material. One of apricot color has a girle of jade green.

"You Can Easily Remove and Prevent Blackheads," Says Rubenstein in Beauty Contest

By MME. RUBENSTEIN, Beauty Expert
International Beauty Expert
(Copyright, 1923, The Lowell Sun)
In every country where I am called upon to help women solve the riddle of good looks, I come across different skin conditions, but there is one trouble that persists seemingly in spite of all varieties of climate and conditions. I refer to blackheads.

Nine out of every ten women are vexed by these horrid little "black pests" as the French call them, that not only make the skin dull and muddy looking but often lead to the dreaded pimples and spots called acne.

A blackhead is a tiny dust particle that embeds itself in the skin, held there by the natural secretion of the skin. The pores are unable to rid themselves of these irritants and out a call for help to the little juice-secreting glands which respond by rushing their moisture to the affected parts. If the pores are still unable to dislodge the impure dust particles the secretions overflow onto the skin's surface and all the while the pores are stretching and losing their power to close.

That is why we seldom see blackheads without "shin" and enlarged pores.

The chief thing to be considered is how to purify the skin, reduce the pores to normal and regulate the secretions.

The opening and closing of the pores properly is the keynote of correction. To eradicate blackheads you must penetrate inside the pore where the black speck has made itself at home and as the blackhead becomes smaller and weaker through treatment close the pore so that no fresh invasion of dust particles and microbes can upset the skin.

Strong soaps are injurious because they dry the surface, thus causing wrinkles and lines without reaching the inner cells. I advise a special wash of gritty texture for the thick sluggish skin and a softer paste of equally cleansing strength for the thinner and more delicate skin. When the skin is thus cleansed, any preparation which follows will be unimpeded in its action.

In the daytime use as stringent after washing and use this at intervals during the day in preference to both water and cleansing cream. At night after washing and before putting on an emollient, put a small quantity of stimulating nourishing cream on cotton that has been soaked in hot water and wring dry, then rub the skin with this until your face flushes. This will help you immeasurably as nothing overcomes blackheads as increased functioning of a skin that has become sluggish owing to their presence.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS FOR MAY DISHES

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH
Of Columbia University
May has always been associated in one's mind with May-poles, dancing, baskets of flowers and a general rosy time. And always where there is fun there is food.

One of the old English dishes was junket, or milk thickened with rennet. Rennet comes in tablet form, and one tablet crushed and partially dissolved in cold water will "set" one quart of milk. We have variations of this, by serving fruit with it, or freezing it. The one quart of junket and one cup of cream makes an ice cream that is like that made with all cream. This is the way many a cook makes a rich ice cream, to all being as satisfactory as if much cream had been used. And of course it is much cheaper.

Undoubtedly the Mother's Day idea is taken from the old custom of having a "Mothering Sunday," a day on which young couples went home to mother, and got good advice. Veal was the meat served, and usually a fancy pudding.

May is the month when green vegetables begin to appear, not in the northern places, but in the middle and southern parts. I was much interested to read the other day, in an old English cook book dated 1734, of a lot of ways in which green vegetables were cooked when they began to appear.

"To boil garden things green."

"You must be sure the water boils when you put in your peas, greens, French beans or asparagus; when they are in, make it boil very fast again; you need not cover them, but watch them and may be assured they are cooked enough when they begin to sink to the bottom, provided they have boiled all the time. Take them out as soon as they sink, or they immediately change color."

This may be a help, and it is certainly true. Most people overlook green vegetables; they always change color when cooked for a longer time than needed.

I have found that soaking them in very cold water, and then putting them in rapidly boiling water made for a much more attractive looking vegetable.

The French people usually cook an onion with peas, and add a large amount of sweet butter. Some think that two or three sprigs of fresh mint added is a great improvement.

A little sugar is always good in peas, and a great improvement to the flavor of green corn.

BOILING CORNED BEEF

When you are boiling corned beef you can improve the flavor greatly if you will add a pinch of sugar, a few cloves, a small onion and a few bay leaves.

COFFEE SPOTS

If coffee or tea is spilled on your table linen, pour boiling water over the stains repeatedly and place on the grass in the sun.

1 cup milk,
2 tablespoons butter,
Pinch of salt,
2 tablespoons corn syrup,
1 ounce bitter chocolate cut in small pieces.
Mix ingredients and cook to the soft ball stage. Remove kettle from fire and allow to cool 15 minutes. Add one teaspoon vanilla and beat until it is creamy and thick. Add one-half cup of nut meats and spread out in buttered pan one inch thick. Cut into one inch squares. This candy will keep moist in all covered vegetable dish. If you find it too firm it is because you have sash of black velvet trim an ex-cooked it too long and you can remove frills of white taffeta.

Blouses of Roman striped cotton materials are popular with the summer cotton skirts. Printed cotton crepes and even printed corduroys are also shown.

Feminist Traveler Sees Future Art and Learning Coming From the Orient

MILDRED TAYLOR

By MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, May 12.—We have borrowed the kimono from the Japanese, the turban from India, and jewels and embroideries from China, but outside of these superficial acquisitions, what do most of us really know about our oriental slaves?

Mildred Taylor, writer, organizer, lecturer and feminist, is convinced that we know little—that we have never even penetrated the inner lives of these mysterious ladies on the other side of the earth.

"Most of us have only two pictures of the oriental woman," she states, "one that of a downtrodden slave of a domineering husband, the other that of a jeweled seductress. Of the real woman we are ignorant. I believe she has much to give us."

So Miss Taylor expects to spend several years in the Orient, getting first-hand information about the women of that land.

and children of China, Japan and India, which she will later put in book form.

Well, learn more, she continued. "The present vogue for oriental costumes, jewelry and home decorations is only the prelude to a much more far-reaching acquaintance with oriental art, philosophy and the science of living. 'Go East,' instead of 'Go West,' will be the cry.

"In our complex civilization on we have never learned to relax or to rest. The oriental woman, on the other hand, has much need for the calm and peace of mind which the oriental woman has attained.

"Before we can learn what she has to give us we must understand the oriental and do away with the prejudices based on ignorance and misapprehension that are the basis to hand information about the women of that land."

Plans to Bring Relief in Sugar Situation

WASHINGTON, May 12.—In addition to the government's anti-trust suit against the alleged New York sugar combine, it was stated at the White House yesterday, the administration has under consideration other measures designed to cope with the sugar situation. While details were withheld, it was said that officials believed the steps contemplated would bring relief from high prices.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"Thank You, Doctor," the Crook Farce To Be Presented as Headliner This Coming Week

The Four Dion Sisters—real Lowell girls and real sisters, too—will make their professional debut on the stage of the B. F. Keith theatre tomorrow, heading a big show, which Manager Ben E. Pickett has brought together for the day. The sisters are very well known through their connections with amateur theatricals and their singing is unusually good. Their act will without question attract many friends to the theatre for the day. The remainder of the bill will hold many good things, including Polly & Fox in their refined singing act. Worth a

Wynn, funmakers; Force & Williams, songs and comedy; Eddie Jerome and company, in music and fun; Wilson & Peters, in a pot-pourri and Josephine Golden, singer.

The coming week's bill will be featured by "Thank You, Doctor," which is a farce featuring Eleanor Hicks and Chester Chase. Like all successful farces, this one moves with great speed. This particular farce is a crook farce. The crook in the case is a young woman who becomes assistant to an innocent doctor. He believes that she is following his profession. Bright dialog adds to the speed of the production and all in all it will rate up as one of the most attractive offerings of the season.

Tom Smith, who is rated as an artist, a gentleman and a scholar, assisted by Harry Newman will prove a most canny side comedian also. From the minute he steps on the stage the audience will be fully aware that plenty of fun is brewing. The laughter which will greet the two men will be, without doubt, spontaneous, for much that they do and say will be unusual and unexpected.

A pair of musical comedy stars are Stella Tracey and Carl McBride, who will purvey "Bits of Exclusiveness." Miss Tracey is a dainty bit of femininity and Mr. McBride is a dancer who executes with much grace. The act will be one of the very great favorites of the week.

Helen Moretti is called "The Little Girl with the Big Voice." Her vocal and physical attributes are all out of proportion. Her voice is not only big but it is of exceptional quality and it possesses an unusual register.

Arch Stanley is a monopedee—in other words, he has but one foot. He is a pleasant chap who radiates optimism and who, in the course of his act, he steps on the stage the audience will give "Bits of Vaudeville" and Miss and William Hunter are equilibrist who will offer a few genuine thrills.

THE STRAND THEATRE

Excellent Program Next Week, Beginning With Monday Matinee—New Pictures and Vaudeville Sunday

A program of extraordinary merit is scheduled for presentation at The Strand for the coming week. For the first three days of the week, starting with Monday matinee, the big Chicago Daily News prize story, "Broken Chains," with Colleen Moore, Claire

Windsor and others of screen note, will head the bill and the second feature will be Dustin Farnum in "The Buster." For the week-end, beginning with Thursday matinee, Tom Mix in "Arabia," and the famous Oscar Wilde story, "A Woman of No Importance," will be presented. The latter program will have for the third feature an Al St. John comedy entitled "Young and Dumb."

The management has arranged an excellent program for Sunday also. Besides an entire change of pictures there will be five acts of high class vaudeville. Weekly and musical numbers by the Strand organ, and written especially for the screen by Winifred Kimball, winner in the Chicago Daily News story contest of recent date. Writers of national repute were among the contestants. It's the story of the regeneration of an eastern youth who proves a coward when danger confronts him at his Long Island home. To escape the disgrace attending his actions in his home surroundings, he flies himself to his father's ranch in the west and there meets and falls in love with a young woman, the wife of a brutal woodsman of that district who is chained up in his cabin. The youth challenges the woman's cause and when they are found together by the husband he treats the youth to a severe beating. The latter comes back again and engages in another hand-to-hand fight, the most exciting ever filmed, and in which youth triumphs. Miss Colleen Moore, and Miss Claire Windsor are seen in the stellar female roles, while Malcolm McGregor and Ernest Torrence are portraying the male roles. The photography and all other features of this super-production are in keeping with the high standard of story itself. If you are anxious to see a real photoplay containing all of the entertaining elements of a high grade picture, then don't miss "Broken Chains." Remember, it's for three days only.

The Dustin Farnum picture, "The Buster," is another of those lively, vigorous pictureizations for which this particular star is noted. It has action galore and a delightful story in which Mr. Farnum again reflects his exceptional powers and talent as a screen star.

Tom Mix—the mere name means so much to the average picture fan—will be seen in his newest creation of action entitled "Arabia." No doubt, to say that this offering has all of the pleasing characteristics of a Mix production, with the star at his best. It's to be shown during the week-end, starting Thursday.

Oscar Wilde's famous story, "A Woman of No Importance," is a dramatic creation of genuine merit. The story is human, the character natural and the developments and final climax intense. It's interesting. It's a superior-grade story produced in a superior way.

The Al St. John comedy "Young and Dumb" has some new phases of humor-making that will give pleasing variety to the triple-feature program. Added to these features there will be five usual weekly and musical numbers by the Strand organ, and enjoying picture programs is not to be equalled in the state. You will say so during the coming summer months. A special ventilating system makes it possible to keep the temperature at normal at all times.

SUNDAY AT THE STRAND

The Sunday schedule for presentation at The Strand should have a strong appeal to all lovers of the better class of entertainment. There will be an entire change of pictures, headed by the great romantic comedy, "Too Much Business." The Sunday offering will have five acts of high class entertainment that will contribute to one of the best offerings of the season. No better place to enjoy a Sunday afternoon or evening than at The Strand, where genuine comfort and a good program always prevails.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Triple-Feature Program With "Hunting Big Game in Africa" as Underlined Attraction for First Part of Week.

A triple-feature program of unusual merit has been booked by the Merrimack Square theatre management for presentation at the popular, large street amusement house for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The undoubted attractions will be H. A. Simon's "Hunting Big Game in Africa," perhaps the most costly and easily the most thrilling and animal picture ever filmed, Viola Dana in "The $5.00 Baby," one of the year's most entertaining and

The Looker-on In Lowell

People are probably not generally acquainted with the fact that Collin Mackenzie, custodian of the Memorial Auditorium, gets the autograph of every notable personage appearing there in a book kept especially for that purpose. Signatures are dated and already many pages of the big book are filled with names.

The book in years to come will be very valuable. Even now it would be treasured by autograph collectors and those interested in reading character by handwriting. As one looks over the names, he is struck with the wide variety of style. The book seems to prove also that handwriting does reveal personality, because in many of the signatures the outstanding characteristics of the writers may be discerned. There are some neat as if printed, others scrawny, obscure, small, fine, large, pretty and indistinguishable.

A few of the residences or addresses given are: Montreal and Toronto, Canada; San Francisco, Washington, D. C., Mississippi, Athens, Tipperary, Ireland, New York, Chicago, France, Halifax, North Carolina, Los Angeles, Porto Rico.

Among the first signatures in the book is that of Pierre Montoux, of the Boston Symphony orchestra. His style is scrawly, hurried, though clear and would seem to indicate a nervous temperament. The name is not written on the line but through two lines and upwards on the page.

Perhaps a bad pen contributed to the very crude signature of Irene Castle, but surely none would suspect the writer to be of the type of Mrs. Castle. The style is upright, but very crude, with many of the letters not joined.

One would think that a trained mind would have a trained hand and that is so in the case of E. M. Newman, noted locally by "Newman's Travels." His signature is simple, upright and seems to indicate a careful, explicit attitude.

Rev. William J. Flinn of the Paulist Choristers uses the slanting, news-writer style, which would indicate that he writes much and fluently.

Paderewski, signs I. J. Paderewski, joining the "J" and the "P" and slanting to the right with the letters jammed together. His signature really looks more like that of a business man than of a world-renowned pianist. For an artist who can so delicately touch the keys, one would suppose that his sign manual would be artistic, but it isn't.

Burton Holmes, lecturer, who makes his living by making himself understood, also writes his name that it might be understood, in a large, scraggly way.

Determination and sternness are pictured in the official-looking, large and run-in autograph of S. M. Brewster, major general of the U. S. Army.

Janne Marsson, world-wide news and magazine writer, has developed the slanting news-writer style to perfection and uses it in his signature. It is neat and yet, as with everything he writes by hand, it was probably written hurriedly.

Fritz Kreisler's signature is almost indistinguishable, indicating a very nervous character. It seems as though he just scratched it on the book with one tremble of his hand. His autograph surely would not indicate the wonderful control he has of his hand and arm for playing the violin.

Collis O'More's autograph is very plain and clear, indicating the plain, unassuming individual that he is. Paul Whiteman writes heavily, but with a careless, crude signature, with a slightly backward slant in places.

Rudolph Valentino's autograph looks like the product of a writing school, pretty and light, large yet somewhat obscure. His wife's signature is signed immediately under his and is exactly opposite to her husband's, in bold, being very small, yet is also obscure, however, and would hardly be legible except to one who would recognize the outline.

Axlin's determination, domination and will of a military officer is superbly illustrated in the autograph of Gen. John J. Pershing, who took five lines to write his name and the accompanying scroll beneath it. His signature is large, heavy and clear, and contrary to that of lesser military officers is not burdened with his official rank.

The slow, explicit, careful character of Stephen Leacock is indicated by his autograph, which is not written in ordinary style, but like newspaper type, very large and clear. If the letters were raised, a blind person could read it.

The exceedingly temperamental character of Rachmaninoff and his almost superhuman attention to details and minute effects, are displayed in his signature, which is so small and lined that it looks like a series of dots toward the latter part of his name.

James J. Davis, secretary of labor, who is an opponent of child labor, not only wrote his signature, but the following underneath it: "The child in the hand of God—recording on the universal pages of time the history of the human race." One would know that he was interested in his subject when he could sign his name without referring to it.

The Brackliff sisters, dancers elite, who entertained at the recent Lowell Guild ball, have autographs fit for dancing-attended baseball players. Hertha Brackliff wrote a very large, heavy scroll. An ordinary pen could not stand much use from her.

Francesca, her sister, also writes a large hand, but not as heavy. Both signatures are very clear. Determination is pictured by both. It surely required unlimited determination and courage to learn the details of classic dancing as exhibited by these sisters in the Auditorium.

Donald MacMillan, another lecturer and adventurer, writes his name slowly and carefully so that each letter is easily distinguishable. He uses backhand style, with small, well-formed letters.

Following the style of many other musicians, Paul Tullaff signed his name in a large, scraggly manner. Werrenath uses a fine, light hand, with letters run closely together, but readable. He signed his name.

John McCormack wrote his autograph with a very light touch, slanting style and with small letters, except a large "C" in his last name. He gave his address as Athol, Ireland.

My City Pump Out Cellar? During the recent freshet, inquiries were made by a certain manufacturer, whose mill basement was flooded by river water as to whether any of the city departments could pump out the water. He got in touch with Chief Saunders of the fire department, suggesting that firemen might do it. Chief Saunders, it is understood, knew of no law to prevent such, but he thought it inadvisable for the fire department to set a precedent of pumping out cellars. In the case of any severe freshet, the department might be too hard pressed for assistance. Furthermore, fire department pumps are kept in readiness for use in case of fire. Damages might result from their common use.

The department should furnish pumps to pump out any cellar on request of the owner. In the case of industry disabled by flooded basements or engine rooms, it might be well for the city to pitch in and help.

The street department has pumps which could have been used during the last freshet to pump out mill basements, but for the fact that they were in use in regular work.

Baby Carriage Show Yesterday afternoon during the time when the baby show was being held at the city auditorium, there were scores of baby carriages lined up outside the building, thus creating a baby carriage show. It was certainly an unusual sight.

BIG "POISON PEN" PLOT DISCLOSED

Indictment of George Maxwell Expected to Lead to Others in New York

140 Wealthy Society People Alleged to Have Been Victimized by Clique

NEW YORK, May 12.—The grand jury which has indicted George Maxwell, president of the American Society of Composers, authors and publishers, for sending obscene missives through the mails, has evidence against eight other prominent members of a "poison pen" clique which is alleged to have victimized 140 wealthy society people here, in Philadelphia, Buffalo, Pittsburgh and other cities. District Attorney Banton today disclosed.

Eighty of the alleged victims already have testified before the grand jury which is still in session. Mr. Banton revealed that their statements had led to the uncovering of 147 of the poison pen letters and to the discovery that also well known families had been broken up, a man and a woman had died shortly after receiving particularly vicious missives and another woman had gone mad.

Maxwell's attorneys here announced that Maxwell, who is in Europe, had called a denial of the charges. Maxwell had received several of the obscene letters from the alleged clique, said the attorneys. He will hasten home to face his accusers.

Allan A. Ryan, the financier, whose wife was named in letters received and turned over to the district attorney, declared today she also would return from Europe and that he would prosecute the alleged writer of the letters if it took his entire fortune.

Among disclosures already made by Mr. Banton were that a band of anonymous letter writers had been preying upon members of the "400" in this and other cities since 1914, and that the victims included the late Charles Caruso, the Countess of Santa Palatia, who was the widow of John B. Stetson of Philadelphia, John Drew, the actor, and Albert Galatino, the banker. Divorce cases involving persons not named by the district attorney are now pending in the courts, he said.

The alleged poison pen clique's method, according to authorities, was to send letters to middle-aged women, endeavoring to entice them into affairs with members of the group. After several months, the writers, either because their methods failed or because they cooled on the intended victim, would send letters to the husbands, brothers or other male relatives of the women to whom they had written, looking their names in obscene and defamatory references to the names of the intended victims.

Members of the society which Maxwell headed say it is inconceivable that he could have been connected with such a plot. The letters Mr. Ryan turned over to the authorities, were received by Mrs. Ryan more than a month ago. All were typewritten and unsigned, but in the upper left corner of each were typed the name and addresses of several prominent bankers and clubmen of this city.

Scenes and Persons Figuring in War on Chinese Bandits

The Chinese government may use this Vickers-Vimy bombing plane to pursue the bandits who kidnapped tourists. The above detachment of American infantry may also take up the pursuit. The U. S. S. Huron is the flagship of our Asiatic fleet which may be called upon to aid in bringing the brigands to justice.

This shows the station at Tientsin, rail center of China. A detachment of American troops is lined up, just as they soon may be lined up to start in pursuit of bandits who kidnapped Americans. The train shown here is the same sort in which the kidnapped tourists were riding.

Free State to Deliver O'Brien to British

DEUBLIN, May 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Kevin O'Higgins, Irish Free State secretary of home affairs, stated to the press today that he would deliver to the British, Art O'Brien and all other persons deported from England to Ireland when they were demanded. The secretary said he considered the agreement under which the prisoners were obtained from England included compliance with successful habeas corpus motions. A writ of habeas corpus was recently obtained in England for O'Brien.

SHOT FIRED, BOY FELL PENNOCK BREAKS JINX IN FIRST START

Fake Murder Startles Class at Northeastern University—Witnesses Fail to Agree

BOSTON, May 12.—A professor of psychology at Northeastern university has given his students something to think about. Their class was disturbed by a clash between two fellow students, a shot was fired, one of the men fell and the other fled. Professor Milton J. Schlagenhauf called on the class to write reports of everything that had occurred. Out of 30 students all but three insisted they saw a revolver, some adding a flash, and some smoke. The student supposed to have fired actually held a banana in his hand. The shot was fired in the rear of the room, out of sight.

It was the same with reports of other details of the incident, which took only three minutes. Descriptions of dress varied widely, recollections of the scene were equally divergent. The student attempted to give the time exactly, saying he looked at his watch. He was an hour out of the way and he gave a date four days wrong.

Prof Schlagenhauf stated the incident as a test of observation after he had taken the class to a court-room where a witness stated positively he could describe everything that happened in a narrative that took three minutes.

He's Licked Everybody of His Size—But He's Mother's Boy

I'LL STILL BE A CHAMP TO MY MOTHER

Recited by BENNY LEONARD
Lightweight Champion of the World—

It isn't a cinch, this being champ,
And I mean it, honest I do—
If it was up to my mother and daddy
As a fighter, I'd now be through.

But you know how it is when you get that dough,
For myself—say I don't care;
But I've got a picture of mother and dad,
In a beautiful home somewhere

In a palace of peace the rest of their lives
With nothing to worry about.
When that dream comes true I want to tell you
That I'm ready to be knocked out.

And I know that altho the title will go
With its glory from me to another,
I'll tell you what—you can bet all you've got
I'll still be a champ to my mother.

HERMAN TIMBERG—

By N.E.A. Service
NEW YORK, May 12.—He'll still be the champ to his mother.

When Benny Leonard was a mere kid of 20 years he won the lightweight championship of the world, and in its wake trailed those tantalizing twins—fame and fortune. Men—big and little—sought him out, eager to shake his hand.

Through it all Benny kept his head. He's 26 now and still the champ. The homage a public puts on one suddenly elevated to Benny's position has broken many men and women. They couldn't stand the pace. Their heads would swell in the dank air of popular fame.

But not Benny. The power behind the champ is his mother, Benny's devotion to his family is well-known. It is one thing he will always talk about—his mother. She has been his closest friend. He's never too far away to telephone her—even from Los Angeles.

And tomorrow—Mother's Day—finds Benny closer to his mother than ever. A group of New York business men bound themselves together last year for the celebration of Mother's Day.

They invited Benny to join with them, and they never found a more eager candidate. Each one has contributed liberally to a fund. Buttons were made which would be appropriate. The sponsors wanted to eliminate the commercial aspect of the day. They liked flowers, but knew that some florists boosted Mother's Day merely because it meant thousands of dollars for them.

And so they chose buttons, which were to be distributed free to all who might care to wear. The champ is wearing one in his heart as well as in his lapel.

The poem recited by him on the stage has even more feeling behind it than the words show. He knows the public. He realizes that should some other boxer come along and take away his championship, he will still be the champ to his mother.

But when that time comes, Benny will lose his crown—but he will still be the champ to his mother.

comedy-dramas, and Buster Keaton, the "frozen-faced comedian," in "The Electric House."

"Hunting Big Game in Africa With Gun and Camera" is going to startle folks whose only visualization of wild creatures is of the zoo or menagerie. It has been playing in Boston the past few days at $1.50 prices and had an extended run at the Lyric theatre in New York where it commanded $2.00 prices.

The big game presented is from one-third to two-thirds larger than the captive animals in the menageries. Means have been found of placing many of the larger wild animals in cages-ups. Actual combats are shown, and each hunt is a thrilling continuity from the first tracking to the stoppage of the charging animal by Mr. Snow's rifle.

The story begins on the west coast of Africa, then South Africa is visited, native "kaffir" fashions and ceremonies are recorded, the Kimberly diamond fields are explored, and soon the grand safari starts via Mombasa towards the equator.

Old elephant trails constituted the only roads into the jungle. One of these led into the vast crater or bowl of an extinct volcano, where the party nearly lost their lives by an elephant stampede. Attacks on their camp by lions, leopards, hyenas and other prowlers were an almost nightly occurrence. When an ant army invaded the camp, the party were forced to emerge in 1922, with the most complete collection of museum specimens ever made and a series of pictures that for the first time portrayed the kingdom of beasts in matchless splendor and reality. This picture comes here after an engagement of three solid months in New York city, where it played to capacity audiences, averaging 20,000 a week.

Furthermore, the film is one of the most intelligently edited pictures ever shown. The subtitles are light enough to be entertaining and at the same time informative. They never throw away valuable information for a joke. Put on the other hand, they do not tell the whole story and so make the plain pictures only where ex-plan to pictures only where explanations are necessary.

Viola Dana never appeared in a more amusing role than she does in "The Five Dollar Baby." The new Metro picture which will be the second feature for the first part of the week. It is a screen version of Irvin S. Cobb's short story which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. An enthusiastic audience greeted its first showing.

Mr. Cobb's story is placed in New York's ghetto. It is a startlingly faithful reproduction of this famous quarter of the metropolis, and the characters which take part in it are all clear-cut and carefully drawn types.

Mrs. Dana appears in the role of a girl who has been reared from infancy by a Jewish pawnbroker, Uncle Ben. She is shown at two periods of her life. First she appears as a girl of thirteen, continually in mischief and always indulging in tomboy pranks. Later, after her return from boarding school, she is seen as a charming miss, with a vivacious personality.

NEW JEWEL THEATRE

"Forsaking All Others." Starring Colleen Moore and Cullen Landis. Attraction for Monday and Tuesday.

The Sunday show at the New Jewel theatre will introduce Robert Warwick in "Friday, the 13th," one of the most interesting and thrilling features ever made by the industry. Star and Monique Love in "The Trap," an intensely dramatic play. There will be the usual excellent comedy and the latest feature, "The International New York." A new five-act production with an all-star cast. The second episode of the popular "Fighting Back" series, an episode of "Blunder," and a Harold Lloyd comedy will round out the bill.

HALLO THEATRE

In its program for Monday and Tuesday of next week the Hallo theatre presents "Sparks of Flint." Another good attraction will be "Thrilling Phillips in 'Hurricane Girl.'" The supporting attraction will be "The International New York."

FINE TONIC FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

This Case In Lowell Proves That Building Up the Blood Will Strengthen the Nerves

If you want strong nerves you must make the effort yourself. You can help yourself by refusing to worry, by taking proper rest, sleep and vacations, by avoiding excesses and by taking out-of-door exercise. For medicine take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the non-alcoholic tonic.

Mrs. Lizzie Seible of No. 21 Sawtelle street, Lowell, Mass., considers Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a splendid tonic and used them for nervousness. "I had no ambition for my household duties," and used them for nervousness. "I had very irritable, was all tired out, and would wake up in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed. I had severe headaches which would get my nerves all unstrung. I lost flesh and color."

"Through a newspaper I learned of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after I had taken a couple of boxes I noticed my nerves were quieter and I could sleep well at night. I took four boxes at that time, and I have no hesitancy in recommending them for I know they helped me."

The blood can be built up so that it will increase the supply of needed elements to the wasted nerves and this is the only way that the nerves can be reached. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic that especially builds up the nerves because they supply to the blood the elements that the nerves need. Many nervous disorders have yielded to this tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when other methods failed to give relief. They are certainly worth a trial.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by your own druggist or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of six cents per box by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Write today for free book on the blood and nerves.—Adv.

BALTIMORE WOMAN'S MESSAGE TO MOTHERS

At 520 W. Hayward Ave., lives Mrs. Henry Johnson, who a few weeks ago wrote what may be termed a good message to all mothers. She said: "I have used Dr. Tru's Ellixir for more than ten years and know it is good." She used Dr. Tru's Ellixir, the Tru Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, to rid her children of worms. There is hardly a child but what needs Dr. Tru's Ellixir, for they all usually have worms when growing up. Mrs. Johnson appreciates what Dr. Tru's Ellixir accomplishes. Your children will be in better health through its use.

Make THE Backyard Pay

By W. R. BEATTIE
Extension Horticulturist, United States Department of Agriculture

Children are told to eat carrots if they want color in their cheeks and teeth to be strong and able to romp and play. Just how much there is to this is hard to say, but all the root crops are rich in vitamins and the elements that aid digestion. Carrots are rich in the coloring matter known as "carotene," which is also present in green grass and gives the rich color to the cow's milk during the early summer. Radishes are effective for warding off scurvy and similar disorders and are eaten more as a salad than a true vegetable.

Root crops such as carrots, beets, parsnips and salsify yield large quantities of actual food from a small garden. Parsnips may be grown as an early spring crop in the south and used before the extremely hot weather of summer. In the north parsnips require the entire growing season for their development and may be left in the ground during the winter and to a certain degree improve with freezing.

The essentials for growing root crops are a deep, rich, well-drained soil, good seed, proper thinning and frequent shallow cultivation. None of the root crops with the possible exception of beets, can be transplanted successfully as the breaking of the tap root in transplanting causes them to grow rough and distorted. The proper method is to sow and pulverize the soil to 10 inches deep, working fine fertilizer to the full depth of sowing, then sow the seeds where they are to grow and thin out the plants so that every plant left has room to develop. In the case of beets what appears to be a seed is really a seed, consequently beets usually come so much thicker than the gardeners expect. Carrot and parsnip seeds lose their vitality or power to grow very quickly and seed of last year's production should always be used.

When it comes to planting the beets, carrots and other root crops the soil should be raked smooth and the little rows or furrows formed by means of the hoe handle or a rounded stick drawn along a tight line. The distance between rows may be about 18 inches for beets and carrots and at least 24 inches for parsnips and salsify. The seeds should not be covered more than 1 inch deep on sandy land and less on heavy soils, and the soil used for covering them should be fine and mellow. If the soil is in the least dry it should be firmed over the seeds by laying a board on top of the row after the seeds are covered, then walking on the board.

Thinning the plants is the important part in growing all root crops. Carrots should be thinned twice, the first time to about one and one-half inches and later when the roots are large enough for use as "baby" carrots every other one can be removed. The same plan may be followed in thinning beets, the thinnings being used as greens and as small table beets cooked and buttered.

Parsnips and salsify should be thinned to an even stand of three to four inches at one thinning. After thinning, the soil should be drawn around the remaining plants. Frequent shallow cultivation and irrigation during extremely dry weather are essential to the quick growth of all the root crops.

PLEASANT EVENING AT ALL SOULS' CHURCH

A record-breaking crowd attended the supper and entertainment at All Souls' church last night and were well repaid for their attendance. The supper, served in the parish house, was of the highest order and the arrangement of the small tables, seating four each, gave friendly groups an opportunity of sitting together.

Following the supper, Booth Tarkington's one-act comedy, "The Ghost Story," was given by the members of the Tiptoe and Lambda Phi clubs of the church. The story was fitted to the young people who gave it and it was well presented. The story is well known. A Harvard senior, home for his Easter vacation, tries to get an opportunity to propose to his girl, but she is always surrounded by a group of friends. As the time flies he sees that immediate action must be taken or he will have to go back without accomplishing his desired end. He finally hits on the idea of scaring the friends away by telling a hair-raising ghost story.

The result is quite different from what he expected and he goes back to school without accomplishing his purpose, although the girl aids him as much as she can.

Anita Ahlberg took the part of "Anna Savern," and Richard Fletcher of "George." The group of friends were played by Walter Landis, Donald McNulty, Barrett, Fisher, Richard Quincy, Priscilla Fox, Margaret Amiot, Katherine Prichard and Corinne Staples, and Dorothy Marden played the part of the maid.

Miss Edith Erskine directed the play, the scenery was arranged by Frank Cheney and Harold Nickerson, the properties were under the direction of Katherine Baker and Joseph

TEXTILE FRATERNITIES HAVE CELEBRATIONS

The annual banquet of the Omicron Pi fraternity was held last night at their chapter house on Pawtucket street, with about 80 active chapter and alumni members gathered around the festive board.

Alumni members began to drift in to the chapter house early in the evening and for an hour prior to the time of the supper there was a steady renewal of old acquaintances.

The supper was prepared by the active members and the active members also served it.

Following the supper a short business meeting of the alumni of the fraternity was held, at which plans for the immediate future were made and other matters discussed.

The Beta chapter of the Delta Kappa Phi Fraternity also celebrated last night. A large number of the alumni of this chapter gathered at the "frat" house on Mt. Vernon street during the evening and early evening and engaged in the swapping of stories and reminiscence of days when they attended the Moody street school.

Lambert Sullivan, president of the local chapter, was in charge of the reception committee, and as soon as the guests had all arrived, the active and inactive members journeyed down to Marie's restaurant where a banquet had been prepared for them.

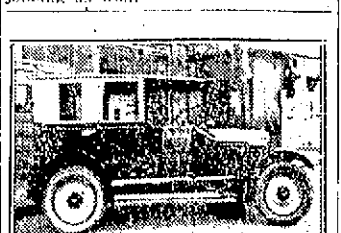

The 21st annual banquet of this chapter and the boys were out to make the most of it. As soon as the supper had been finished, the toastmaster, William Purpus, one of the alumni, called the meeting to order. A short business meeting was then held, the most important matter coming up for action being the discussion of plans for the formation of a Lowell Alumni chapter of the fraternity.

Following the business meeting, Toastmaster Purpus called on several of the alumni for short talks and they responded cheerfully. Among the speakers of the evening was the retiring president, Lambert W. Sullivan, and the president-elect, Maurice A. Villeneuve.

Talent from Keith's circuit furnished an interesting entertainment during the evening and members of the fraternity also aided in the program. Among the fraternal entertainers were Joseph Donovan and Aleck Campbell, singers of catchy songs, accompanied on the piano by Everett Wiley and on the banjo by Harry Swain.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Philip Canell, Maurice A. Villeneuve, Harold Goller, William Rivers and Aleck Campbell.

tractions are also exceedingly good. Today is the last showing of the picture, "The Light in the Clearing," which is the feature of the week-end bill at the Rialto. Don't fail to see it.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Owen Davis' Intensely Human Drama, "Dreams for Sale" Attention at Opera House Next Week

"Dreams for Sale" that big human drama by Owen Davis which is believed to be the finest offering that this great dramatist has given to the American stage, will be the attraction that will be presented at the popular Opera House all next week, starting Monday evening.

"Dreams for Sale" was originally produced at The Playhouse, in New York, by William A. Brady, with a distinguished cast. At that time Mr. Davis' great dramatist has given to the American stage, will be the attraction that will be presented at the popular Opera House all next week, starting Monday evening.

The story of "Dreams for Sale" deals with a night between two big business men in the Midway hotel. They are both trying to secure certain rights to land in the Maine woods. Years before one of them has forbidden entrance to his home and has broken off a romance with the man and his sister. For years they have hated one another, but the mesh of human emotions are twisted the daughter of one and the wife of the other. Since they are both trying to secure certain rights to land in the Maine woods, Years before one of them has forbidden entrance to his home and has broken off a romance with the man and his sister. ### Admits Murder of Wealthy Stepmother

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 11.—Julius Kessler who has confessed the murder of his wealthy stepmother, Mrs. Pauline Kessler, declared that for 32 years she never ceased to dominate and nag him. "I was a man, yet she treated me like a boy," he said. "I was the target for her attacks if I didn't get home from work just on time. If I didn't scrub the floors regularly, she would fly into a rage. And just think, I am more than 40 years old. When she threatened to have me arrested, everything broke." Kessler will be arraigned today on a charge of first degree murder.

"Prince Ski," Famous Movie Dog, Dead

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—The death of "Prince Ski," famous motion picture dog, became known today. The snow-white Russian wolfhound, was owned by W. B. Harkins of Culver City, a suburb, and was valued at $5000. His salary was $30 a day, and his specialty was strolling through gardens with richly gowned women. He had appeared in many films depicting fashionable life.

THE OVERSEAS GRAVES ENDOWMENT FUND

In a communication sent to Supt. Hugh Mulloy of the school department by James T. Duane, chairman of the overseas graves endowment fund committee of the American Legion, the public school children of Lowell are requested to sell the small "The elementary school children are asked to contribute one cent each, and those of the high school, five cents. All money collected is to be turned over to the superintendent of schools, who in turn will send a check to the committee. The collections will be taken up next week, for the amount must be turned in not later than a week from tomorrow.

The letter sent by Mr. Duane is as follows:

Dear Sir: Each year since the close of the World War, the national body of the American Legion has been raising funds annually for the care of the graves of our deceased comrades who died in service and were buried overseas. This movement has met with success on every occasion but realizing that as time goes on this task may become more difficult, the national organization of the American Legion has created a plan for a permanent endowment fund for the decoration of overseas graves of World War heroes. The department of Massachusetts has been allotted a quota of $10,000 as a minimum. We feel that no activity which the American Legion has participated in since its institution has so much merit as this overseas graves endowment fund, for it assures not only the comrades but the relatives of the men who are buried in Europe that for all time their graves will be well cared for and receive the same attention that might be accorded them by loving hands of their near relatives.

Due to the deep sentiment attached to the graves of the American Legion of Massachusetts feels that if the school children of our state could create the full fund it would add a still deeper sentiment to the cause and this would also afford a splendid opportunity as a practical lesson in patriotism to our school children.

I suggest that each pupil in the elementary schools contribute one cent, and each pupil in the high schools, five cents. The amount necessary would be realized. In any case the school children would not only be displaying a marked sense of patriotism, but in some instances they would be contributing toward the decoration of the graves of near relatives. If this fund could be created by the school children of Massachusetts it would be a lasting monument to our children and to the state to know that they availed themselves of the opportunity of having the graves of all Massachusetts heroes now on silent guard as a lasting monument to American devotion and patriotism, cared for.

If you will cooperate with us in this matter we suggest that the children contribute and the fund secured be turned in by the treasurer designated by you, to the American Legion Permanent Endowment fund for the Decoration of Overseas Graves, care of James T. Duane, Room 158, State House, Boston, not later than Saturday, May 19, 1923.

All checks will be duly acknowledged. We sincerely trust that your school will cooperate in this very important and worthy cause.

Very truly yours,
JAMES T. DUANE,
For the committee.

STANDARDIZATION TEST OF CRUISER RICHMOND

ROCKLAND, Me., May 11.—The light cruiser Richmond, the first of the new type of war craft to reach trial stage on the Atlantic coast, began a series of builders' acceptance tests on the Rockland course today.

Twenty-nine runs over the measured mile course, a speed varying from 12 knots to the maximum, comprised the standardization test, which it was hoped to complete before dusk obscures the range marks.

The ship with its 30,000 horsepower motorplant was designed for 35 knots speed. It is the first of five ships of that type to be completed by William Cramp & Sons Co. of Philadelphia.

The ship was under fire today from a corps of motion picture machines, which were being operated not only for the benefit of the amusement public, but used by the government for the first time as an adjunct to the test.

HARVEY BACK FROM EUROPE

NEW YORK, May 11.—(By the Associated Press.) George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, declared today that he knew nothing about reports that he had resigned, or planned to resign in order to direct a campaign for the renomination and re-election of President Harding.

"Of course I expect to resign some day," he said. "Every ambassador to the court of St. James, with one exception, has resigned—and he died. But when I will resign, I do not know."

Col. Harvey said he had accepted an invitation to sail back to England July 4 on the maiden trip of the reconditioned steamship Leviathan.

Told of reports that he was to have a place in President Harding's cabinet if the president is re-elected, Mr. Harvey smiled and said they were "interesting if true."

Asked for comment on the resolutions recently adopted by the New York and Massachusetts legislatures calling for his return on the ground that he was pro-British, Col. Harvey said:

"As far as my pro-English sentiments are concerned, I am an American, but I am not a damned fool."

He smiled when he was asked whether he planned to resign. Harvey's Weekly Tribune said that he was a "pro-British" man, and that he had "engaged a printer" yet.

Colonel Harvey said his present visit was his first leave of absence in two years. He was in the United States a short time ago, but came on official business.

Conditions in England, the ambassador said, are improving rapidly.

The ambassador denounced talk of British hatred for the United States as "preposterous," declaring the sentiment in England for the United States was more friendly than it ever had been before. He declined to discuss British politics, or the world economy and league of nations issues.

David Lloyd George, former British premier, plans to come to America in the autumn, Col. Harvey said. Lord Birkenhead is coming over in August, to address the political institute at Williams college.

Col. Harvey said that he and Mrs. Harvey would proceed within the few days to Chicago to see President Harding. Then, he said, he would go to his home in Peacham, Vt., for a short rest, despite the fact that he expected to face some criticism there, as a result of his recently wide circulated declaration that all the inhabitants of Peacham had British ancestry.

When it was called to his attention that a German had been found in Peacham, the ambassador said: "Well, he must have arrived after I left there."

CONCERTED MOVE BY R. R. MEN FOR INCREASE

CHICAGO, May 11.—Indications of a concerted move among certain classes of railroad employees for increases in wages are seen in the cases already filed before the United States Railroad Labor board and reports of negotiations pending with various carriers.

Four carriers granted increases yesterday, reports stated, embracing shippers on the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway shop crafts and clerks of the Pennsylvania system, maintenance of way employees of the Great Northern railway, and maintenance of way men on the Chicago & Alton railroad.

Presentation of wage demands first to carriers is specified by the transportation act which provides that, in case of inability of the union representatives and management to agree, the disputes shall be submitted to the labor board for arbitration.

Several wage disputes cases have been filed before the labor board by various unions, the latest yesterday when the maintenance of way employees filed a petition for wage increases ranging from 8 to 15 cents an hour for its 2500 members employed by the Denver & Rio Grande Western system.

PRISONER STRUNG UP AND BEATEN

CHICAGO, May 11.—Harry Reinberg, secretary of the national defense committee of the I.W.O., today sent President Harding a telegram stating that a prisoner in Leavenworth prison had been strung up in chains and beaten. It read:

"Reliable information from Leavenworth penitentiary says that Roy Connor, political prisoner, has been strung up in chains and unmercifully beaten for writing to Senator Lodge regarding cruelty to prisoners."

REFERENDUM ON PROHIBITION

BOSTON, May 11.—Preliminary papers asking for a referendum on the election in November, 1924, on the state prohibition enforcement act recently signed by Gov. Fox, were filed at the office of the secretary of state today. Under the law, 15,000 signatures must be filed within 90 days in order to hold up operation of the act and place the question on the ballot. Today's papers were filed by one state senator, 10 representatives and one other citizen.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF 800 SWISS

LAUSANNE, May 11.—Apprehension for the safety of the Swiss residents of Russia, numbering about 800, is expressed both by the public and the press in consequence of Vorovsky's assassination.

When Vorovsky attacked the Swiss government because a Bolshevik courier from Moscow was refused a visa by the Swiss minister in Berlin, it was announced that no official action would be taken against Vorovsky, particularly as the Swiss government was anxious to avoid endangering Swiss business men who went to Russia to reopen trade relations.

The police today declared they were not obliged to give special protection to Vorovsky as he was not an official delegate to the conference, but that nevertheless the chief of police only a few days ago visited him and asked if he desired protection. This offer Vorovsky declined, it is said.

PROFOUND IMPRESSION

ROME, May 11.—(By the Associated Press.) The assassination of M. Vorovsky, head of the Russian delegation at the Lausanne conference, produced a profound impression here.

It was recalled that Vorovsky's arrival in Rome in April, 1921, as head of the Russian commercial mission, was marked by a lively conflict over his many trunks, which Vorovsky refused to have opened, saying that he enjoyed diplomatic immunity. In taking this position, he was strongly supported by the Italian socialists and communists. The nationalist group which had not been strengthened by the Fascist organization, maintained that Vorovsky's position did not entitle him to diplomatic privilege.

The cabinet then in power ordered the trunks opened and it was found that they contained quantities of jewels which the emissary was allowed to keep although it was obvious that they had originally belonged to the Imperial and noble Russian families.

Vorovsky was known here as a member of Foreign Minister Tschitcherine's school of "mild bolshevism" and after living here a while, his views became still more moderate.

SOVIET OFFICIAL MAKES ATTACK

BERLIN, May 11.—(By the Associated Press.) An "auspicious atmosphere" for the assassination of the Soviet delegate Vorovsky was created in Lausanne. It is charged by officials of the Soviet embassy here, who declare that their envoy was not only subjected to studied isolation but that he was also persistently boycotted and denied the customary diplomatic courtesies and accommodations. He was not permitted to communicate with his government in code and was also refused courier service, they assert.

"The Swiss government accorded our envoy only such privileges as are usually granted tourists or ordinary commercial travellers," one of the Soviet officials declared.

EXPECT NEW GERMAN OFFER

PARIS, May 11.—(By the Associated Press.) A new German reparations offer is expected to grow out of the British reply to Chancellor Cuno's note, according to well informed circles.

Family Removed to Foil Black Hand

NEW YORK, May 11.—Salvatore Varotta, whose five-year-old son was killed by kidnapers in June, 1921, has been secretly removed from his home in New York with his wife and four children to escape members of the Black Hand who had sworn to kill them. Their flight was arranged and carried out by the police after months of planning. A son, whose face had been disfigured in an accident, underwent several skin-grafting operations before the flight so that the family would not easily be recognized. Miss Anne Morgan and other society women interested themselves in the case.

Intimate Friend of Longfellow Dead

GLENDALE, Cal., May 11.—Mrs. Rebecca Morse Bradley, native of Haverhill, Mass., relative of Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, cousin of Samuel F. Smith, author and intimate friend of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, poet, died here yesterday at the home of her son, L. W. Bradley. She was 93 years old and had lived in California 16 years.

Shot Girl and Then Killed Himself

UNION HILL, N. J., May 11.—Miss Frances Dwyer, 17 years old, was in a critical condition today at a hospital where she was taken last night with three bullets in her body after being shot by Arthur Rausch of Weehawken who then shot and killed himself. Rausch's love for the girl had not been returned, it was said.

Life For Killing French Spy

BERLIN, May 11.—Hans Sadowsky, sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor by the French court martial at Duesseldorf, which imposed the death sentence upon Albert Schlogeter, was convicted on a charge of killing "the Communist and French spy, Sinder" in front of the Essen police headquarters, according to reports received through German channels.

Miss Chambers Wins British Golf Title

BURNHAM, England, May 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Miss Doris Chambers of Wirral, Cheshire, won the British women's open golf championship in 1913 and created surprise yesterday by eliminating the 36 holes by one up. Mrs. McBeth, as Miss Muriel Dodd, won the championship in 1913 and created surprise yesterday by eliminating the title holder, Miss Joyce Wethered.

Housing Tax Exemption Law Upheld

ALBANY, N. Y., May 11.—The constitutionality of the housing tax exemption law was sustained by the court of appeals today.

RAID HOUSE WHERE JOHN BROWN STAYED

DETROIT, May 11.—While John Brown's body "lies mouldering in the grave" a house from which the famous abolitionist directed the escape across the Canadian border of negro slaves in 1859 has come under police scrutiny. Five hundred pints of beer and a small quantity of whiskey were found yesterday in the house in which, according to local history, John Brown on March 12, 1859, unfolded to Michigan.

BANKRUPTCY FRAUDS CHARGED

BUFFALO, May 11.—Bankruptcy frauds totalling more than $100,000 are charged in connection with the arrest here today of Samuel Rutenstein, president of the Buffalo Mills Co., Inc., William Ellertsen, vice president and Louis Elgel, shipping clerk of the same company. These three men and others were named in indictments recently returned by a federal grand jury.

HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

WESTPORT, May 11.—Benjamin Maxwell, 45 years old, of Cambridge, and Frank Stearns, alias Hitch, alias John Howard, of New London, Conn., were arraigned in district court today, on charges of robbery in connection with the theft of $2800 in cash from Westport state hospital yesterday morning. Each pleaded not guilty. Maxwell was held in $2000 bonds and Stearns in $3000.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 20

No sooner had Jack thanked his friend, the mystery man, than he heard a loud chattering and chirping. "What's that?" he asked. "Look ahead of you!" replied Penny Meeny, "and you will see." And just a short distance away Jack saw a lot of birds in cages, hanging in front of a funny shaped store.

Jack watched the birds for a moment. Then he turned to Penny Meeny and said, "That's the only thing I don't like about the land of Miney Mae. You shouldn't cage those poor things up like that. Why don't you turn them free?" And instantly the cages flew open and away went the birds.

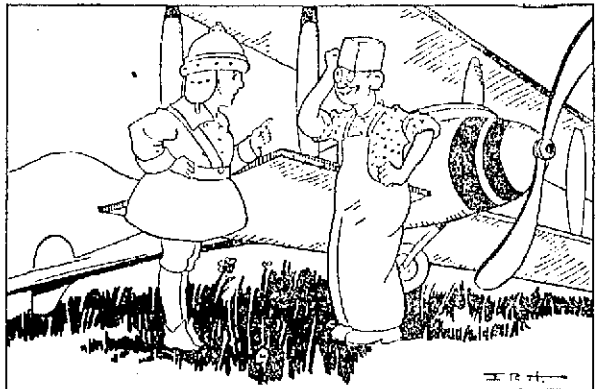

"Now, just think how much happier they will be," said Jack. But he suddenly was surprised when all the birds flew back to the perches in their cages. "I guess they don't want to be free," said Penny Meeny. "Oh, they would if you'd teach them to keep away from the cages," replied Jack. (Continued.)

NANCY LEARNS TO FLY

SUDDENLY NANCY HAD ANOTHER IDEA

When Nick flew away in his airplane and did not come back, Nancy began to worry.

"I can't imagine what has happened," she said to the Tinker Man. "He must have been taken prisoner," said the Tinker Man.

Which was exactly what had happened. For Nick's airplane had been shot down by the tin soldiers and he had been put into prison and his Magic Shoes taken away.

"I'll have to go and look for him," said Nancy. "I'll be a spy," suggested the Tinker Man. "I have another airplane here that was intended for the tin soldiers. But they haven't got it yet and you may use it if you wish to go and look for Nick. But you must be careful not to let them shoot at you or you'll either fall and be killed or taken prisoner like Nick. I'll be careful," promised Nancy.

So she took off her Red Cross nurse uniform and the Tinker Man gave her an aviator's uniform—cap, goggles and all, and soon she was learning all about flying.

STARTLING DISCLOSURES

Promised by Mrs. Hayes, Indicted for Forgery, When
Charges Are Tried

Boston Person Saves Accused
Woman From Tombs by Furnishing Bond

NEW YORK, May 12.—A prominent person in Boston, whom officials decline to name, is reported to have given security for Mrs. Mollie Howard, accused of forgery, when she was indicted for that city and saved her from the tombs after she was arrested last night by the Boston police. The woman, who had furnished $10,000 bond when she was charged with forging the name of Charles M. Schwab to a $25,000 note.

Today Mrs. Hayes was jubilant, promising she would make some startling disclosures when the charges against her were tried. Her brother, J. R. Howard, who helped her get bail, said she had known Schwab since she was 25, and would prove she had not forged his name. The little woman of 47, who was born in Dallas, Tex., came to New York at the age of 15 to become a milliner and later was promoter of the Hotel Chatham venture at Boston, faced imprisonment for three hours last night.

Her bondsmen, the Detroit Fidelity & Surety Co., obtained a "surety" in general securities yesterday, which authorized them to arrest their client, incarcerate her and withdraw their bond.

Some time after midnight, at the end of a period when a score of telephone and telegraph messages had been dispatched from Mrs. Hayes' apartment, it was announced that satisfactory security had been secured and the bonds would be continued.

Wedding at Auditorium

Had there been room, at least 10,000 more men, women and children would have witnessed it, but long before the time for the ceremony, in fact as early as 7 o'clock, the Auditorium could accommodate no more and the management was forced to close the doors and allow no one to enter until after Miss Anderson had become Mrs. Holland.

The crowd that attended the wedding in the afternoon to witness the baby show was large, but it paled into complete insignificance when compared with the evening turnout. Weddings invariably attract a wayward and this was no ordinary affair. In fact, it was quite unusual and as a novelty easily was the outstanding feature of a most successful and worth-while exposition.

Mr. Holland and his bride were married on the steps of the bungalow at 10 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Fisher, D.D., pastor of the First Universalist church, officiating. The wedding ceremony, which was to have been performed by the Rev. Dr. Fisher, was delayed by the fact that the bride and groom were late.

The bride and groom were late for the ceremony, but the wedding was not delayed. The bride and groom were late for the ceremony, but the wedding was not delayed. The bride and groom were late for the ceremony, but the wedding was not delayed.

VESPER COUNTRY CLUB

Meeting of Members to Discuss Fire and Erection of
New Club House

Notices are being sent out today calling a special meeting of Vesper Country club members at Liberty hall, Memorial Auditorium, next Wednesday, to discuss the fire that destroyed the main club building Thursday afternoon and to decide upon what action shall be taken toward the erection of another building and the provision of temporary accommodations this summer.

HARRY G. POLLARD
President

ing was reached yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the executive committee called by President Harry G. Pollard and held in the directors' room at the Central Savings bank.

Much already has been done to clarify the chaotic atmosphere that naturally existed immediately after the fire. Oil burner stoves have been set up in the old bungalow and meals will be served tomorrow in the room formerly used by the men.

It is now believed that the old bungalow will be renovated and improved so as to allow it to be used as a golf locker, lounge for women this summer. Improvements would include the installation of new shower baths and a kitchen to take in the space formerly occupied by the men's lavatory. Sleeping quarters for male employees of the club have been laid out in one end of the bungalow and the women athletes are using the former boat house in the rear of the main building.

The executive committee desires to have a full discussion of future plans, however, before any actual steps are taken and for this reason has called the special meeting for next Wednesday evening.

It is not believed that the fire will have any effect upon the Massachusetts amateur golf tournament to be held at the club the last of June, although this matter will be taken up with the state golf committee by Thomas Southam, representing the Vesper club.

Probably no plans decided upon will be pretentious enough to include the erection of any quarters for the accommodation of non-resident members this summer, but this, too, is a phase of the matter to come under discussion at the special meeting.

Horne Coal Co., one ton New England coke, to be delivered to home; Douglas & Co., $1; E. C. Pearson, $1; W. F. Trull, $1; B. C. & Co., 1 gallon varnish; Howard & Co., bottle furniture polish; Harrington Houseware Co., 1 silver table; Paul & Co., mayonnaise dressing; Sunday Telegram, one year's subscription; Cole's Inn, five-pound box assorted chocolates; Bartlett & Dew, muffin pan; Marion graphy, 100 cards; Douglas, $2; Harvey Co., Town Talk Taster sauce (three jars); Davis & Sargent, $2; John J. Hogan, $1; Adams Hardware Co., food chopper.

The baby show, which featured the afternoon session of the exposition, attracted many mothers with their offspring and 320 babies were registered with the examining board of physicians. Nurses of the Lowell Guild, board of health and school department were on hand to assist the doctors and each child examined was given a certificate according to the "Better Babies" plan. Miss McNeill of the Guild was in charge and the physicians who did the examining were Dr. Edward G. Taber, Dr. Francis A. Fineran, Dr. Warren Sherman, Dr. Theodore A. Starnes and Dr. Charles Rhanges.

The judges of the contest were Mrs. Edward O. Taber, Mrs. Elmore L. MacPhail and Mrs. John H. Johnson. After much careful selection, the following list of prize winners was announced.

Most perfect boy: First prize, $5, Arthur Dorriss (Mrs. Thomas Dorriss, 205 High St.); second prize, $3, Edward Babcock Williams (Mrs. Clarence Williams, Braintree); third prize, $2, Clifford E. Hayes (Mrs. Richard Hayes, 40 Main street).

Most perfect girl: First prize, $5, Mae Elaine Reno (Mrs. Alfred Reno, 205 High street); second prize, $3, Gloria Rhanges (Mrs. Charles Rhanges, 205 High street); third prize, $2, Barbara Ryan (Mrs. Anna Ryan, 30 D street).

DISCUSS OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

The observance of Memorial day and the annual tribute to veterans, was the chief business of the various committees of the American Legion which met at the quarters in Memorial Auditorium last night, under the leadership of Commander Joseph Molloy.

The chairman of the various committees in charge of the legion activities, in connection with the Memorial day observance reported progress. Indications are that the legion will be represented by a large group of marchers in the G. A. R. parade Memorial day. The observance will open Sunday with the annual exercises of the G. A. R. to be held in the First Congregational church. The legion as a result of an invitation from the G. A. R. to assist in this service, voted to abandon plans for a Sunday celebration.

Very Rev. Lawrence P. Tiche, M. L., will be the celebrant of the mass on the South Common. Memorial day morning. A well known clergyman has been secured to speak at this feature of the service. John J. Kelly in charge of the choir reported splendid progress. Special music will be the feature of the service.

Luncheon in the Auditorium will follow the mass. In the afternoon three squares will be dedicated and the various cemeteries will be visited for the purpose of decorating the graves. Every ex-service man is urged to don his uniform on this day and to pay his respects to departed comrades.

Co-operation in promoting the mass has been received from Superintendent of Parks John W. Kernan, Superintendent of Public Buildings Francis A. Connor, Agent H. L. Williams of the school department and many others. Mrs. William Merritt will have charge of the altar decorations. She will also have charge of the seating of the gold star mothers, who will have a special place set aside for them. Floral pieces will be donated by the gold star mothers. The flags used on the altar will be those returned with ex-servicemen from overseas. Indications are that thousands will view the mass at the South Common.

ANNUAL FARMERS' BALL BY THE C. Y. M. L.

Grotesque, original, and attractive, describe the varied costumes worn by competitors for prizes at the 10th annual Farmers' ball of the Catholic Young Men's League, held at the Association hall last night. The marchers were carried in everything imaginable, in the line of wearing apparel. Colonial dames, carrying themselves with dignity and arrogance, rubbed elbows with bad carriers, rubes and baby carriage pushers.

Rose Teague, dressed as a fairy, was awarded the prize for having the prettiest costume. Mrs. Jess Forkey appearing as a Colonial dame, won the most original award, and Helen Keefe, carrying a bird cage, which housed a bottle of the stuff prohibited by the 18th amendment, was given the funniest costume prize.

Raymond Corhan as a bad carrier won the original prize for men. Thomas McLaughlin as a Colonial gentleman, the neatest, and Martin Brady in a night shirt roll, the funniest award. The judges were Francis Roane, Rev. Dr. McGarry and John Reardon.

The guests of the evening were: Rev. John J. McGarry, D.C.I., pastor of St. Patrick's parish, and Rev. Thomas J. McDonough, chaplain of the organization. Music for the dancing, which was enjoyed by a capacity audience, was furnished by Miner-Doyle's orchestra. The committee responsible for the success of the ball were as follows:

BACK FROM CONVENTION

Chamber of Commerce Secretary Returns From Big
New York Convention

Secretary Manager George F. Wells of the chamber of commerce returned last night from the annual convention of the United States chamber of commerce held in New York this past week and he stated that it was the most wonderful entertainment and convention he ever attended. The main subject of the convention was "Transportation" and Secretary of Commerce Herbert E. Hoover gave an exceptionally

GEORGE F. WELLS
Secretary-Manager

Interesting talk on this subject last Tuesday evening in the Hippodrome. The headquarters of the convention was in the Capley-Plaza hotel, and meetings were held in the Hippodrome and in the Metropolitan theatre house as well. One of the big entertainment features was a show given in the Hippodrome Wednesday evening. This whole show that had been on there, previous to last Monday, was hired back for the night and Will Rogers, Gallagher and Shearn, and several other noted entertainers also did their bit for the entertainment of the delegates.

Another big feature was the trip up the Hudson to West Point on Friday; 3000 delegates out of the 5000 attending the convention took this trip on a specially chartered steamer. The cadets gave several exhibitions for the delegates, including a military drill, and the Cadets, 12 companies strong, were reviewed by the delegates.

The entertainment committee was the Merchants' association of New York City and they collected $100,000 for the entertainment of the 5000 delegates.

Declaring that the United States was "essential to the situation," Mr. Filene said that the problem solved itself practically into a question whether an association of nations could be formed into which all might enter and establish sanctions, "economic, political and perhaps military," that would provide for the settlement of differences through council and court.

"One of the big nations stays out," he added, "the old balance of power will be continued on account of fear of attack. There is no substitute for war except law, and it must be acknowledged by all nations."

In the controversy between France and Germany, the essential thing, he declared, "is the establishment of guarantees which will convince the citizens of all countries and especially of France and Germany, that they will neither be economically oppressed nor attacked by the forces of the other, and so can afford to reduce their armaments and plan for peace."

FILENE WARNS OF NEW WAR

Says World Likely to Be Plunged Into War Unless Nations Agree on Peace

Boston Man Discusses "Law or War" in Address at Philadelphia Convention

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Unless all nations can reach an agreement for supporting peace the world is likely to be plunged into another war, Edward A. Filene of Boston, today told the American Academy of Political and Social Science in annual convention here. He discussed "Law or War" under the general topic of "America's relation to the European situation."

As a result of the failure to bring all nations to agreement in support of international law and the machinery necessary for its development and administration, he said, militarism is being depended upon once more and balance of power agreements are being made.

"The real question for men of our generation," Mr. Filene said, "is whether we are sufficiently anxious to have law and order established for ourselves and our children to make a supreme attempt to get it, and, if so, whether we are effective and skillful enough to bring it about."

Declaring that the United States was "essential to the situation," Mr. Filene said that the problem solved itself practically into a question whether an association of nations could be formed into which all might enter and establish sanctions, "economic, political and perhaps military," that would provide for the settlement of differences through council and court.

Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan Resigns as City Solicitor and Mayor Names Patrick J. Reynolds to Succeed Him

RESIGNATION WAS IN MARCH 20

Could Not Agree With His Honor's Veto of 1923 Salary Ordinance

New Appointee Well Known Attorney and Son-in-Law of Mayor Donovan

Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan, city solicitor since the inauguration of Mayor John J. Donovan, today resigned his office and Patrick J. Reynolds, son-in-law of the mayor, has been appointed to succeed him and will qualify for the position next Monday.

Mr. O'Sullivan's resignation was tendered to the mayor on March 20, to become effective on April 1, but more than a month has elapsed since the date it was to have become operative. Because he could not agree with the mayor's message to the city council on March 19, which accompanied his veto of the 1923 salary ordinance, calling among other things for an increase of $200 for the solicitor, is given by Mr. O'Sullivan as his reason for asking for the acceptance of his resignation.

His letter of resignation follows: May 12, 1923.

Hon. John J. Donovan,

Mayor of Lowell.

Dear Mr. Mayor: Agreeably to you, I ask that my resignation as city solicitor tendered on March 20, 1923, to take effect April 1, 1923 and presented because I believed I was not in complete accord with your message of March 19, accompanying your veto of ordinance establishing the salaries of administrative officers of the city of Lowell for the year 1923, announced at that time, be made effective today.

At your urgent request I have remained until the present time, when the acceptance of my resignation and the immediate appointment of my successor is mutually agreeable.

I wish at this time to express to you my deep sense of appreciation of the

$150,000 INVOLVED IN REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS MADE PUBLIC HERE TODAY

Property transfers totaling approximately $150,000 were reported today by Lowell real estate dealers.

In reporting the sale of the J. J. Sheehan property in Central, Mill and Richmond streets and the transfer of a four-tenement block in Grand street to Lawrence men, Edward J. Smith ran his week's gross sales to nearly a quarter of a million dollars, which embraces the $90,000 sale of the Demers property a few days ago.

From the office of E. Gaston Campbell came the announcement that today he sold to Ambrose Vincent, well known marketman, all of the store and tenement property at 650-660 Merrimack street and 21-23 Cabot street for a price in the neighborhood of $60,000.

The sale of the J. J. Sheehan property through the office of Mr. Smith, included the transfer of 17 tenements and four stores to Max Brown of Lawrence at a reported price of $50,000, two six-tenement blocks in Mill and Richmond streets to Louis Marshall of Lawrence, for $17,500 and a three-tenement block at 11 Richmond street to Marshall for $5,500. The four-tenement block at 158-160 Grand street, owned by John Bourke was purchased by B. Kaplan for a sum said to be in the vicinity of $5000.

The above sales, with the $90,000 Demers estate transfer, give Mr. Smith a record amount of business for the week and comprise one of the biggest real estate turnovers in recent months.

The Merrimack and Cabot street properties sold by Miss Anna Tasker to Ambrose Vincent through the office of E. Gaston Campbell will result in extensive improvements and alterations and the ultimate establishment there of a large and modern market. More than 7700 square feet of land changed hands with the sale of the buildings.

This property has been in the James Tower family for nearly a century and today's sale is the first transfer from the estate for 96 years.

SUN EXTRA

Watch for The Sun Sporting Extra, in which will appear a full account of the great heavy-weight boxing show in New York this afternoon. A direct wire from the huge Yankee Stadium to The Sun office, will carry full details of the fights.

GREAT CROWD AT BIG FIGHT

RINGSIDE, May 12.—Close to 60,000 persons, it was estimated were in the Yankee Stadium at 3 o'clock this afternoon when the first preliminary to the all-star heavyweight charity show, a four-round bout between Harry Drake, of England, and Joe McCann, of Newark, N. J., was called.

Joe Willard, former heavyweight champion, closed the scales at 245, when he weighed in at Madison Square Garden. He will have an advantage of 35 pounds over his youthful rival, Floyd Johnson, who scaled but 195.

Luis Pirpa weighed 212 against an even 200 for Jack McVillie II, his opponent.

Weights of other fighters were: Fred Fulton, 214; Jack Renault 194 1/2; Jim Herman, 218 1/2; Al Reish, 206 1/2; Harry Drake 186; Joe McCann 202.

Except for a few scattering patches, the bleacher sections, holding about 60,000 were filled while the grandstand was being rapidly occupied. Thousands of late comers milled around the entrance gates, giving promise of a record throng by the time the principal bouts were called.

Among the Notables

A colorful gathering of society folk, athletic and other notables were grouped in the ringside section. Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late president, was among the onlookers. Prominent among ring figures were Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion, and Mike McTigue, newly crowned world's light heavyweight titleholder.

Pugilistic Sensations

NEW YORK, May 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Virtually all the available heavyweights of the world, who are active contenders for Jack Dempsey's title, will meet in the Yankee Stadium today in a series of elimination contests that promise to

With Success of Exposition Already Assured Big Crowds Continue to Flock to Auditorium

ESTELLE, MARGARET AND GRACE HURLEY, PRIZE WINNING TRIPLETS OF MR AND MRS. CHARLES F. HURLEY OF 134 WEST STREET AT YESTERDAY'S SUCCESSFUL BABY SHOW

With its unqualified success already assured to a degree far beyond the fondest hopes of its sponsors, the Lowell Home Beautiful Build Your Own Home Exposition has reached its fourth and final day at the Memorial Auditorium. The exposition doors were opened at 10 o'clock this forenoon and will not close until 11 o'clock tonight. When a check-up of tickets has been made it is expected the attendance for the four days will reach the unprecedented local figure of 60,000.

Tonight the auctioning of the attractive bungalow, which has been the outstanding feature of the many splendid exhibits, will be the last feature of the exposition.

Visitors this forenoon gave a clear idea of the size of the crowds that will flock to the Auditorium before nightfall and as large as were yesterday's throngs while the baby show and public wedding were in progress, today's patronage is expected to establish new records.

A crowd which rivaled in size that which recently thronged the streets of London to watch pass the wedding party of the Duke of York and Lady Bowes-Lyon, last night packed itself within the halls and corridors of the Lowell Memorial Auditorium to witness the nuptials of two young people from Manchester, Mr. William A. Holland and Miss Agnes M. Anderson, whose public marriage was the crowning feature of the exposition.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT

Defendant Found Guilty of Operating Auto While Intoxicated—Other Cases

Albert B. Tardiff of Dracut was found guilty in the district court this morning of operating an automobile while he was under the influence of liquor and was ordered to pay a fine of $50. He is alleged to have made civil settlement for damages done to another machine which he struck on the state road in Dracut. A charge of drunkenness, preferred against him at the time of the accident, was placed on file.

Thodore Thomas appeared on a warrant charging him with failure to provide proper lights for a truck owned by him, and was fined $25. Thomas was arrested by Motorcycle Officer Murphy, who apprehended the driver of a truck owned by Thomas in Rogers street, and which was proceeding along the roadway without a rear light showing. Thomas argued that the driver, and not the owner of the truck, should be prosecuted for the offense, but when it was learned that Thomas had been warned of the violation on a previous occasion, the finding of guilty was returned.

Jeremiah Bailey pleaded guilty in illegal keeping and was fined $100. In imposing sentence, Judge Enright said defendant in view of the fact that numerous complaints had been made against him and also because he had evaded liquor officers by carrying a bottle on his "hip," was not entitled to the customary fine for first offenders.

Charged with drunkenness and breaking and entering the camp of Gen. Morrison in Tyngsboro, Ernest Landry was given a suspended sentence of five months to the house of correction for the former charge, when the court felt it could not hold him responsible for breaks committed in the aforesaid camp. Landry was arrested about two weeks ago when he was seen prowling around the Morrison property in Tyngsboro after the place had been entered and a quantity of articles stolen. At a previous trial, defendant said he went to the camp after smelling moonshine, thinking he could procure a drink.

There was nothing doing in this respect, but a town officer appeared on the scene and placed Landry under arrest for the reported break. Landry was extended to defendant on the plea of his wife who said he was a good worker when he abstained from drink, and on his promise to turn over his pay every week to the probation officer for the support of his wife and six minor children, the suspended sentence was imposed.

Adelard Lafreniere was ordered to recognize in the sum of $200 for his appearance before the court on May 14 in answer to a charge of drunkenness, and $500 for operating an automobile while he was under the influence of liquor. He pleaded not guilty to both charges.

Chester McPhail and John Kuzlek pleaded not guilty to illegal keeping and were continued to May 24 in $300 bonds.

GOOD WAGES AND ARMY ENLISTMENTS

The 12 1/2% increase in wages recently granted the textile workers has raised havoc with army enlistments, stated Sergeant T. J. Kimball, who has been stationed in Lowell the past eight months. Enlistments are coming in slowly, but I predict that there will be a rush to enter the various branches of the army in the near future.

Men are wanted in practically every branch of the service, in this country, the Panama zone, Hayti, China and Alaska. Opportunities in the army for advancement were never better than at the present time. Men with a year of line service and a high school diploma or its equivalent, are eligible for entrance to the West Point preparatory school, and if successful, can enter this remarkable school.

The trade schools offer exceptionally good chances to learn radio, and telegraphy in the Signal corps. Men interested are asked to visit the sergeant at 61 Central street, room 12. Veterans who desire information in regard to compensation, discharge certificates, medals and buttons will find the sergeant an available source of information at all times. The medical college at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, is making an especial appeal for men to enter the college training course. The chances in this branch of the service are very good.

FIRST ISSUE OF THE RESERVE ADVERTISER

Major Francis J. Toohy, executive officer of the Organized Reserves, is preparing the first issue of "The Reserve Advertiser" for distribution among officers and enlisted men of the organization. He believes that something after the style of a newspaper is necessary to keep the men, who are distributed all over Essex and Middlesex counties, familiar with what the others are doing, and so made up the Advertiser. The first issue includes the whole roster of the 38th Field Artillery and news items of general interest to the reserve men.

He is also planning on holding a big dinner in Lowell in the near future, and hopes to have the Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire here as the speaker of the event. Invitations have been sent to the senator and if a favorable reply is made, the date for the affair will be set.

Chemistry Expert Testifies in Liquor Case

On the occasion of the officers' visit, they discovered 12 young men on the premises in the act of drinking alleged home-brew. Salt shakers and glasses were on a table and in a closet was found 105 pint bottles of the home-made liquid, together with 60 quart containers and two large vats on a stove. Questioned as to the fraternizing of the young men on his premises, Benoit told the officers that they were friends of his and stated further that he had just bottled the stuff on the morning of the seizure, that he was selling it for 15 cents per bottle.

The analysis returned to the court from the state analyst showed 3.76 per cent, while Prof. Beattie's reports, taken on two different occasions, showed alcoholic contents of 3.07 and 3.12 per cent. Asked if the difference made in the state's analysis was large, the professor answered that he believed the development very rapid. When he subjected the liquor to analysis, it was still in the process of fermentation, he said, and could easily have increased after leaving his laboratory. He was asked for an opinion as to whether the stuff was below or above 2.75 per cent, when seized and he replied that he could not state exactly as it would have to be analyzed immediately after seizure to determine that point. Prof. Beattie told the court that he was obliged to speak cautiously in scientific testimony. He said he believed, however, that the brew made on Thursday, April 19, could hardly be fit for use without endangering digestion, on Saturday, April 21, the day Benoit was arrested, it was fit for use, and on Monday, April 23, it was fit for use, and on Wednesday, April 25, it was fit for use, and on Friday, April 27, it was fit for use, and on Sunday, April 29, it was fit for use, and on # Local Observance of Mothers' Day Will Be Held in the Churches Tomorrow

Get Them These Suits for Baseball and Mud Pies.

Here's a baseball suit that is copied from one worn by a famous home-run hitter. It's calculated to make any young baseball enthusiast feel like a Babe Ruth. It's near professional in design. For those who have not yet dedicated their futures to the big leagues there is the over-all suit. It has two pockets. They are quite as important to a small boy as water to a duck. This is an over-all suit that gives playing a care-free, mud-slinging advantage.

CELEBRATE MOTHER'S DAY IN SPIRIT

By N. E. A. Service
PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Observe Mother's Day, in spirit, not in mere ostentation.
This is the plea being made by the Mother's Day International association.

ANNA JARVIS, FOUNDER OF MOTHER'S DAY

As the whole world prepares to celebrate the beautiful new international holiday.

Charges of profiteering by florists seeking to capitalize Mother's Day have been met with a response that doing something for mother's joy, not mere flower wearing, is the object. The association is opposed to paying outrageous prices for white carnations, according to its president, Anna Jarvis, founder of Mother's Day.

"There is only one thing important this day of days," says Miss Jarvis. "That is to remember mother."

"Go home and see her if you are away in another town. Take her some joy, if you can't do that, write her a special delivery letter or telegram to reach her Mother's Day."

"That is what Mother's Day means—remembrance of mother."

Meanwhile, observance has spread to all parts of Europe and to Japan, China, Africa and Palestine.

WATCH THE SLEEVES

If there is a sleeve, watch it. It is doing many peculiar things this season.

Take, for instance, the one of the dress illustrated. It is loose and fastened with a single button so that the elbow and arm can be seen either in motion or at a standstill.

This is just one variation of the loose, flowing sleeve. There are many other sleeves that seem to be a mere graceful flutter on the arm.

The bell sleeve, the somewhat subdued Mandarin sleeve, the monk's sleeve and the slit sleeves of all varieties have come to help us through the hot weather months.

FEMALE ROLES IN

"THE WITCHING HOUR"

"The Witching Hour" by Auguste Thomas, which is to be produced by the local council, Knights of Columbus on May 21 grew out of the great public interest in telepathy. Now a four-act drama, it was originally a one-act play, being built-up from time to time by the author.

Clay Whipple, a young architect accidentally murders a man because of a hereditary aversion and fright of a certain cat's eye scarf pin. As the author says "To merely report the murder and describe the prisoner is not enough, the audience must see the occurrence and must know the individual; also it must know him enough to be interested in him; and know him in a way that will make them like him. That his mother loves him is not sufficient. To make the interest deeper it is best to give him a sweetheart, who shall also suffer through his trouble; and by our sympathy for her give us an additional emotional stir."

"Again, every force in the theatre is unconsciously until it is personified, therefore, we must carry through the play a representative of that civil law that is opposed to our boy. This representative is our prosecuting attorney. As an officer of the law his position to a criminal is logically enough; but it is stronger when the personal equation also comes into play; this rule invites us to make our exponent of civil law not only a prosecuting attorney but a rival for the boy's sweetheart."

Since it was the purpose of the author to wind a story about the then current belief in telepathy and hypnotism, both are dominating factors in the play.

Female roles are played by Mrs. Alice Dacey Delmore, who plays Mrs. Alice Campbell, sister to Jack Brookfield, sporting man and gambler, and in whose home the plot of the story is laid, and by Miss Mary Casey, who plays Miss Viola Campbell, sweetheart of Clay Whipple.

Mrs. Delmore is well known in local musical and dramatic circles having most recently appeared in the Girls City club presentation Miss Casey, now attending school in Boston, is a protégée of Miss Mary Joyce of the high school under whom she starred in one of the annual high school plays. As the old saying goes "all the world loves a lover." The audience will more than love Miss Casey in her new role. Miss Hilda Noonan figures prominently as Mrs. Helen Whipple, mother of Clay.

LOWELL PEOPLE AND CHURCHES TO JOIN IN OBSERVANCE OF MOTHERS' DAY SUNDAY

Tomorrow will be nationally observed as Mothers' Day and it has become a custom to wear a flower in her honor or remembrance—a red one if she is living, and a white one if she is dead.

The day is not restricted to individual observance, however, for many churches will devote a portion of the morning service, at least, to mothers and in a number of instances locally, especially prepared programs have been arranged.

Through all ages a mother's love has been the world's most priceless jewel. Through days of happiness and adversity it has overruled all else beside. It has come into glorious reality with the first quickly drawn breath of a new born babe and has glowed like a great, all-consuming fire until earthly cares have been put aside. It is matchless in its intensity, unswerving in its loyalty, sacrificial to the point of death itself and has and always will be the beaconlight for all mankind.

Mother never has been false to the faith and adoration of a child and no word in any language or tongue is so symbolic of those things for which the Christ came into the world and left it again that all men might be free.

Tomorrow the world kneels in adoration and humbly tries to recompense for some of the things a mother's love has wrought—a love which is matchless, unabating and everlasting.

Mix together two cups of flour, four teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt and two tablespoons of lard or butter. Moisten with milk and knead to a soft dough.

Take onto a floured board, roll to one-fourth inch thickness and cut into squares three inches long and three inches wide. On one-half of each square put a spoonful of sausage meat; fold over the other half, press the edges together and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven.

This is a Dutch recipe and is an excellent supper dish. It may be combined with a salad on wilted lettuce which is made by mixing bacon, finely chopped, the fat, vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper, and pouring it hot over the lettuce.

To Achieve Grace Keep Away From the City and Imitate Nature

MISS AGNES KALMAN RUSH, AND (INSET) IN ONE OF HER PRESCRIBED DANCING POSES.

By A. H. FRIEDERICK
N. E. A. Service Writer
SAN FRANCISCO, May 12—If you would be graceful, beware of the city. For the city is the greatest enemy of feminine form and charm.

This is the warning and charge issued by Miss Agnes Kalman Rush, teacher of artistic dancing and lecturer on gracefulness for women.

"Woman's grace lies in curves," says Miss Rush. "But the modern city is all straight lines, sharp angles and squares."

"Being imitative, our tendency is to follow that which we see most of the city. Unknowingly we more and more pattern ourselves upon its plan of ungraceful lines and angles."

"American women of the pioneer days lived right with nature. It was from their surroundings that they acquired their poise, and naturally it was graceful, patterned as it was upon curving grasses, gently rounded trees, the light movement of the butterfly."

"It is to such models as these that we must look for salvation from ungracefulness."

"But merely to bend like a tree is not enough. A woman must bend like a tree because, like a tree, she is a thing of curves and curves bend gently, gracefully."

Miss Rush cites, as examples of exercises which will restore grace, the swaying trees, the poppy moving in the breeze, the caterpillar slowly creeping upward, the water lily floating upon the ripple of a pond.

She explains them as follows:

Poppy Exercise
Stand in an erect but relaxed (not strained) position, with heels together and feet placed naturally. Then think of your head as a heavy poppy head and drop it forward slowly until the chin touches the chest. Now the wind starts to blow gently, and sways the head toward the right, while the neck does not turn, and so on around a complete circle. The body follows, as the poppy stem follows, only as much as necessary to allow a graceful swaying of the head. This should be done six times and then repeated with head in the opposite direction.

Still thinking of the poppy, imagine the wind blowing more strongly, until it has swayed the head and part of the stem, the head of the stem being represented by the empire waist line. Then sway as before.

Now the wind is blowing strongly from a point in back of you. It blows you forward at the waist; the head hangs naturally and loosely as nearly straight down as possible; the arms fall forward limply. For this exercise the feet must be about a foot apart. Then repeat the rotary motion, shifting the weight and bending the knees slightly as the weight shifts from side to side.

Caterpillar Exercise
First, think of a striped caterpillar, lazily basking in the sunshine, with nothing to worry him. He is in the raised position which caterpillars take when they wish to look around. So you stand upright but relaxed. Now visualize the vertebrae of your spinal column as corresponding with the rings of the caterpillar. You start down from your upright position, the first vertebra (in your neck) opens as your head drops forward. Then you bend at the next vertebrae, and so on until you are open.

As you do this allow your head and arms to fall forward of their own weight and hang thus. And remember, never strive for a slight angle; the back should always be rounded.

This exercise should be done very slowly and with a continuous and even motion. Reverse the motion to straighten up and repeat about six times each way.

Tree Exercise
Your feet are together, with weight on left right knee slightly bent, right toe back "folded" and foot relaxed. Then step out with right foot, about 15 inches, and transfer weight. As you do this, think of willow tree branches (your arms) being blown up by the wind. They go up naturally to an easy position, both toward the right. When at peak, hold for a minute. The think of wind and reverse shifting of weight and raising of arms to left.

Water Lily Exercise
Think of yourself as in a pond, your arms out in a curve which will bring the hands almost to level of shoulders. Then, as a ripple reaches you, you are gently lifted (rising slowly on toes) and your arms are floated upward several inches, slowly and smoothly. Now the water recedes and you sink down until knees are well bent. At the same time your arms float lower.

If you want to try these exercises to music, Miss Rush suggests the following:

For the poppy exercise, "Shepherd's Hey." For the caterpillar exercise, "The Water Lily." For the tree exercise, "The Water Lily." For the water lily exercise, "The Water Lily." For the water lily exercise, "The Water Lily."

RED HATS
Red hats are very popular for wear with the red shoes that also are so popular. They are shown in chiffon and georgette with soft crowns and little trimming.

"You Can Easily Remove and Prevent Blackheads," Says Rubenstein in Beauty Contest

By MME. HELENE RUBENSTEIN
International Beauty Expert
(Copyright, 1923, The Lowell Sun)

In every country where I am called upon to help women solve the riddle of good looks, I come across different skin conditions, but there is one trouble that persists seemingly in spite of all varieties of climate and conditions. I refer to blackheads.

Nine out of every ten women are vexed by these horrid little "black pests" as the French call them, that not only make the skin dull and muddy looking but often lead to the dreaded pimples and spots called acne.

A blackhead is a tiny dust particle that embeds itself in the skin, held there by the natural secretion of the skin. The pores unable to rid themselves of these irritants send out a call for help to the little sebaceous glands which respond by rushing their moisture to the affected parts. If the pores are still unable to dislodge the impure dust particles the secretions overflow onto the skin's surface and all the while the pores are stretching and losing their power to close.

That is why we seldom see blackheads without "shine" and enlarged pores.

The chief thing to be considered is how to purify the skin, reduce the pores to normal and regulate the secretions.

The opening and closing of the pores properly is the keypoint of correction. To eradicate blackheads you must penetrate inside the pore where the black speck has made itself at home and as the blackhead becomes smaller and weaker through treatment close the pore so that no fresh invasion of dust particles and microbes can upset the skin.

Strong soaps are injurious because they dry the surface, thus causing wrinkles and lines without reaching the inner cells. I advise a special wash of gritty texture for the thick sluggish skin and a softer paste of equally cleansing strength for the thinner and more delicate skin. When the skin is thus cleansed, any preparation which follows will be unhampered in its action.

In the daytime use an astringent after washing and use this at intervals during the day in preference to both water and cleansing cream. At night after washing and before putting on an astringent, put a small quantity of stimulating nourishing cream on the face that has been washed in hot water and wring dry, then rub the skin with this until your face flushes. This will help you immeasurably as nothing overcomes blackheads as increased functioning of a skin that has become sluggish owing to their presence.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS FOR MAY DISHES

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH
Of Columbia University

May has always been associated in one's mind with May-poles, dancing, baskets of flowers and a general good time. And always where there is fun there is food.

One of the old English dishes was junket, or milk thickened with rennet. Junket comes in tablet form, and one tablet crushed and partially dissolved in cold water will "set" one quart of milk. We have variations of this, by serving fruit with it, or freezing it. The one quart of junket and one cup of cream makes an ice cream that is like that made with all cream. This is the way many a cook makes a rich ice cream, to all being as satisfactory as if much cream had been used.

And of course it is much cheaper. Undoubtedly the Mother's Day idea is taken from the old custom of having a "Mothering Sunday," a day on which young couples went home to mother, and got good advice. Veal was the meat served, and usually a tansy pudding.

May is the month when green vegetables begin to appear, and in the northern places, but in the middle and southern parts. I was much interested to read the other day, in an old English cook book dated 1734, of a good way to keep green vegetables green when cooking them. The title was "To boll garden things green."

"You must be sure the water boils when you put in your peas, green, French beans, asparagus; when they are in, make it boil very fast again; you need not cover them, but watch them and may be assured they are cooked enough when they begin to sink to the bottom, provided they have boiled all the time. Take them out as soon as they sink, or they immediately change color!"

This may be a help, and it is certainly true. Most people overcook green vegetables; they always change color when cooked for a longer time than needed.

I have found that soaking them in very cold water, and then putting them in rapidly boiling water made for a much more attractive looking vegetable.

The French people usually cook an onion with peas, and add a large amount of sweet butter. Some think that two or three sprigs of fresh mint added is a great improvement.

A little sugar is always good in peas, and a great improvement to the flavor of green corn.

BOILING CORNED BEEF
When you are boiling corned beef you can improve the flavor greatly if you will add a pinch of ginger, a few cloves, a small onion and a few bay leaves.

COFFEE SPOTS
If coffee or tea is spilled on your table linen, pour boiling water over the stains repeatedly and place on the grass in the sun.

In England, the home of many beautiful women, Gladys Cooper is acknowledged to be the loveliest. She is the perfect blonde type at its highest point of perfection. She says her beauty secrets are hard work, exercise and country life.

By MRS. ORA SNYDER
America's Candy Queen
PUDDING

2 cups granulated sugar.
1 cup milk.
2 tablespoons butter.
Pinch of salt.
2 tablespoons corn syrup.
1 ounce bitter chocolate cut in small pieces.

Mix ingredients and cook to the soft ball stage. Remove kettle from fire and allow to cool 15 minutes. Add one teaspoon vanilla and beat until it is creamy and thick. Add one-half cup of nut meats and spread out in buttered pan one inch thick. Cut into one inch squares.

This candy will keep moist in a covered vegetable dish. If you find it too firm it is because you have cooked it too long and you can re-moisturize with a touch of white talc.

Feminist Traveler Sees Future Art and Learning Coming From the Orient

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, May 12—We have borrowed the kimono from the Japanese, the urban from India, and jewelry and embroidery from China, but outside of these superficial acquisitions, what do most of us really know about our oriental sisters?

Mildred Taylor, writer, organizer, lecturer and feminist, is convinced that we know little—that we have never even penetrated the inner lives of these mysterious ladies on the other side of the earth.

"Most of us have only two pictures of the oriental woman," she states. "One that of a docile slave of peace of mind which the oriental woman has attained."

"Before we can learn what she has to give us we must understand the oriental and do away with the prejudice based on ignorance and misunderstanding that are the bars to hand information about the women."

and children of China, Japan and India, which she will later put in book form.

"I believe," she continued, "the present vogue for oriental costume, jewelry and home decorations is only the prelude to a much more far-reaching acquaintance with oriental art, philosophy and the science of living."

"In our complex civilization we who have never learned to relax or to rest have much need for the calm and peace of mind which the oriental woman has attained."

Plans to Bring Relief in Sugar Situation

WASHINGTON, May 12.—In addition to the government's anti-trust suit against the alleged New York sugar combine, it was stated at the White House yesterday, the administration has under consideration other measures designed to cope with the sugar situation. While details were withheld, it was said that officials believed the steps contemplated would bring relief from high prices.

HOLLYWOOD, May 12—It has become a happy custom of the Wampas—Western Motion Picture Advertisers' Association, if you must have it in full—to present thirteen comely comers in the movies at their annual frolic as "The Baby Stars" of the year. To appreciate the full weight of their star-pick-judging and their prowess as prophets, you must know that the Wampas are those indefatigable boys vulgarly known as press agents—the boys who day by day herald the merits of their patrons from Beverly Hills to Broadway. The Wampas constellation for 1923, just selected for demonstrated ability as well as palatability, are herewith presented for your inspection.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"Thank You, Doctor," the Crook Farce To Be Presented as Headliner This Coming Week

The Four Dion sisters—real Lowell girls and real sisters, too—will make their professional debut on the stage of the B. F. Keith theatre tomorrow, heading a big show which Manager Ben E. Pickett has brought together for the day. The sisters are very well known through their connections with amateur theatricals and their singing is unusually good. Their act will without question attract many friends to the theatre for the day. The remainder of the bill will hold many good things, including Pops & Co. in their refined singing act. Weigh & Wynn, funmakers; Force & Williams, song and comedy; Eddie Jerome and company, in music and fun; Wilson & Peters, in a pot-pourri and Josephine Golden, singer.

The coming week's bill will be featured by "Thank You, Doctor," which is a farce featuring Eleanor Hicks and Chester Clute. Like all successful farces, this one moves with great speed. This particular farce is a crook farce. The crook in the case is a young woman who becomes assistant to an innocent doctor. He believes that she is following his profession. Bright dialog adds to the speed of the production and all in all it will rate as one of the most attractive offerings of the season.

Tom Smith, who is rated as an artist, a gentleman and a scholar, assisted by Harry Newman will prove a most capital comic also. From the minute he steps on the stage the audience will be fully aware that plenty of fun is brewing. The laughter which will greet the two men will be, without doubt, spontaneous, for much that they do and say will be unusual and unexpected.

A pair of musical comedy stars are Stella Tracey and Carl McBride, who will purvey "Bits of Exclusiveness." Miss Tracey is a dainty bit of femininity and Mr. McBride is a dancer who executes with much grace. The act will be one of the very great favorites of the week.

Helen Moretti is called "The little girl with the big voice." Her vocal and physical attributes are all out of proportion. Her voice is not only big but it is of exceptional quality and it possesses an unusual register.

Arch Stanley is a monopedee—in other words, he has but one foot. He is a pleasant chap who endures optimism and who, in the course of his act, dances well. Joe and Willie Hale will give "Bits of Vaudeville" and Milla and William Reuter are equilibristes who will offer a few genuine thrills.

THE STRAND THEATRE

Excellent Program Next Week, Beginning With Monday Matinee—New Pictures and Vaudeville Sunday

A program of extraordinary merit is scheduled for presentation at The Strand for the coming week. For the first three days of the week, starting with Monday matinee, the big Chicago Daily News prize story, "Broken Chains," with Colleen Moore, Claire Windsor and others of screen note will head the bill and the second feature will be Dustin Farnum in "The Buster." For the week-end, beginning with Thursday matinee, Tom Mix in "A Woman of No Importance," will be presented. The latter program will have for the third feature an Al St. John comedy entitled "Young and Dumb."

The management has arranged an excellent program for Sunday also. Besides an entire change of pictures there will be five acts of high class vaudeville. "Broken Chains" is a special story.

OUR LOCAL RENAISSANCE

We are to have a renaissance of our own here in Lowell as a result of the Home Beautiful Exposition which has been such an inspiration to our people, staged as it was in the most beautiful memorial building in the United States. The Renaissance in history is the name given to the style of art, especially architecture, which succeeded the Gothic in Europe and preceded the rigid imitation of the classic in the first half of the 18th century. The spread of classical literature during the 15th and 16th centuries created a taste for classic architecture in every country in Europe and the movement had its effect also in this country. The colonial style was an evolution from Europe and it has been followed here with certain modifications almost distinctly American.

In saying that we are to have a local renaissance in home building, we do not mean that we are to return to classic models, but rather that we are to seek what is simple, beautiful and harmonious in proportion and design rather than what is gaudy or showy without either symmetry or beauty. It is perhaps hard to find two persons who will agree as to the merits of a painting or of the beauty of a building; but if all those who have to do with the building of homes—the architect, the contractor and the owner—feel an impelling influence to strive for the simple, the symmetrical, the harmonious, the beautiful, the artistic, not only in the style of architecture but in landscape gardening, the beautification of the environment, not to speak of the interior furnishings and decoration—then we shall achieve what is meant by the home building renaissance, a great advance toward the beautiful in art and chiefly in architecture.

Indeed it may be said that we have already made a good start in that direction. Our magnificent Memorial Auditorium marks the initial step of this movement, and the Home Beautiful Exposition now in progress in that building, is the next stride onward. It is educational and will have far-reaching effects. Upon the success of this exposition, the Contractors' association, the merchants and various other exhibitors are all to be congratulated, as are the architects who made the floor plans, Messrs. Harry Prescott Graves and Perley Gilbert. The exhibition has been a revelation to the people of Lowell. It has shown them the possibilities of home beautification, and we are confident that the results of this event in our future community progress along aesthetic lines, will have gratifying results in the coming years.

THE I. W. W. PRISONERS

The I. W. W. is conducting an active campaign for the release of its so-called political prisoners, 53 of whom are now in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kansas. They claim that the statutes under which these men were convicted are unconstitutional on the ground that they violate the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech and of the press. In support of their contention, they quote the first amendment to the constitution which reads as follows: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

This amendment constitutes a restriction upon congress only, and does so in order that the states may exercise the right to regulate freedom of the press and freedom of speech, and also to designate in what the violation of these rights consists and to fix the penalty.

It is noticeable that over half the states have enacted statutes against the activities of radical and revolutionary groups as rendered necessary in protecting their very existence against such movements. The statutes fixing penalties for radical action aimed at the overthrow of the government are known as criminal syndicalist or criminal anarchy statutes. They make it a crime to advocate either orally or in writing the use of violence, sabotage, or other unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reforms or the overthrow of organized government by force or other unlawful means. Many prominent jurists have upheld the state laws against the radicals. It is noted also that in these statutes enacted by the states, it is provided that "every citizen may freely speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right." That does not extend the same right to aliens and most of the I. W. W. members are not citizens. Judge Hough, of the United States court of appeals, in a recent decision, said: "Men commit crimes when they counsel or procure others to sin against the state laws, and they also commit crimes when they confederate to effect that object; and yet it is difficult to imagine any more suitable or usual method of procuring or counseling than by speech. In this sense, men have often been punished for what they have said by statutory enactment."

In reference to the so-called political prisoners of the I. W. W., it appears that most of them were convicted under the Espionage act of 1917 for opposing the United States in the service during the World War, under this act was sustained by the United States circuit court of appeals, and a petition for a writ of certiorari in the supreme court of the United States was denied by that court, citing the strongest legal authority for the conviction of the prisoners not only as to the statutes under which the conviction was procured, but also on the evidence adduced.

It seems, therefore, that on constitutional grounds, the claim of the prisoners for liberation has nothing to sustain it and that an appeal for clemency, now that the war is over, is the only thing that will offer any hope of mitigating the sentences of any of these prisoners.

MORE TERRIFIC WAR WEAPONS

It is reported that France has invented a gun that will carry 200 miles. With such a big Bertha, France could land shells in the British capital, but such possibility may be entertained. We do not believe that such nations as France and England will care to enter into another war, knowing that the weapons of destruction now available are even more terrible than those used in the World War. The development of aircraft and the possibilities of destruction are more seriously dreaded than any long-range gun yet invented. The big Bertha used by Germany towards the close of the World War was effective mainly in causing alarm, as its shells usually fell wide of the mark, and when they landed, were not so terrific as might be supposed. However, it may be possible to improve upon these powerful guns both in range and in the weight of the shells, but it is highly doubtful to discount the possibilities of human ingenuity for the destruction of human life. Chemists assure us that the next war will probably be fought with destructive gases that would either suffocate large numbers of people or else spread ruin by starting conflagrations. With all the pacifist movements now in progress, there is little probability of any war in the near future except one forced by communistic nations such as Russia or some nation with an inordinate desire for conquest as some people would class Japan. We feel, however, that Japan is possessed of better judgment than to bring on another world conflict that might have the effect of largely wiping out whatever degree of civilization exists on the Asiatic continent. The world has had too much war already, but we presume that there will still be countries and peoples foolish enough to precipitate international conflicts that may result in widespread destruction of life and property. If any international organization can be effected to stop war for all times, it is bound to come in some form, but it may be quite a number of years before it can sufficiently overcome international prejudice to accomplish its aim.

HOT SUMMER?

This summer will be a hot one, despite the late spring which has been caused by the sun giving off 4 per cent less heat than normally. So predicts Dr. Charles F. Brooks, the astronomer. The reduced heat of the sun was to be expected, says Dr. Brooks, as a customary part of the "11-year sun spot period" which reached its greatest development in 1917 and receded to its lowest point in 1922. Brooks points out that the sun every 11 years normally goes through a period of excessive activity and then a recession from it. When Old Sol is hitting on all cylinders, sun spots appear. These warm the sun's surface down and its engine cools. Not so, however, but we trust we have interpreted it so as to be understandable by the millions who are tremendously interested in the weather, but haven't time to "study up" on astronomy.

These spurts of activity, or increased heat followed by subnormal heat, are staged by the sun every eleven years. There was an abnormal radiation of heat from the sun in 1906, the same as eleven years later in 1917. The next cycle will have its climax in 1928.

Dr. Brooks says: "There is a paradox that the cooler the sun the warmer the earth." The period of sun spot maximum is one to two degrees cooler than otherwise. The scientific explanation is, that when the sun has a cold day, as at present, its ultra-violet rays have greater opportunity to escape through the sun's atmosphere. These ultra-violet rays form a blanket of ozone around the earth, for overhead. This ozone blanket absorbs and holds much of the heat which the earth radiates off. The radiation in what makes the nights cool even after a hot day. The earth's heat starts returning back into space and the ozone blanket tends to keep it near us, the same as a thermos bottle. So, says Dr. Brooks, there probably is at present a reduced loss of the earth's heat through space, despite a reduction of the amount of heat being received from the sun. The ozone, formed overhead by nature to counteract the sun's chill, works like a blanket around a steam pipe. "The net result," Dr. Brooks concludes, referring to the coming summer, "should be a higher temperature, considering the world as a whole, than at the time a year or two ago when the heat received was greater."

DUST EXPLOSIONS

Flour, under certain conditions, is a high explosive. So is dust. Twenty-one thousand manufacturing plants in our country are subject to the dust-explosion hazard, says D. J. Price of the U. S. department of agriculture. Among dusts that have been known to explode disastrously are powdered milk, fertilizer, rubber, soap, spices, cocoa, paper, aluminum and cork. There won't be any lama backs and nothing muscles when our descendants learn how to harness the terrific power locked up in the atoms of dust. Scientists tell us that the atoms of one ton of coal have enough sleeping energy to blow up the whole earth. Archimedes, it was, who told us that he could lift the earth with a lever if he could only get a suitable fulcrum outside.

SHERLOCK

Sherlock Holmes was a real person—Dr. Joseph Bell, a distinguished Scottish surgeon who died some years ago, according to friends of Conan Doyle.

Doyle says he still gets letters to be forwarded to Sherlock. Many have written, regretting that he has the morphia habit and recommending various cures. A musician, reading of Sherlock's musical bent, sent him a new violin. Thousands believe that Holmes is real, that he solved the fiction crimes that made Conan Doyle famous. Street and Smith, publishers, used to get baskets of mail addressed to Nick Carter.

Some people are very gullible, as the politicians are fully aware. Some characters in fiction seem to be endowed with life. Such are Hamlet and Shylock, although they lived before Shakespeare gave them immortality in his plays.

CLEVER

A clever new trick for airplanes is invented by an Englishman. It is a revolving platform, which moves rapidly back as the airplane starts ahead, treadmill fashion, so the plane is going fast when it manages to get off the platform. This does away with the necessity of gliding over a long field before rising. Like the ball moving rapidly but staying on the umbrella twirled in the opposite direction by the Jap vaudeville actor.

It is quite possible that houses will have roofs like this later, in the day of flying flippers.

PROFITS

Could you make a living farming? Department of Agriculture checks up 6000 representative farms and gives this description of the average farm: It used $16,499 of capital and the labor of the farmer and his family during 1922, for which the family received a return of only $715 cash after paying all bills.

Few city families have that much left at the end of a year. They would have, if they lived as simply as the average farmer. As some one called it, the cost of high living.

It is safe to say that Mr. and Mrs. William Albert Holland will carry through life fond memories of the city of Lowell, our Memorial Auditorium, and the little bungalow, on the steps of which they entered the bonds of wedlock in the presence of 5000 people while 15,000 outside the building clamored for admission to witness the nuptial ceremony.

Supt. Kernan says he will not allow the benches on the parks and commons to be used by disorderly persons who make insulting remarks to parties passing along the walks. A few arrests will put a stop to that practice. The parks must be made safe for people of all ages and conditions.

The best physical specimens in America—250 of them—will represent us in the Olympic games to be held next year in Paris. This is 109 fewer than we had at Antwerp in 1920. But these 250 will uphold our high place in athletics.

It is gratifying to know that already many of the exhibitors at the Home Beautiful Exposition report that it has been a splendid investment.

Our Home Beautiful Exposition is likely to become an annual feature and one that appeals to everybody more than any other event of the year.

It is time to get those paper cars busy on the streets that bear the scars of heavy traffic and are dangerous to motor vehicles.

SEEN AND HEARD

Lost of living has risen almost 60 per cent in ten years, but it is still worth doing.

Turtles have no teeth, but then they have no toothache, so that fixes that up all right.

A whale's skin is two feet thick in some places, so no whale should mind a spanking wind.

There are 40,000 muscles in an elephant's trunk, and baggagemen think you have as many in yours.

For five weeks, while her husband was ill on the mainland, Mrs. Harry Greenwood attended the lighthouse on Long Portage Island, off the coast of Nova Scotia.

When Lloyd Barber wanted to marry Alice Fry of Medford, Cal., in time to catch a train, the preacher was out of town fishing. Starting by automobile to find him, the couple came upon the pastor at dusk on a creek bank. With a croak on his shoulder, the Rev. Barber married them and Mr. and Mrs. Barber caught their train.

A Thought

Rags will always make their appearance where they have a right to do it.—Dr. Johnson.

Brothers, After All

To those who feel that the world is growing ill-tempered and bigoted we commend the fact that a Protestant Episcopal parish in Norwich has turned over a Sunday collection to its Roman Catholic neighbors whose church was recently burned.

That Settled Him

"Miss Jones," said the floorwalker, "I must rebuke you for rudeness to a customer. Don't you know that a customer is always right?" "O, yes, Mr. Smith, I know," replied Miss Jones hastily, "but you see she said you were an old crook."

Food for Thought

What becomes of a hall driven into a grinding tree? What happens to a mill saw when it strikes an embedded nail? A sawyer was recently killed because of the thoughtlessness of one man nearly fifty years ago. Use small nails when placing posters on trees. Remove old nails when taking down or replacing posters.

Expensive Luxuries

"How much a year does it take to support a wife nowadays?" asked a young man with an inclination in that direction. "O, anywhere between $300 to $500,000 or so," was the confident answer. "Isn't that rather indefinite?" Inquired the other. "No, because no married man breathing ever lived this side of his pre-marriage calculations."

Audience Disappointed

"How are you getting on?" asked a friend of an acquaintance who had gone on the stage. "O, I have met with a share of success. I played Hamlet for the first time." "Did you get through all right?" "Yes, except that I happened to stumble and fall into Ophelia's grave." "That must have been embarrassing," it was, but I wouldn't have minded it if the audience hadn't seemed so disappointed when I got out."

Both Old-Fashioned

An old physician of the last generation was noted for his brusque manner and old-fashioned methods, says the Edinburgh Scotsman. On one occasion a woman called him in to treat her child, who was slightly ailing. The doctor prescribed castor oil. "But, doctor," protested the young mother, "castor oil is such an old-fashioned remedy." "Madam," replied the doctor, "babies are old-fashioned things."

A Silver Black Box

From the fountains of the fountain And the bottles of the bar, I've tried many fancy gables Most as many as the stars in the sky. But the drink that's first and foremost, If you put it up to me, Is that scalding can of ashes, Swamp-juice, spud and tea.

At the take-off of the portage. When a man is dumpy with oil, He and his fellows are forgotten. When the tea comes to a boil, In the silent winter smog. When the snow has hid the trail, Strength and hope and courage wait At the bubbling of the pail.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Right Must Prevail
Fall River News.—Joseph G. Cannon at 87 years of age is as optimistic as is Chauncey M. Depew at 89. He was greeted on Monday last at his home in Danville, Illinois, by 50,000 people who had assembled to do him honor. Shaking with emotion, as he thought of his retirement from public life, the veteran legislator gave the American people the following message for their encouragement as they look into the future of their nation. He said: "To you, to all the people of America, my observations of half a century. I bring this message: Have faith. Often you feel that you detect a great weakness, an unrest, a threatening undercurrent in this great country. This is neither new nor unusual. I have learned that America was never so near her problems. I have learned that good will triumph over evil. Have faith in the government of your fathers. Show your faith by works to support the government. Have faith that right will prevail."

President's Program
Boston Globe.—The rearranged program for President Harding's western trip, on which he may start June 20, provides for addresses at St. Louis, Kansas City, Mo.; Hutchinson, Kan.; Denver, Salt Lake City, Boise, Idaho; Helena, Mont., and Seattle, and three addresses in California, probably one each at San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego. After a much expected short rest in Camp Yellowstone, the president will go to the Yellowstone park before going to Alaska, speaking on the way at Boise, Idaho.

Quarter Century Ago

About this time, 25 years ago, the United States was just entering on the war against Spain and the naval and land forces were directed to unite on an attack upon Cuba and Porto Rico. Congress met and President McKinley warmly commended Commodore Dewey for his great victory at Manila. The sum of $10,000 was appropriated for a sword for Dewey, who was to be made an admiral, and medals were ordered for the heroes of the squadron who participated in the battle of Manila.

Although there was little reason why the United States should dread a Spanish fleet, it was really astonishing how much alarm was felt in the cities along the eastern coast, lest they should be attacked by a great Spanish armada. The wildest rumors were about relative to the position of the Spanish fleet. Vessels entering port reported having seen strange ships near Halifax and they surmised that it might have been a Spanish squadron. It was also reported that heavy cannoning was heard off New York and Boston and the people of both cities dreaded an attack. The commanding fleet was probably target practice by the fleet as a continuous patrol of United States war vessels was maintained from Portland, Me., to Florida.

On May 9 the old Sun reported that only poor craftsmanship on the part of the Spanish gunners saved the Vicksburg and the cutter Morrill from destruction off Havana. For over half an hour they were under fire of the guns of the Santa Clara batteries, but both escaped under a rain of shrapnel. The wily Spaniards attacked a trap by which they hoped to send two of our ships to the bottom, but unfortunately they were disappointed.

Catholic Hierarchy Spoke
On May 10, the Catholic hierarchy of the United States issued a strong manifesto repudiating the charge made in some quarters that the Catholic church in the United States might hesitate to enter the service against a Catholic nation. In reply to this charge, the hierarchy of the United States issued a strong appeal in which they said: "Whatever may have been the individual opinion of Americans prior to the declaration of war, they can now no longer be so opinionated as to the duty of every loyal American citizen. A resort to arms is determined upon by the chief executive of the nation with the advice of both houses of congress; and after consultation with his cabinet officers, but not until after every effort had been exhausted to bring about an honorable and peaceful solution of our difficulties with Spain."

The sainted earnestness, the dignified forbearance, the subdued firmness of the president during the trying times that intervened between the destruction of the Maine and the declaration of war are beyond all praise and should command the admiration of every true American. We, the members of the Catholic church, as true Americans and as such are loyal to our country and our flag and obedient to the highest decrees and the supreme authority of the nation. We are not now engaged in a war of section against section, or state against state, but we are united as one man against a foreign enemy and a common foe.

The nation's further set forth the duty of loyalty and concluded by declaring that every priest in his daily life should pray for the restoration of peace by a glorious victory for our country.

Pure Logic

The amateur gardener scratched his head,
"This thing is too much for me," he said,
"I plant tomatoes,
Green peas, potatoes,
Lettuce and beans, to meet our needs;
I treat 'em kind
As I ought to do,
But all I find
When the season's 'through,
Is a bean or two and a lot of weeds."

The amateur gardener thought and thought
On why his gardening came to nought;
From cerebration
An inspiration
Came suddenly into his puzzled brain;
Then he gave a wink
And he cried, "I'm sore
That I didn't think
Of that thought before,
A logical plan that is safe and sane!"

So the amateur gardener bought the seeds
Of all the different sorts of weeds,
He planted thistles
And things with bristles
And all plant pests he had heard about;
Then corn and peas,
Potatoes too,
And plants like these

Sprang up and grew

LOWELL CO-OPERATIVE BANK MEETING

Lowell left the field first and, therefore, enjoyed a coveted honor for which the companies were in a sort of rivalry although they had no control over the time of their being ordered to start for the front. Detachments of troops were being sent out as quickly as they could be equipped and fully organized.

Defeat in Landing Forces
It was rather disappointing that what may be regarded as the first skirmish with the Spanish forces at Havana should result in serious defeat. On May 12, four American vessels opened fire on Cienfuegos and attempted to land men and arms in barges. The Spanish troops assisted by the forts, repulsed the Americans, who, however, destroyed the cable station. A second attempt to land was also frustrated. The fighting was continued for eight hours and it was reported that there were serious losses on both sides.

The Looker-on In Lowell

People are probably not generally acquainted with the fact that Collin Mackenzie, custodian of the Memorial Auditorium, gets the autograph of every notable personage appearing there in a book kept especially for that purpose. Signatures are dated and already many pages of the big book are filled with names.

The book in years to come will be very valuable. Even now it would be treasured by autograph collectors and those interested in reading character by handwriting. As one looks over the names, he is struck with the wide variety of style. The book seems to prove also that handwriting does reveal personality, because in many of the signatures the outstanding characteristics of the writers may be discerned. There are some neat as if printed, others scrawny, obscure, small, fine, large, pretty and indistinguishable.

A few of the residences or addresses given are: Montreal and Toronto, Canada; San Francisco, Washington, D. C., Mississippi, Athens, Tipperary, Ireland, New York, Chicago, France, Halifax, North Carolina, Los Angeles, Porto Rico.

Among the first signatures in the book is that of Pierre Montoux, of the Boston Symphony orchestra. His style is scraggly, hurried, though clear and would seem to indicate a nervous temperament. The name is not written on the line but through two lines and upwards on the page.

Perhaps a bad pen contributed to the very crude signature of Irene Cassle, but surely none would suspect the writer to be of the type of Mrs. Cassle. The style is upright, but very crude, with many of the letters not joined.

"One would think that a trained mind would have a trained hand and that is so in the case of E. M. Newman, noted locally by 'Newman's Transcendence.' His signature is simple, upright and seems to indicate a careful, explicit attitude.

Rev. William J. Finn of the Paulist Choristers uses the slanting, news-writer style, which would indicate that he was much and fluently.

Padonewski, wife of J. Padonewski, joining the "P" and the "P" and slanting to the right with the letters jammed together. His signature really looks more like that of a business man than of a world-renowned pianist. For an artist who can so delicately touch the keys, one would suppose that his signature would be artistic, but it isn't.

Burton Holmes, lecturer, who makes his living by making himself understood, also writes his name that it might be understood, in a large, scraggly way.

Determination and stoniness are pictured in the official-looking, large and run-in autograph of S. M. Brown, major general of the U. S. Army. Isaac Marcossow, world-wide news and magazine writer, has developed the small, slanting news-writer style to perfection and uses it in his signature. It is neat and yet, as with everything he writes by hand, it was probably written hurriedly.

Fritz Kroll's signature is almost indistinguishable, indicating a very nervous character. It seems as though he just scratched in on the book with one tremble of his hand. His autograph surely would not indicate the wonderful control he has of his hand and arm for playing the violin.

Collin O'More's autograph is very plain and clear, indicating the plain, unassuming individual that he is. Paul Whiteman writes heavily, but a careless, crude signature, with a slightly backward slant in places.

Rudolph Valentino's autograph looks like the product of a writing school, pretty and light, large yet somewhat obscure. His wife's signature is signed immediately under his and is exactly opposite to her husband's, in height, being very small. It is also obscure, however, and would hardly be legible except to one who would recognize the outline.

Again the determination, domination and will of a military officer is superbly illustrated in the autograph of Gen. John J. Pershing, who took five lines to write his name and the accompanying scroll beneath it. His signature is large, heavy and clear, and contrary to that of lesser military officers is not burdened with his official rank.

The slow, explicit, careful character of Stephen Leacock is indicated by his autograph, which is not written in ordinary style, but like newspaper type, very large and clear. If the letters were raised, a blind person could read it.

The exceedingly temperamental character of Rachmaninoff and his almost superhuman attention to details and minute effects, are displayed in his signature, which is so small and toward the latter part of his name, the letters are like a series of dots.

James J. Davis, secretary of labor, who is an opponent of child labor, not only wrote his signature, but the following underneath it: "The child is the hand of God—recording on the universal pages of time the history of the human race." One would know that he was interested in his subject when he couldn't sign his name without referring to it.

The Bragioni sisters, dancers, who entertained at the recent Lowell ball, have autographs fit for ring-armed baseball players. Herbie Bragioni writes a very large, heavy scroll. An ordinary pen could not stand much use from her.

Francesca, her sister, also writes a large hand, but not as heavy. Both signatures are very clear. Determination is indicated by her heavily quilled, undisturbed determination and courage to learn the details of classical dancing as exhibited by these sisters in the Auditorium.

Donald MacMillan, another lecturer and adventurer, writes his name slowly, and so carefully that each letter is easily distinguishable. He uses backhand style, with small, well-formed letters.

Following the style of many other musicians, Paul Dufault signed his name in a large, scraggly manner. Werrenath uses a fine, light hand, with letters run closely together, but readable. He underlined his name.

John McQuinn, who has an autograph with a very light touch, slanting style and with small letters, except a large "C" in his last name. He gave his address as Athlone, Ireland.

May City Pump Out Cellars?

During the recent freshet, inquiries were made by a certain manufacturer, whose mill basement was flooded by river water as to whether any of the city departments could pump out the water. He got in touch with Chief Saunders of the fire department, suggesting that firemen might do it. Chief Saunders, it is understood, knew of no law to prevent such, but he thought it inadvisable for the fire department to get a precedent of pumping out cellars.

In the case of any severe freshet, the department might be too hard pressed for assistance. Furthermore, fire department pumps are kept in readiness for use in case of fire. Damage might result from their common use.

It could not be expected that a city department such as the fire department would pump out cellars on request of the owner. In the case of industry disabled by flooded basements or engine rooms, it might be well for the city to pitch in and help.

The street department has pumps which could have been used during the last freshet to pump out mill basements, but for the fact that they were in use in regular work.

BIG "POISON PEN" PLOT DISCLOSED

Indictment of George Maxwell Expected to Lead to Others in New York

140 Wealthy Society People Alleged to Have Been Victimized by Clique

NEW YORK, May 12.—The grand jury which has indicted George Maxwell, president of the American Society of Composers, authors and publishers, for sending obscene missives through the mails, has evidence against eight other prominent members of a "poison pen clique" which has been alleged to have victimized 140 wealthy society people here, in Philadelphia, Buffalo, Pittsburgh and other cities, District Attorney Hanton today disclosed.

Eighty of the alleged victims already have testified before the grand jury which is still in session. Mr. Hanton revealed that their statements had led to the uncovering of 147 of the poison pen letters and to the discovery that many well-known families had been broken up, a man and a woman had died shortly after receiving particularly vicious missives and another woman had gone mad.

Maxwell's attorneys here announced that Maxwell, who is in Europe, had denied a denial of the charges. Maxwell had received several of the obscene letters from the alleged clique, said the attorneys. He will hasten home to face his accusers.

Allan A. Ryan, the financier, whose wife was named in letters he received and turned over to the district attorney, declared today she also would return from Europe and that he would prosecute the alleged writer of the letters if it took his entire fortune.

Among disclosures already made by Mr. Hanton were that a band of anonymous letter writers had been operating in New York since 1914, and that the victims included the late Enrico Caruso, the Countess of Santa Eulalia, who was the widow of John R. Steffen of Philadelphia, John Drew, the actor, and Albert Galatino, the banker. Divorce cases involving persons not named by the district attorney are now pending in the courts, he said.

The alleged poison pen clique's method, according to authorities, was to send letters to middle-aged women, endeavoring to entice them into affairs with members of the group. After several months, the writers, either because their methods failed or because they could not stand the intended victim, would send letters to the husbands, brothers or other male relatives of the women to whom they had written, linking their names in obscene and defamatory references to the names of the intended victims.

Members of the society which Maxwell headed say it is inconceivable that he could have been connected with such a plot. The letters Mr. Ryan turned over to the authorities, were received by Mrs. Ryan more than a month ago. All were typewritten and unsigned, but in the upper left corner of each were typed the name and addresses of several prominent bankers and clubmen of this city.

SHOT FIRED, BOY FELL PENNOCK BREAKS JINX IN FIRST START

Fake Murder Startles Class at Northeastern University—Witnesses Fail to Agree

BOSTON, May 12.—A professor of psychology at Northeastern university, has given his students something to think about. Their class was disrupted by a clash between two fellow students, a shot was fired, one of them fell and the other died. Professor Milton J. Schlegelbaum called on the class to write reports of everything that had occurred. Out of 50 students, all but three insisted they saw a revolver, some adding a flash, and some smoke. The student supposed to have fired the shot was fired in the rear of the room, out of sight.

It was the same with reports of other details of the incident, which took only three minutes. Descriptions of dress varied widely; retelling of the explanation that preceded the shooting were equally inconsistent. One student attempted to give the time exactly, saying he looked at his watch. He gave an hour out of the way and gave a date four days wrong.

Prof. Schlegelbaum stated the incident as a test of observation after he had taken the class to a courtroom where a witness stated positively he could describe everything that happened in a burglary that took three minutes.

POWER—The outfielder who went into the game unannounced takes the place of the player for whom he substituted and plays under his name. The manager of the team at bat has no choice for a protest.

He's Licked Everybody of His Size—But He's Mother's Boy

I'LL STILL BE A CHAMP TO MY MOTHER

Recited by BENNY LEONARD Lightweight Champion of the World—

It isn't a cinch, this being champ, And I mean it, honest I do—

If it was up to my mother and daddy As a fighter, I'd now be through.

But you know how it is when you get that dough,

For myself—say I don't care; But I've got a picture of mother and dad.

In a beautiful home somewhere In a palace of peace the rest of their lives

With nothing to worry about. When that dream comes true I want to tell you

That I'm ready to be knocked out. And I know that altho the title will go

With its glory from me to another, I'll tell you what—you can bet all you've got

I'll still be a champ to my mother.

HERMAN TIMBERG

By N.E.A. Service

NEW YORK, May 12.—He'll still be the champ to his mother!

When Benny Leonard was a mere kid of 30 years he won the lightweight championship of the world. And in its wake trailed those tantalizing twins—fame and fortune. Men—big and little—sought him out, eager to shake his hand.

Through it all Benny kept his head. He's 28 now and still the champ. The house was a little more suddenly devoted to Benny's position. They couldn't stand the pace. Their heads would swell in the dank air of popular fame.

But not Benny. The power behind the champ is his mother. Benny's devotion to his family is well known. It is one thing he will always talk about—his mother. She has been his closest friend. He's never too far away to telephone her—even from Los Angeles.

And tomorrow—Mother's Day—finds Benny closer to his mother than ever. A group of New York business men bound themselves together this year for the celebration of Mother's Day.

They invited Benny to join with them, and they never found a more eager candidate.

Each one has contributed liberally to a fund. Buttons were made which would be appropriate. The sponsors wanted to eliminate the commercial aspect of the day. They liked flowers, but knew that some florists boosted Mother's Day merely because it meant thousands of dollars for them.

And so they chose buttons, which were to be distributed free to all who might care to wear.

The champ is wearing one, in his heart as well as in his lapel.

The poem recited by him on the stage has even more feeling behind it than the words show.

He knows the public. He realizes that should some other boxer come along and take away his championship and its accompanying glory, most of the sports world will be booing him as he leaves the ring. They are even now clamoring for a knockout. That's the way it's always been, and always will be.

But when that time comes, Benny will lose his crown, but— He will still be the champ to his mother.

"Hunting Big Game in Africa With Gun and Camera" is going to startle folks whose only visualization of wild creatures is of the zoo or menagerie. It has been playing in Boston the past few days at $1.50 prices and had an extended run at the Lyric theatre in New York where it commanded $2.00 prices.

The big game presented is from one-third to two-thirds larger than the captive cousins in the menageries. Means have been found of plucking many of the larger wild animals in close-ups. Actual combats are shown and each hunt is a thrilling continuity from the first tracking to the stopping of the charging animal by Mr. Snow's rifle.

The story begins on the west coast of Africa, then South Africa is visited, native "bush" fashions and ceremonies are recorded, the Kimberly diamond fields are explored, and soon the grand safari starts via Mombasa towards the equator.

Old elephant trails constituted the only roads into the jungle. One of these led into the vast crater or bowl of an extinct volcano, where the party nearly lost their lives by an elephant stampede. Attacks on the camp by lions, leopards, hyenas and other prowlers were an almost nightly occurrence. When an ant army invaded, refuge was found only by placing the sleeping cots in the river.

There were many other hardships, privations and breath-taking escapes, but out of it all the Snow party emerged in 1922 with the most complete collection of museum specimens ever made and a series of pictures that for the first time portray the kingdom of beasts in masterly splendor and reality. This picture-story here after an engagement of three solid months in New York city, where it played to capacity audiences, averaged 25,000 a week.

Furthermore, the film is one of the most intelligently edited pictures ever shown. The subtitles are brief enough to be entertaining and at the same time informative. They never throw away valuable information for a joke. But on the other hand they do not tell the whole story and so make the plain pictures only where explanations are necessary.

Viola Dana never appeared in a more amusing role than she does in "The Five Dollar Baby," the new Metro photoplay which will be the second feature for the first part of the week. It is a screen version of Levin S. Cobb's short story which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. An enthusiastic audience greeted its first showing.

Mr. Cobb's story is placed in New York's Ghetto. It is a startlingly faithful reproduction of this famous quarter of the metropolis, and characters which take part in it are all clear-cut and carefully drawn types.

Viola Dana appears in the role of a girl who has been reared from infancy by a Jewish pawnbroker, Uncle Ben. She is shown at two periods of her life. First she appears as a girl of thirteen, continuing in mischief and always indulging in tummy pranks. Later, after her return from boarding school, she is seen as a charming miss, with a vivacious personality.

FINE TONIC FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

This Case In Lowell Proves That Building Up the Blood Will Strengthen the Nerves

If you want strong nerves you must make the effort yourself. You can help yourself by refusing to worry, by taking proper rest, sleep and vacations, by avoiding excesses and by taking out-of-door exercise. For medicinal take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the non-alcoholic tonic.

Mrs. Lizzie Seible of No. 21 Sawtelle street, Lowell, Mass., considers Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a splendid tonic and used them for nervousness. "I had no ambition for my household duties," and used them for nervousness. "I had very irritable, was all tired out and would wake up in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed. I had severe headaches which would get my nerves all unstrung. I lost flesh and color."

"Through a newspaper I learned of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after I had taken a couple of boxes I noticed my nerves were quieter and I could sleep well at night. I took four boxes at that time, and I have no hesitancy in recommending them for I know they helped me."

The blood can be built up so that it will increase the supply of needed elements to the wasted nerves and this is the only way the nerves can be reached. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic that especially builds up the nerves because they supply to the blood the elements that the nerves need. Many nervous disorders have yielded to this tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when other methods failed to give relief. They are certainly worth a trial.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by your own druggist or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, sixty cents per box by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Write today for free books on the blood and nerves—Adv.

BALTIMORE WOMAN'S MESSAGE TO MOTHERS

At 820 W. Hayward Ave., lives Mrs. Henry Johnson, who a few weeks ago wrote what may be termed a good message to all mothers. She said: "I have used Dr. Tru's Elixir for more than ten years and know it is good. She used Dr. Tru's Elixir, the Tru Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, to rid her children of worms. There is hardly a child but what needs Dr. Tru's Elixir, for they all usually have worms when growing up. Mrs. Johnson appreciates what Dr. Tru's Elixir accomplishes. Your children will be in better health through its use."

Symptoms to watch: Constipation, offensive breath, slow fever, biliousness, pains in stomach, red points on tongue, swollen upper lip, starting during sleep, fretful, troublesome dreams.

SOUTH ENDS ON LONG END—LAWRENCE HIGH BLANKS LOWELL HIGH

SOUTH ENDS WIN OVER BROADWAY RIVALS IN SECOND TWILIGHT LEAGUE GAME, SCORE 12 TO 2

Twelve hits including a triple and three doubles, by the sluggers on the South End team, caused the 12 to 2 downfall of the Broadway players. In the second Twilight League game of the season at the South common last night, Paton and Lawrence tied the task of stemming the sluggers in the winning camp, but the task was too great, and they called upon darkness to close the festivities of the unequal conflict.

Five innings of dull, uninteresting baseball, caused many of the fans to leave the clubhouse before hostilities were called off by the umpire. The South Ends, in the field with bright, snappy-looking uniforms, dispelling one of baseball traditions that new suits are a fool's errand. They certainly were a bad luck sign to the opposition. The game started off like a real match. Pitcher Paton, winning the first batter, Davis, hit walked A. Jenkins and shot a fast one against Dea's hide with two on and one. Dea's hide, Jenkins grounded out to the third sacker and Paton ended the inning with an out to the first sacker. Garrity had trouble in finding the location of the plate with his fast eyes at the start. He walked Lawrence in the first man to face him, but he forced Paton to ground out to the 3rd base-

"DOPE" RUNS TRUE TO FORM

Pre-Season Predictions Hold with Slight Reservation in Major Leagues

Boston Braves Halt Losing Streak and Take Reds Into Camp, 5 to 4

NEW YORK, May 12.—As the major league baseball season nears the end of its fourth week, all the pre-opening predictions, with a slight reservation on the Philadelphia Athletics in the American, and on the Cincinnati Reds in the National, are holding truer to form than in many years.

The New York Yankees are being fought desperately by Cleveland and Detroit for leadership in the junior circuit, and the New York Giants are out in front in the National, with Pittsburgh leading the wake. The failure of the Chicago White Sox might be taken as a failure of the experts but predictions concerning the Sox were largely hedged by "ifs."

Ten Home Runs in Game
The bombardment of long and heavy hitting that tore up the outer gardens yesterday, particularly at Philadelphia, where a new record of ten home runs was made, is an indication of the slugging that was anticipated. Cy Williams, Quaker center fielder, made three home runs, quite a feat, but not an all-time record. Williams now leads both circuits in home runs with 12. St. Louis also has had the Philadelphia players, 20 to 14.

Braves Turn on Reds
The Boston Braves shook off the jinx of the one-run margin losses by trimming Cincinnati 5 to 1. The Braves broke a bad streak of four games lost each by one run margins. Detroit now has the opportunity to do what Cleveland failed to do this week by trimming the Yankees. The Tigers lost to Washington again, 4 to 1, and fell back into a second place position. Cleveland, whose game with the Yankees was called off because of rain.

The Philadelphia Athletics also muffed another opportunity, after showing the promise and lost the game to the Browns, 14 to 3. Boston and Chicago were prevented from playing by rain.

Second accepted some hard hit chances
Pitcher Garrity got into a bad hole in the second inning, but over anxiety on the part of the Broadway hitters to seek the ball, enabled him to pull through with only one run chalked against him.

The umpires came in for the usual amount of crashing from the crowd, ruling his honor the ump is part of the fun at baseball games. The arbitrators satisfied the players with their decisions.

Daily looked good at first for the South Ends, but a wicked stick and a powerful arm, a creditable man, around the initial sack. The youngster shapes up like a real baseball player.

The Jenkins brothers were much in evidence with the willow. Davis also came through in style, getting a triple and a double in two chances. Fielding features were noticeable by 5th base. The South Ends closed the ball too far for the outfielders on the Broadway team, whereas the Broadway team failed to show any real hitting strength against Garrity.

MANTY DUE TODAY

N. E. Featherweight Champion Coming to Meet Billy Murphy Here Monday

Charley Manty is due to arrive here tonight, fully 48 hours in advance of his scheduled 10-round bout with Billy Murphy in Associate hall for the featherweight championship of New England. According to latest report from the title holder's manager, Johnny Miller of New Bedford, Manty is in superb shape for Murphy and is confident of leaving Lowell Monday night still in possession of the coveted championship. He escaped injury in his recent bout with Tommy Flanagan and nothing but a total collapse can prevent his appearance under Olympic club auspices Monday night.

In view of the fact that this big attraction has been thrice postponed, twice on account of Manty's poor condition and once because of Murphy's sickness, the fans are on edge for the go and anxious to see the much-touted Whaler in action against such a "clever" opponent as the Lowell featherer. It will be remembered that Manty defeated Staten Island Billy Murphy at the opening show of the Olympic club, but it is generally agreed that he will find Lowell Billy Murphy a much more difficult opponent.

Not only will local fans see one of the best bouts of the season when Manty and Murphy go to it, but they will be treated to an additional treat with Jimmy Bonas and Tipper Quinn in the semi final. These two gladiators fought it out at the last Olympic meeting. Despite the fact that they are both promising to be red hot, they are both fast, clever and fairly hard hitters. Two good preliminaries will open the evening's program.

Babe Ruth may or may not break the home run record during the season of 1923. In order to break it Ruth must make 60 circuit drives. I don't believe that he will be able to set a new mark.

My chief reason for believing that Ruth will not better his record with 60 circuit drives is the fact that with all pitchers are working on Ruth. Despite the fact that many of the writers do not fear Ruth as much as they once did, most of the managers still have a wholesome respect for Ruth's ability and insist the pitchers use great care in dispatching him to Babe.

The success that the pitchers of the New York Giants had in slowing up the big fellow has caused many American League pitchers to adopt the same tactics. The slow ball is a much harder ball to control than the fast one and the big fellow is refusing to go after the hard ball as he did in the world series, with the result that he is getting a great many bases on balls. There is one record that he seems certain to break.

As a result of the careful pitching that is being handed Ruth, the big fellow is losing his regularity with which he delivered in other years. Many of the experts are of the opinion that if Ruth doesn't hit home runs he will not get on base as much as he did last season.

Despite the fact that Ruth is not breaking any fences, it strikes me that the big fellow is going to be even more valuable to the Yankees than when he was making home runs. I don't think he will be such a big deal with the fans unless he keeps pressing the home-run record, but he is going to be of greater value to his team than his present style game.

Ruth is lighter than at any time during his major league career. The loss of about 20 pounds has made him more speed and better fielding. Already I have seen him make a half-dozen great catches on drives that would have been out of his range last season. He is much stronger than ever, and two of the first ten victories scored by the Yankees were made possible by some fine catches by Ruth, which cut off the bases needed by the opposition to decide the issue.

ASPIRANTS FOR TITLE MEET

Picturesque Careers Have Marked Progress of Participants in Today's Bouts

Willard, Johnson, Firpo and McAuliffe, Outstanding Figures in Milk Fund Card

Chief Interest Centers in Willard's Attempt to Stage a "Come Back"

NEW YORK, May 12.—(By the Associated Press).—Picturesque careers have marked the ascent of the heavyweight ladder by the four outstanding figures in the Milk Fund stadium, Jess Willard, Floyd Johnson, Luis Angel Firpo and Jack McAuliffe. All aspirants for the crown won by Jack Dempsey.

Willard, Willard, giant from the plains of Kansas, who answered the call for a "white hope" eight years ago, took the heavyweight title from Jack Johnson in Havana in 1915. He is now 40 years old and has been a champion for 10 years. He is now 40 years old and has been a champion for 10 years. He is now 40 years old and has been a champion for 10 years.

Floyd Johnson, the one of the younger crop of challengers, Johnson has climbed rapidly to the top within the year or more that he has been active in eastern rings. He knocked out Bob Fitzsimmons in a 10-round fight, and another over Fred Fulton, recently at Jersey City, but lost some prestige by his failure to last more than the 11th round in his fight with Johnson.

Luis Angel Firpo, Firpo, a national hero in his native Argentina, where he cut a wide swath through amateur and professional ranks, is the most picturesque of the present heavyweight crop. He is a native Argentine, and his first appearance in the United States was more than a year ago, bowling over several third raters in rapid succession and returned this year to knock out the veteran Bill Brennan. Under expert tutelage the cruiser edges have been taken off his cavernous style of fighting and he has quickly acquired scientific ability to reinforce his tremendous power. Numerous critics hail him as a second Jim Jeffries. He is 28 years old, weighs around 215, and stands well over six feet.

Jack McAuliffe, the one of the least known of the Milk Fund principals, is nevertheless rated highly by critics who have seen him train for his bout with Firpo. His record shows 15 knockouts out of 17 fights and a six-round decision over Floyd Johnson, but most of his conquests have been over little known opponents. He is a heavy boxer, possesses a good left hand punch, but has yet to prove ability to annihilate the type of punishment he will receive at the hands of Firpo. McAuliffe is 22 years old, weighs close to 200 and is six feet three inches tall.

LAWRENCE HIGH APPLIES COAT OF WHITEWASH TO LOWELL IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES, 3 TO 0

It has often been said that the element of uncertainty is the one paramount factor that makes the national pastime so thrilling and so popular with the fans. The truth of this assertion was clearly demonstrated at O'Sullivan park, Lawrence, yesterday afternoon when Jimmy Lawrence, Lowell high school nine succumbed to the rival Lawrence ball tossers to the surprising tune of eight runs to nothing in a game in which the local gladiators were able to secure but three unimpressive hits behind their star moundman, Gibbons.

Lowell's inability to connect at opportune times was a pleasing revelation to the down-river cohorts, who had anticipated much stronger opposition from an outfit reputed to be stronger and more capable of winning than any team sporting the red and gray for several years past. As events proved, what was foretold as a gripping struggle soon degenerated into a pitiful rout and Lowell suffered a stiff reverse.

To attribute the loss of the contest to Gibbons, the local twirler, who pitched an excellent game, would be an injustice to that individual. Although allowed for a decade of safe blows, "Gibbs" pitched fairly good ball and deserved better backing from his team-mates. He was relieved of his pitching responsibilities in the eighth and Littlefield took up the burden. But the damage had been done. Lowell was left with a record of one win and one loss, and a pitiful record of one win and one loss.

Summerfield worked to perfection in the box for the winners. Shooting over a southpaw assortment of slants, he kept the Lowell batters in complete control at all times. He struck out five prospective hitters and allowed but one base on balls, while his fellow players cooperated in splendid fashion and made themselves unapproachable with the Lowell hitters by intercepting balls labeled as hits. Higgins in left field for the Lawrence team caught a couple of beauties. Playing a deep left garden, he was forced on more than one occasion, to race quickly in order to catch the ball before it did to the satisfaction of Lawrence supporters. Lowell's outfield might have prevented a few hits had the players exhibited his example. Instead of allowing the ball to hit the ground and receive it on the bound, Lowell was also noticeably weak behind the bat. "Biddle" Carr, generally reliable, having an off-day with his arm. As a result of the Lowell catcher's heaves, five opponents stole second base and each occasion, opened the way to a score.

The left field wore board was decorated with a Lawrence run in the very first inning. Jordan, first up, was easy enough. He struck out, Higgins walked and went to second on a bunt. Willard, second up, was thrown out at third in attempting to stretch the theft to that sack. Higgins got a life on a slow roller and lumbered right into the arms of the Lawrence catcher. Carr, a fast one which took a mean hop and avoided Willard at short, the ball continuing into the left field garden.

Another marker was chalked up in the following stanza. Lahey was hit by a pitched ball and tore for second on the first ball pitched. He scored on the first ball pitched and scored a moment later when Twomey clipped Carr. Time, 1.40. Umpire, Wondleick.

Make THE Backyard Pay

Extension Horticulturist, United States Department of Agriculture

Children are told to eat carrots if they want color in their cheeks and to be strong and able to romp and play. Just how much there is to this is hard to say, but all the root crops are rich in vitamins and the elements that aid digestion. Carrots are rich in the coloring matter known as "carotene," which is also present in "green grass" and even the rich color to the cow's milk during the early summer. Radishes are effective for warding off scurvy and similar disorders and are eaten more as a salad than a true vegetable.

Root crops such as carrots, beets, parsnips and salsify yield large quantities of actual food from a small garden. Parsnips may be grown as an early spring crop in the north and used before the extremely hot weather of summer. In the north parsnips require the entire growing season for their development and may be left in the ground during the winter and to a certain degree improve with freezing.

The essentials for growing root crops are a deep, rich, well-drained soil, good seed, proper thinning and frequent shallow cultivation. None of the root crops with the possible exception of beets, can be transplanted successfully as the breaking of the tap root in transplanting causes them to grow rough and distorted. The proper method is to sow and pulverize the soil to 10 inches deep, working the fertilizer to the full depth of sowing, then sow the seeds where they are to grow and thin out the plants so that every plant left has room to develop. In the case of beets what appears to be a seed is really a seed "ball" containing one to three seeds, consequently beets usually come so much thicker than the gardeners expect. Carrot and parsnip seeds lose their vitality or power to grow very quickly and seed of last year's production should always be used.

When it comes to planting the beets, carrots and other root crops the soil which has been sponged and fertilized should be raked smooth and the little rows or furrows formed by means of the hoe handle or a rounded stick drawn along a tight line. The distance between rows may be about 18 inches for beets and carrots and at least 24 inches for parsnips and salsify. The seeds should not be covered more than 1 inch deep on sandy land and less on heavy soils, and the soil used for covering them should always be fine and mellow. If the soil is in the least dry it should be firmed over the seeds by laying a board on top of the row after the seeds are covered, then walking on the board.

Thinning the plants is the important part in growing all root crops. Carrots should be thinned twice, the first time to about one and one-half inches and later when the roots are large enough for use as "baby" carrots every other one can be removed. The same plan may be followed in thinning beets, the thinning being used as greens and as small table beets cooked and buttered.

Parsnips and salsify should be thinned to an even stand of three to four inches at one thinning. After thinning, the soil should be drawn around the remaining plants. Frequent shallow cultivation and irrigation during extremely dry weather are essential to the quick growth of all the root crops.

PLEASANT EVENING AT ALL SOULS' CHURCH

A record-breaking crowd attended the supper and entertainment at All Souls' church last night and were well repaid for their attendance. The supper, served in the parish house, was of the highest order and the arrangement of the small tables, seating four each, gave friendly groups an opportunity of sitting together.

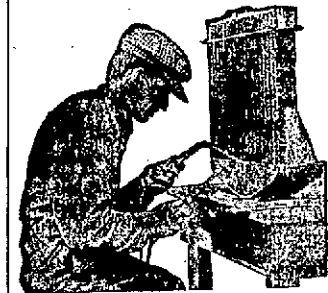

Following the supper, Edwin "Farkington's" one-act comedy, "The Ghost Story," was given by the members of the church. The story was fitted to the young people who gave it and it was well presented. The story is well known. A Harvard senior, home for his Easter vacation, tries to get an opportunity to propose to his girl, but she is always surrounded by a group of friends. As the time flies, he sees that immediate action must be taken or he will have to go back without accomplishing his desired end. He finally hits on the idea of scaring the friends away by telling a half-raising ghost story.

The result is quite different from what he expected and he goes back to school without accomplishing his purpose, although the girl aids him as much as she can.

Anita Ahlberg took the part of "Anna Severn" and Richard, Fletcher of "George." The group of friends were played by Walter Lindley, Donald McInnis, Barrett, Fisher, Richard Quimby, Priscilla Fox, Margaret Amiot, Katherine Priehard and Corinna Staples, and Dorothy Narden played the part of the maid.

Miss Edith Erskine directed the play, the scenery was arranged by Cheney and Harold Nickerson, the properties were under the direction of Katherine Baker and Joseph

TEXTILE FRATERNITIES HAVE CELEBRATIONS

The annual banquet of the Omicron Pi fraternity was held last night at their chapter house on Pawtucket street, with about 90 active chapter and alumni members gathered around the festive board.

Alumni members began to drift in to the chapter house early in the evening and for an hour prior to the time of the supper there was a steady renewal of old acquaintances.

The supper was prepared by the active members and the active members also served it. Following the supper, a short business meeting of the alumni of the fraternity was held, at which plans for the immediate future were made and other matters turned over to the trustees for recommendation. Officers for the coming year also were elected.

The Beta chapter of the Delta Kappa Phi fraternity also celebrated last night. A large number of the alumni of this chapter gathered at the chapter house on Mt. Vernon street during the late afternoon and early evening and engaged in the swapping of stories reminiscent of days when they attended the Moody street school. Lambert Sullivan, president of the local chapter, presided over the reception committee and as soon as the guests had all arrived, the active and inactive members journeyed down to Marie's restaurant where a banquet had been prepared for them. It was the 21st annual banquet of this chapter and the boys were out to make the most of it. As soon as the supper had been finished, the toastmaster, William Perkins, one of the alumni, called the meeting to order. A short business meeting was then held, the most important matter coming up for action being the discussion of plans for the formation of a Lowell Alumni chapter of the fraternity.

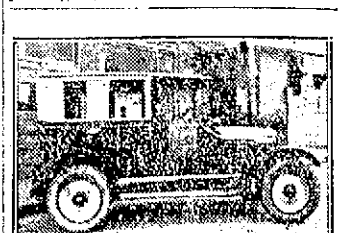

Following the business meeting, toastmaster Perkins called on several of the alumni for short talks and they responded cheerfully. Among the speakers of the evening was the retiring president, Lambert W. Sullivan, and the president-elect, Maurice A. Villeneuve.

Talent from Keith's circuit furnished an interesting entertainment during the evening and members of the fraternity also aided in the program. Among the professional entertainers were Joseph Thornton and Aleck Campbell, singers of catchy songs, accompanied on the piano by Everett Willey and on the banjo by Harry Swain.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Philip Canell, Maurice A. Villeneuve, Harold Goller, William Franks and Aleck Campbell.

Frank J. McCann, a well known and popular Lowell young man, has entered the contracting and building business and is at the present time located at 123 Allen avenue. Mr. McCann has had considerable experience in this work, being with Boston contractors and engineers for some years, while he has held a position in Boston as lieutenants superintendent of Boston. Mr. McCann will do general contracting and jobbing as well.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Owen Davis' Intensely Human Drama, "Dreams for Sale," Attraction at Opera House Next Week

"Dreams for Sale," that big human drama by Owen Davis which is being shown by the finest theater in the American stage, will be the attraction that will be presented at the popular opera house next week, starting Monday evening.

"Dreams for Sale" was originally produced at The Playhouse, in New York, by William A. Brady, with a distinguished cast. Mr. Owen Davis, the playwright, saw the presentation and with his wide knowledge of plays realized that here was an exceptional play for stock and so he waited for its release. But it was some time before this play left New York and then it had a long run on the road. However, last night this play was released for stock and Mr. Davis immediately bought it as he felt that it would be ideal for his two new leads.

The story of "Dreams for Sale" deals with a fight between two big business men in the Maine woods. They are both trying to secure certain rights to land in the Maine woods. Years before one of them has forbidden entrance to his house and has broken up a romance between the man and his sister. For years they have hated one another. Into this mesh of human emotions are twisted the daughter of one and the mother of the other. She is sided with them three a sturdy, red-blooded specimen of the best in American manhood. His future lies up with that of the little father, his heart lies to do with as he may see fit. With the consummate skill of a great writer Owen Davis has woven the threads of his story so that they provide two hours and a half of the greatest entertainment.

Because of the reputation that "Dreams for Sale" earned when it was playing at the Playhouse, New York, the management expects that there will be a big demand for seats and makes the suggestion that it will be well to secure tickets as early as possible in order that favorite seatings may be secured.

REAL ESTATE SALES

WILL HOLD CONCERT IN AUDITORIUM

The annual concert of the Girls' Glee club and the orchestra of the State Normal school will be held in the Memorial Auditorium on Friday evening, May 26, under the direction of Miles Inez Field Dampson, instructor of music at the school. The music department at the school is blessed with a large number of talented pupils and it has been decided that outside talent will not be necessary. The solo work will be done by three special students, Mrs. Florence Harris-Schroeder, soprano; Miss Doris Sweet, pianist; and Miss Catherine Eaton, violinist.

The first part of the program will consist of miscellaneous numbers, opening with "Hymn to the Night," arranged from Sonnet Op. 47, by Robert Owen, "Pans Angelicus," by Cesar Franck, will be given by the Glee club, assisted by Mrs. Harris-Schroeder. The second part of the program will be of the modern Russian school. Prominent among these will be a "Fantasy on a Russian Folk-Song" by Pjotritsch-Gaigars. This number has many opportunities for fantastic effects and is accompanied by piano and two violins.

Thomas Brown, of 215 Franklin street, has enlisted in the army at the local recruiting station for service in the 12th Infantry at Camp Devens, Brown, according to Sergeant Kimball, local recruiting officer, served during the war in the first war regiment and took part in several of the big battles.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 20

No sooner had Jack thanked his friend, the mystery man, than he heard a loud chattering and chirping. "What's that?" he asked. "Look ahead of you," replied Enny Meeny, "and you will see." And just a short distance away Jack saw a lot of birds in cages, hanging in front of a funny shaped store.

Jack watched the birds for a moment. Then he turned to Enny Meeny and said, "That's the only thing I don't like about the land of Miney Moe. You shouldn't cage those poor things up like that. Why don't you turn them free?" And instantly the cages flew open and away went the birds.

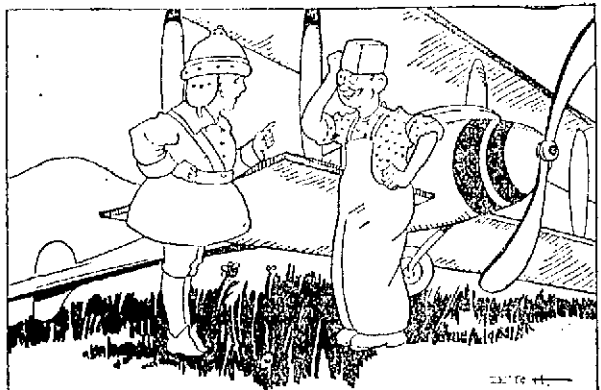

"Now, just think how much happier they will be," said Jack. But he suddenly was surprised when all the birds flew back to the perches in their cages. "I guess they don't want to be free," said Enny Meeny. "Oh, they would if you'd teach them to keep away from the cages," replied Jack. (Continued.)

SUDDENTLY NANCY HAD ANOTHER IDEA

When Nick flew away in his airplane and did not come back, Nancy began to worry. "I can't imagine what has happened," she said to the Tinker Man. "He must have been taken prisoner," said the Tinker Man. Which was exactly what had happened, for Nick's airplane had been shot down by the tin soldiers and he had been put into prison and his Magic Shoes taken away. "I'll have to go and look for him," said Nancy. "I'll be a spy," suggested the Tinker Man. "I have another airplane here that was intended for the tin soldiers. But they haven't got it yet and you may use it if you wish to go and look for Nick. But you must be careful not to let them shoot at you or you'll either fall and be killed or taken prisoner like Nick," said the Tinker Man. So she took off her Red Cross nurse uniform and the Tinker Man gave her an aviator's uniform—cap, goggles and all, and soon she was learning all about flying.

"I think you'll do now," said the Tinker Man. "You may go and hunt for your lost twin." Suddenly Nancy had another idea. "Have you got any gas bombs?" she asked. "Not dangerous ones," answered the Tinker Man. "They are in the store house. I'll drop them out of my airplane and the tin soldiers will be gassed before they can put on their gas masks. Then I can land and look for Nick and let him out of prison if he is there."

"All right, I'll get you some sleeping bombs," said the Tinker Man. "They only put people to sleep and don't really hurt them."

STARTLING DISCLOSURES

Promised by Mrs. Hayes, Indicted for Forgery, When
Charges Are Tried

Woman From Tombs by Furnishing Bond

NEW YORK, May 12.—A prominent person in Boston, whom officials decline to name, is reported to have gone security for Mrs. Myrtle Bowman Hayes of that city and saved her from the Tombs after she was indicted last night by the grand jury which had furnished $10,000 bonds when she was charged with forging the name of Charles M. Schwab to a $25,000 note.

Today Mrs. Hayes was jubilant, promising she would make some startling disclosures when the charges against her were tried. Her brother, J. R. Bowman, who helped her get bail, said she had known Schwab since she was 20, and would prove she had not forged his name. The little woman of 47, who was born in Dallas, Tex., came to New York at the age of 15 to become a milliner and later was promoter of the Hotel Chatham venture at Boston, faced imprisonment for three hours last night.

Her bondsmen, the Detroit Fidelity & Surety Co., obtained a "surrender piece" in general sessions yesterday, which authorized them to arrest their client, incarcerate her and withdraw their bond.

Some time after midnight, at the end of a period when a score of telephone and telegraph messages had been dispatched from Mrs. Hayes' apartment it was announced that satisfactory security had been secured and the bonds would be continued.

VESPER COUNTRY CLUB

Meeting of Members to Discuss Fire and Erection of
New Club House

Notices are being sent out today calling a special meeting of Vesper Country Club members at Liberty Hall, Memorial Auditorium, next Wednesday, to discuss the fire that destroyed the main club building Thursday afternoon and to decide upon what action shall be taken toward the erection of another building and the provision of temporary accommodations this summer.

A decision to call a special meeting was reached yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the executive committee called by President Harry G. Pollard and held in the directors' room at the Central Savings bank.

Much already has been done to clarify the chaotic atmosphere that naturally existed immediately after the fire. Oil burner stoves have been set up in the old bungalow and meals will be served tomorrow in the room formerly used by the men.

It is now believed that the old bungalow will be renovated and improved so as to allow it to be used as a golf locker house for women this summer. Improvements would include the installation of new shower baths and a kitchen to take in the space formerly occupied by the men's lavatory. Sleeping quarters for male employees of the club have been laid out in one end of the bungalow and the women athletes are using the former bath house in the rear of the main building.

The executive committee desires to have a full discussion of future plans, however, before any actual steps are taken and for this reason has called the special meeting for next Wednesday evening.

It is not believed that the fire will have any effect upon the Massachusetts amateur golf tournament to be held at the club the last of June, although this matter will be taken up with the state golf committee by Thomas Southam, representing the Vesper club.

Probably no plans decided upon will be potent enough to include the erection of any quarters for the accommodation of non-resident members this summer, but this too is a phase of the matter to come under discussion at the special meeting.

Home Coal Co., one ton New England coke, to be delivered to home; Douglas & Co., $1; E. C. Pearson, $11; Wadsworth, Howland & Co., 1 gallon varnish; Lovell Polish Co., bottle furniture polish; Harrington House, 1 silver holder; Paul & Co., mayonnaise dressing; Sunlight Telegram, one year's subscription; Cole's Inn, five-pound box assorted chocolates; Bartlett & Dow, muffin pan; Marion studio, order for one dozen photographs; E. W. Douglas, $2; Harvey Catering Co., Town Talk Tartar sauce (three jars); Davis & Sargent, $2; John J. Hogan, $1; Adams Hardware Co., food chopper.

The baby show, which featured the afternoon session of the exposition, attracted many mothers with their offspring and 320 babies were registered with the examining board of physicians. Nurses of the Lowell Guild, board of health and school partnership were on hand to assist the doctors and each child examined was given a certificate according to the "Better Babies" plan. Miss McNevin of the Guild was in charge and the physicians who did the examining were Dr. Edward O. Taber, Dr. Francis A. Finnegan, Dr. Warren Sherman, Dr. Theodore A. Stamas and Dr. Charles Rhanges.

The judges of the contest were Mrs. Edward O. Taber, Mrs. Elmore I. MacPhie and Mrs. John H. Johnson.

Girls' beauty contest: First prize, $5, Mae Elaine Reno (Mrs. Alfred Reno, North Chelmsford); second prize, $3, Gloria Rhanges (Mrs. Charles Rhanges, 264 High street); third prize, $2, Barbara Ryan (Mrs. Arnold Ryan, 90 St. street).

Most perfect girl: First prize, $5, Gloria Rhanges (Mrs. Charles Rhanges, 264 High street); second prize, $3, Cecilia Annas (Mrs. Henry Annas, 10 West street); third prize, $2, Margaret and Grace Burles, 134 West street.

"SELF-FORGETFULNESS" THEME OF SERMON

"Self-Forgetfulness" was the theme elected by Rev. Percy Dilling of Passaic, N. J., at the opening of the Saturday sessions of the 32nd annual conference of the Primitive Methodist church delegates, who are meeting at the Matthews Memorial P. M. church, executive sessions limited to delegates followed the morning devotional exercises.

Appointment of various committees were made at the business meeting. Rev. C. H. Kershaw and A. Hale to the committee on appeals and complaints; Rev. C. H. Kershaw, Rev. J. Gorton, and Rev. J. P. Pringle, book and publishing; Rev. C. H. Kershaw, Rev. W. T. Blackley, Rev. J. Gorton, Rev. R. Acornley, A. Lamond and J. Talbot; conference trustees, A. Humphries, secretary and treasurer; W. B. Taylor, A. Hestford, Rev. E. Carson, J. T. Griffiths, D. Hodgins and E. Brierly.

Rev. W. Taylor, speaking to the delegates, emphasized the importance of the conference and the need of the people's society. It was also voted to start a drive for $15,000 for the foreign missions. The need of evangelism was also brought out by the speaker.

Two grandsons of the late N. W. Matthews, pastor of the First Primitive Methodist church, will unveil the Memorial tablet in front of the church on Gordon street, Sunday afternoon. The tablet will be placed in the south tower of the church following the exercises, which will start at 2 o'clock. Rev. Arthur M. Butterfield will have charge of the program. An eulogy will be delivered on the late Rev. Nathaniel Matthews by Rev. John Pringle, and on Frederick Matthews by Tom Brierly.

Tonight the conference is open to the public will be held at the church, starting at 8 o'clock. Sessions will continue through Sunday and Monday.

Louise Vorek (Mrs. John J. Vorek, 16 Watson street). Second prize, $4, Paul and Ruth Timmins (Mrs. Fred Timmins, 25 Princeton street). Third prize, $2, Gabriel and Cecile Blanchard (Mrs. Francis Blanchard, 33 Second avenue).

Boys' Beauty Contest: First prize, $5, Melvin Perry (Mrs. Blanche Perry, 108 Lincoln street). Second prize, $3, Donald Charles (Mrs. James Charles, 111 1/2 street). Third prize, $2, Norman Goggin (Mrs. Stanley Goggin, 133 Hampshire street).

Pretty Small Baby: First prize, baby carriage by M. E. Gouldin Co., Francis G. Skinner (Mrs. George Skinner, 425 Chaffin street).

The exposition opened its doors at 10 o'clock this forenoon and the exhibits will not close until 1 o'clock tonight. Before the final hour arrives it is expected the grand attendance total will reach 60,000 for the four days.

The contractors' association will attempt to auction the bungalow tonight and already it has been agreed that to build one similar to it would cost $300.

The following statement has been given out by the Lowell Contractors' association as a preliminary method of expressing its appreciation of the whole-hearted support and co-operation accorded the Home Beautiful exposition and the vast amount of effort that was responsible for its unequalled success.

DISCUSS OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

The observance of Memorial day and the annual tribute to veterans, was the chief business of the various committees of the American Legion which met at the quarters in Memorial Auditorium last night, under the leadership of Commander Joseph Molloy. The chairman of the various committees in charge of the legion activities in connection with the Memorial day observance reported progress.

Indications are that the legion will be represented by a large group of marchers in the G. A. R. parade Memorial day. The observance will open with the annual exercises of the G. A. R. to be held in the First Congregational church. The legion as a result of an invitation from the G. A. R. is assisting in this service, vowing to abandon plans for a Sunday celebration. Very Rev. Lawrence F. Tigue, O. M. E., will be the celebrant of the mass on the South Common, Memorial day morning. A well known clergyman has been secured to speak.

Masses for the day will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning at the First Congregational church, the legion as a result of an invitation from the G. A. R. is assisting in this service, vowing to abandon plans for a Sunday celebration. Very Rev. Lawrence F. Tigue, O. M. E., will be the celebrant of the mass on the South Common, Memorial day morning. A well known clergyman has been secured to speak.

His opportunity in promoting the mass has been received from Superintendent of Parks John W. Kerman, Superintendent of Public Buildings Francis A. Connor, Agent H. J. Williams of the school department and many others. Mrs. William Merrill will have charge of the altar decorations. She will also have charge of the seating of the guests for the service. The legion as a result of an invitation from the G. A. R. is assisting in this service, vowing to abandon plans for a Sunday celebration. Very Rev. Lawrence F. Tigue, O. M. ## MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. Guy W. Kinney and Miss Cecelia Titterton took place May 9th, the ceremony being performed at the parsonage of the Immanuel Baptist church by Rev. Daniel J. Hatfield. The bride wore white silk crepe with veil and wreath of lilacs of the valley and carried bridal roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Edith Kinney, a sister of the groom, wore gray crepe de china and carried sweet peas. The best man was Mr. Herbert Titterton, a brother of the bride. After an extended honeymoon trip to New York the couple will make their home in Portland, Me.

cess of which is already assured, has grown and will continue to grow. To the public, for its generous patronage we wish to extend our sincere thanks, and hope that the last day will bring no diminution of interest.

We have honestly and conscientiously tried to give the public of Lowell something which would be of some use and which would be of lasting benefit. We believe we have succeeded.

In this success, however, we must not forget, the assistance which so many people and so many organizations have so generously given, such as the Boy Scouts, and others. At the present time, it is impossible to compile a complete and accurate list, so that a complete thank each individually. But we can do so, we wish all to know, exhibitors, contributors in the building of the exposition, and all others, we are extremely grateful to them for their whole-hearted and cordial co-operation.

ANNUAL FARMERS' BALL BY THE C. Y. M. L.

Grotesque, original, and attractive, describe the varied costumes worn by competitors for prizes at the 10th annual Farmers' ball of the C. Y. M. L. Young Men's League, held at Associated Men's hall last night. The marchers in the line of wearing apparel, Colonial fashions, carrying themselves with dignity and arrogance, rubbed elbows with hood carriers, rubes and baby carriage pushers.

Rose Peague, dressed as a fairy, was awarded the prize for having the prettiest costume. Mrs. Hens Forkey appearing as a Colonial dame, won the most original award, and Helen Keefe, carrying a bird cage, which housed a bottle of the stuff prohibited by the 18th amendment, was given the funniest costume prize.

Raymond Coffman as a coach carrier won the original prize for men, Thomas Moelan as a Colonial gentleman the nearest, and Martin Brady in a night shirt roll, the funniest award. The judges were Francis Roane, Rev. Dr. McGarry and John Reardon.

The guests of the evening were: Rev. John J. McGarry, D.C.L., pastor of St. Patrick's parish, and Rev. Thomas J. McDonough, chaplain of the organization.

Music for the dancing, which was enjoyed by a capacity audience, was furnished by Miner-Doyle's orchestra. The committee responsible for the success of the ball were as follows:

BACK FROM CONVENTION

Chamber of Commerce Secretary Returns From Big
New York Convention

Secretary Manager George F. Wells of the chamber of commerce returned last night from the annual convention of the United States chamber of commerce held in New York this past week and he stated that it was the most wonderful entertainment and convention he ever attended. The main subject of the convention was "Transportation," and Secretary of Commerce Herbert B. Hoover gave an exceptionally

GEORGE F. WELLS
Secretary-Manager

Interesting talk on this subject last Tuesday evening in the Hippodrome.

The headquarters of the convention was in the Copple-Plaza hotel, and meetings were held in the Hippodrome and in the Metropolitan Opera House as well. One of the big entertainment features was a show given in the Hippodrome Wednesday evening. The whole show that had been on there, previous to last Monday, was hired back for the night and Will Rogers, Gallagher and Shean, and several other noted entertainers also did their bit for the entertainment of the delegates.

Another big feature was the trip up the Hudson to West Point on Friday; 3000 delegates out of the 6000 attending the convention took this trip on a specially chartered steamer. The delegates gave several exhibitions for the delegates, including a military drill, an athletic drill, and at the close of the day, the Cadets, 15 companies strong, were reviewed by the delegates.

The entertainment committee was the Merchants' association of New York city and they collected $100,000 for the entertainment of the 5000 delegates.

Discusses Corporal Punishment

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 12.—"If you won't prohibit capital punishment then you should at least require that the whipping master love his charge," William Jennings Bryan told the Florida legislature in an address. He referred to arguments advanced in the voluminous debate of the last few weeks in consideration of convict reforms that since parents are permitted to whip their children, there was no reason why the lash should be abolished for convicts. It is too great a temptation to place on any man, Mr. Bryan said, to give him the absolute authority over his fellow man in whom his only interest is that of getting value received in work for the "money he paid for his body."

Death Due to Negligence of Engineer

SALEM, May 12.—Judge Robert W. Hill in an inquest report filed today, on the death of Freeman R. Chase of Danvers, crushed to death between a shifting engine and a freight car in the Salem freight yards on March 17, finds that Chase came to his death "through the unlawful act and negligence of William E. Punchard, the engineer of the shifter" and that Punchard should be tried on a charge of manslaughter because of gross negligence in backing his engine onto an open switch without first determining whether or not it was open.

Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan Resigns as City Solicitor and Mayor Names Patrick J. Reynolds

Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan, city solicitor since the inauguration of Mayor John J. Donovan, today resigned his office and Patrick J. Reynolds, son-in-law of the mayor, has been appointed to succeed him and will qualify for the position next Monday.

Mr. O'Sullivan's resignation was tendered to the mayor on March 26, to become effective on April 1, but more than a month has elapsed since the date it was to have become operative. Because he could not agree with the mayor's message to the city council on March 12, which accompanied his veto of the 1923 salary ordinance, calling among other things for an increase of $200 for the solicitor, is given by Mr. O'Sullivan as his reason for asking for the acceptance of his resignation.

Mr. O'Sullivan requested a salary increase of $1500 and although he was

Renault, Drake and Herman Also Win Bouts in Big Heavy-Weight Boxing Show, Attended By 60,000 in New York Stadium

RINGSIDE, May 12.—Close to 60,000 persons, it was estimated, were in the Yankee Stadium at 3 o'clock this afternoon when the first preliminary to the all-star heavyweight charity show, a four-round bout between Harry Drake, of England, and Joe McCann, of Newark, N. J., was called.

Drake Defeats McCann
Harry Drake, of London, England, received the judges' decision over Joe McCann of Newark, N. J. in the first bout of four rounds.

Herman Knocks Hetch
"Tiny Tim" Herman, of Omaha, beat Al Hetch, of New York, in the eighth and last round of their bout. Herman staggered Hetch with a left to the chin and then showed rights to his jaw. Hetch attempted to arise at the count of nine, but was too weak and was counted out. He had cut Herman's left eye with a straight left in the fourth round and Herman was covered with blood. Hetch weighed 265½ pounds and Herman 215½.

Renault Beats Fulton
Jack Renault, of Coshram, weighing 190½, was awarded the contest with Fred Fulton, the Minnesotan who weighed 211½, in the fourth round of their 10 round match. The referee claimed Fulton had fouled Renault with a left swing. Renault had the better of the fighting until the time the foul was called.

Round 1—Renault rushed at Fulton, swinging heavy rights for the head. They fought slowly and ineffectively at close quarters. Renault evaded Fulton's long left and played rights to his stomach. Fulton opened an onslaught over Renault's left eye.

Round 2—Renault hooked lefts and rights to body and head, shaking Fulton. Fulton fell against the ropes from a right to the jaw. Heavy body punches and straight rights hit the jaw jaw. Renault's knees bending in the round ended.

Round 3—Renault continued his heavy assault. Fulton rallied slightly staying off Renault with long lefts to the head. A straight right brought blood to Fulton's nose.

Round 4—Fulton landed his first heavy punch, a right to the jaw. Renault parried Fulton's head with both hands. Renault fell to the floor claiming a foul and the referee awarded the decision to him.

Firpo Wins by Knockout
Louis Angel Firpo scored another spectacular victory today when he knocked out Jess McAulliffe 11 of 15 rounds in the third round of their 15 round match. Firpo ended the week's event's heavy weight aspirations with a terrific left to the jaw that sent him down for the full count shortly after the round had opened.

McAulliffe came to grief quickly after an impressive start in the first round. Firpo seemed puzzled at first by his opponent's shifts style of boxing, but toward the end of the second round began to drive the Detroit boxer to cover with a rain of powerful rights and lefts.

FIGHT RESULTS AT A GLANCE

Drake wins decision over McCann, four rounds.
Herman knocks out Hetch in sixth round.
Renault wins over Fulton on foul in fourth.
Firpo knocks out McAulliffe in the third round.
Willard knocks out Johnson in the 12th round.

McAulliffe blocked his punches. His lefts took a heavy toll to the neck and head as he backed out of Firpo's reach. They were striking at a fast pace in the round ended.

The Final Bout
The crowd's whistles and cheers were at their loudest when the final bout between Jess Willard, of Philadelphia, and John Johnson, of Kansas, opened the year's last night of the fight season.

Willard's long lefts and Johnson's right punches were the main feature of the bout. Willard's punches, the harder Johnson fought, the harder Johnson fought.

Round 1—Willard attacked viciously, knocking Johnson's head with rights and lefts. Rights and lefts to head and body staggered Johnson. Willard landed a straight right over Johnson's left eye.

Round 2—Johnson punched Willard's left with rising rights at close quarters. Willard's punches, several of which fell short, Johnson's body did not seem to bother Willard, but the Kansas' wind did appear a bit good.

Round 3—Johnson punched awkwardly and took many heavy straight rights to the face. He hooked Willard with a right which fell short. Johnson was wild and Willard took advantage of this to rest. Willard took a storm of rights and lefts to the face and then as Johnson and Willard took the offensive, Johnson took more appropriate and right punches with one exception.

Round 4—Johnson's head was rocked from a right hook. He came down from a right punch. He was out at once. Johnson fell to the floor, claiming a foul and the referee awarded the decision to him.

Round 5—Johnson hooked a hard right to Willard's head and lefts to his body. Willard's long lefts and Johnson's right punches were the main feature of the bout. Willard's punches, the harder Johnson fought, the harder Johnson fought.

With Success of Exposition Already Assured Big Crowds Flock to Auditorium

With its unqualified success already assured to a degree far beyond the fondest hopes of its sponsors, the Lowell Home Beautiful Build Your Own Home Exposition has reached its fourth and final day at the Memorial Auditorium. The exposition doors were opened at 12 o'clock this forenoon and will not close until 11 o'clock tonight. When a check-up of tickets has been made it is expected the attendance for the four days will reach the unprecedented local figure of 60,000.

Tonight the auctioning of the attractive bungalow, which has been the outstanding feature of the many splendid exhibits will be the last feature of the exposition.

Visitors this forenoon gave a clear idea of the size of the crowds that will flock to the Auditorium before nightfall and as large as were yesterday's throngs while the baby show and public wedding were in progress, today's patronage is expected to establish new records.

A crowd which rivaled in size that which recently thronged the streets of London to watch the baby show and public wedding were in progress, today's patronage is expected to establish new records.

It may stand forever as Lowell's biggest wedding, for a conservative estimate of the crowd placed it at 5000.

$150,000 INVOLVED IN REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS MADE PUBLIC HERE TODAY

Property transfers totalling approximately $150,000 were reported today by Lowell real estate dealers.

In reporting the sale of the J. J. Sheehan property in Central, Mill and Richmond streets and the transfer of a four-tenement block in Grand street to Lawrence men, Edward J. Smith ran his week's gross sales to nearly a quarter of a million dollars, which embraces the $90,000 sale of the Demers property a few days ago.

From the office of E. Gaston Campbell came the announcement that today he sold to Ambrose Vigeant, well known marketman, all of the store and tenement property at 560-566 Merrimack street and 21-23 Cabot street for a price in the neighborhood of $60,000.

The sale of the J. J. Sheehan property through the office of Mr. Smith, included the transfer of 17 tenements and four stores to Alex Brown of Lawrence at a reported price of $30,000; two six-tenement blocks in Mill and Richmond streets to Louis Marshall of Lawrence, for $17,500 and a three-tenement block at 11 Richmond street to Marshall for $5000. The four-tenement block at 138-140 Grand street, owned by John Bourke was purchased by R. Kaplan for a sum said to be in the vicinity of $2000.

The above sales, with the $90,000 Demers estate transfer, give Mr. Smith a record amount of business for the week and comprise one of the largest real estate turnovers in recent months.

The Merrimack and Cabot street properties sold by Miss Anna Tasker to Ambrose Vigeant through the office of E. Gaston Campbell will result in extensive improvements and alterations and the ultimate establishment there of a large and modern market.

Over 7500 square feet of land changed hands with the sale of the buildings. This property has been in the James Tower family for nearly a century and today's sale is the first transfer from the estate for 50 years.

Determined to Curb Extremists

SOFIA, May 12.—Government measures to repress the activities of Macedonian revolutionary organizations have been carried out without serious incident, and many suspects have been arrested. Even the newspapers opposed to the government policy comment favorably on the ministry's determination to curb the extremists.

LONDON, May 12.—The Bulgarian legation in London today discredited the reports of revolutionary disturbances in Bulgaria, although the officials were without direct information of any kind. They expressed the opinion that the reported disorders were confined to Macedonia and had not extended to Sofia, where the Stamboulsky government is securely entrenched. Rumors of internal trouble in Bulgaria circulated in Constantinople, it was said, were inspired by the country's enemies.

Demonstration Against British Note

MOSCOW, May 12.—(By the Associated Press)—All Moscow's factories and government institutions were closed this morning to permit the employees to take part in a great demonstration against the British note. Surging crowds early began to fill the streets of the city. The intent of the demonstrators seemed to be peaceful, but it appeared evident they meant to make the demonstration an impressive one.

Wool Growers Hold Clips for Higher Price

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Wool growers in western states are reported by the department of Agriculture to be holding their clips for higher prices although some states report 75 to 90 per cent of their clip sold or under contract at prices ranging from 35 to 55 cents a pound. Sales have been made of approximately 80 per cent of the Arizona clip, 75 per cent of the Oregon, 66 per cent of the Utah, 90 per cent of the Washington and 55 per cent of the Wyoming wools. Sales in other range wool producing states are reported at 30 per cent or less of the estimated clips.

To Hand Note to German Ambassador

LONDON, May 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Great Britain's note to Germany will be handed to Dr. Schinner, the German ambassador, tomorrow. Copies already have been dispatched to France and Belgium. The whole tenor of the note is friendly but firm. The main feature is a plea to Germany to make a more generous offer and thus re-establish negotiations for a settlement of the Ruhr question among the allies. The note does not refer to American participation in the reparations settlement nor to the appointment of an international arbitral commission.

Three Young Caribou Swept to Death

DAWSON, Y. T., May 12.—A dramatic spectacle was witnessed by hundreds of persons yesterday when millions of tons of ice swept past the city following the breakup. In the midst of the moving mass could be seen three young caribou. They were swept to their death in a jam. They were believed to have been survivors of a herd of several hundred which attempted to cross the Yukon river just as the ice broke.

CELEBRATE MOTHER'S DAY IN SPIRIT

By N. E. A. Service
PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Observe Mother's Day, in spirit, not in mere ostentation.
This is the plea being made by the Mother's Day International association.

ANNA JARVIS, FOUNDER OF MOTHER'S DAY

As the whole world prepares to celebrate the beautiful new international holiday.

Charges of profiteering by florists seeking to capitalize Mother's Day have been met with a response that doing something for mother's joy, not mere flower wearing, is the object. The association is opposed to paying outrageous prices for white carnations, according to its president, Anna Jarvis, founder of Mother's Day.

"There is only one thing important this day of days," says Miss Jarvis. "That is to remember mother."

"Go home and see her if you are away in another town. Take her some joy. If you can't do that, write her a special delivery letter or telegram to reach her Mother's Day."

"That is what Mother's Day means—remembrance of mother."

Meanwhile, observance has spread to all parts of Europe and to Japan, China, Africa and Palestine.

WATCH THE SLEEVES

If there is a sleeve, watch it. It is doing many peculiar things this season.

Take, for instance, the one of the dress illustrated. It is loose and fastened with a single button so that the elbow and arm can be seen either in motion or at a standstill.

This is just one variation of the loose, flowing sleeve. There are many other sleeves that seem to be a more graceful flutter on the arm.

The bell sleeve, the somewhat subdued Mandarin sleeve, the monk's sleeve and the slit sleeves of all varieties have come to help us through the hot weather months.

FEMALE ROLES IN "THE WITCHING HOUR"

"The Witching Hour" by Auguste Thomas, which is to be produced by the local council, Knights of Columbus on May 21 draw out of the great public interest in telepathy. Now a four-act drama, it was originally a one-act play, being built up from time to time by the author.

Clay Whipple, a young architect accidentally murders a man because of a hereditary aversion and fright of a certain cat's eye scarf pin. As the author says "To merely report the murder and describe the prisoner is not enough, the audience must see the occurrence and must know the individual, also it must know him enough to be interested in him; and know him in a way that will make them like him. That his mother loves him is not sufficient. To make the interest deeper it is best to give him a sweetheart, who shall also suffer through his trouble; and by our sympathy for her give us an additional emotional stir."

"Again, every force in the theatre is unconquered until it is personified; therefore, we must carry through the play a representative of that civil law that is opposed to our boy. This representative is our prosecuting attorney. As an officer of the law his opposition to a criminal is logically enough; but it is stronger when the personal equation also comes into play; this rule invites us to make our exponent of civil law not only a prosecuting attorney but a rival for the boy's sweetheart."

Since it was the purpose of the author to wind a story about the then current belief in telepathy and hypnosis, both are dominating factors in the play.

Female roles are played by Mrs. Alice Dacey Delmore, who plays Mrs. Alice Campbell, sister to Jack Brookfield, sporting man and gambler, and in whose home the plot of the story is laid, and by Miss Mary Casey, who plays Miss Viola Campbell, sweetheart of Clay Whipple. Mrs. Delmore is well known in local musical and dramatic circles having most recently appeared in the Girls City club presentation. Miss Casey, now attending school in Boston, is a protégée of Miss Mary Joyce of the high school under whom she started in one of the annual high school plays. As the old saying goes, "tell the world loves a lover." The audience will more than love Miss Casey in her new role. Miss Hilda Noonan figures prominently as Mrs. Helen Whipple, mother of Clay.

LOWELL PEOPLE AND CHURCHES TO JOIN IN OBSERVANCE OF MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY

Tomorrow will be nationally observed as Mother's Day and it has become a custom to wear a flower in her honor or remembrance—a red one if she is living, and a white one if she is dead.

The day is not restricted to individual observance, however, for many churches will devote a portion of the morning service, at least, to mothers and in a number of instances locally, especially prepared programs have been arranged.

Through all ages a mother's love has been the world's most priceless jewel. Through days of happiness and adversity it has overruled all else beside. It has come into glorious reality with the first quickly drawn breath of a new born babe and has glowed like a great, all-consuming fire until earthly cares have been put aside. It matches in its intensity, unswerving in its loyalty, sacrificial to the point of death itself and has and always will be the beaconlight for all mankind.

Mother never has been false to the faith and adoration of a child and no word in any language or tongue is so symbolic of those things for which the Christ came into the world and left it again that all men might be free.

Tomorrow the world kneels in adoration and humbly tries to recompense for some of the things a mother's love has wrought—a love which is matchless, unabating and everlasting.

Take onto a floured board, roll to one-fourth inch thickness and cut into squares three inches long and three inches wide. On one-half of each square put a spoonful of sausage meat, fold over the other half, press the edges together and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven.

This is a Dutch recipe and is an excellent supper dish. It may be combined with a salad on wilted lettuce which is made by mixing bacon, finely chopped, the fat, vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper, and pouring it hot over the lettuce.

To Achieve Grace Keep Away From the City and Imitate Nature

MISS AGNES KALMAN RUSH, AND (INSET) IN ONE OF HER PRESCRIBED DANCING POSES.

By A. H. FREDERICK
N. E. A. Service Writer
SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—If you would be graceful, beware of the city. For the city is the greatest enemy of feminine form and charm.

This is the warning and charge issued by Miss Agnes Kalman Rush, teacher of artistic dancing and lecturer on gracefulness for women.

"Woman's grace lies in curves," says Miss Rush. "But the modern city is all straight lines, sharp angles and squares."

"Rigidity, initiative, one tendency is to follow that which we see most of the city. Unknowingly we more and more pattern ourselves upon its plan of ungraceful lines and angles."

"American women of the pioneer days lived right with nature. It was from their surroundings that they acquired their poise, and naturally it was graceful, patterned as it was upon curving grasses, gently rounded trees, the light movement of the butterfly."

"It is to such models as these that we must look for salvation from ungracefulness."

"But merely to bend like a tree is not enough. A woman must bend like a tree because, like a tree, she is a thing of curves, and curves bend gently, gracefully."

Miss Rush cites, as examples of gracefulness which will restore grace, the swaying trees, the poppy moving in the breeze, the caterpillar slowly creeping upward, the water lily floating upon the ripples of a pond.

She explains them as follows:

Poppy Exercise
Stand in a erect but relaxed (not strained) position, with heels together and feet placed naturally. Then think of your head as a heavy poppy head and drop it forward slowly until the chin touches the chest. Now the wind starts to blow gently, and sways the head toward the right, while the neck does not turn, and so on around a complete circle. The body follows, as the poppy stem follows, only so much as necessary to allow a graceful swaying of the head. This should be done six times and then repeated with head in the opposite direction.

Still thinking of the poppy, imagine the wind blowing more strongly, until it has swayed the head and part of the stem, then the stem itself, being represented by the empire waist line. Then sway as before.

Now the wind is blowing strongly from a point in back of you. It blows you forward at the waist; the head hangs naturally and loosely as nearly as possible down as possible; the arms fall forward limply. For this exercise the feet must be about a foot apart. Then repeat the rotary motion, shifting the feet.

Water Lily Exercise
Think of yourself as in a pond, your arms out in a curve which will bring the hands almost to level of shoulders. Then, as a ripple reaches you, you are gently lifted (rising slowly on toes) and your arms are raised upward several inches, slowly and slantingly. Now the water recedes and you sink down until knees are well bent. At the same time your arms float lower.

If you want to try these exercises to music, Miss Rush suggests the following:
For the poppy exercise, "Shepherd's Hey." For the caterpillar exercise, McDowell's "To a Wild Rose." The swaying willow, Schumann's "Träumerei." The water lily, Brahms' Opus 33, No. 1 waltz.

RED HATS
Red hats are very popular for wear with the red shoes that also are so popular. They are shown in chiffon and georgette with soft crowns and little trimming.

BREAKFAST COATS
Very lovely and cool looking breakfast coats are made of georgette crepe trimmed with puffs of the material. One of apricot color has a girle of jade green.

Plans to Bring Relief in Sugar Situation
WASHINGTON, May 12.—In addition to the government's anti-trust suit against the alleged New York sugar combine, it was stated at the White House yesterday, the administration has under consideration other measures designed to cope with the sugar situation. While details were withheld, it was said that officials believed the steps contemplated would bring relief from high prices.

"You Can Easily Remove and Prevent Blackheads," Says Rubenstein in Beauty Contest

By MME. HELENE RUBINSTEIN
International Beauty Expert
(Copyright, 1923, The Lowell Sun)
In every country where I am called upon to help women solve the riddle of good looks, I come across different skin conditions, but there is one trouble that persists seemingly in spite of all varieties of climate and conditions. I refer to blackheads.

Nine out of every ten women are vexed by these horrid little "black pests" as the French call them, that not only make the skin dull and muddy looking but often lead to the dreaded pimples and spots called acne. A blackhead is a tiny dust particle that embeds itself in the skin, held there by the natural secretion of the skin. The pores unable to rid themselves of these irritants send out a call for help to the little juice-secreting glands which respond by rushing their moisture to the affected parts. If the pores are still unable to dislodge the impure dust particles, the secretions overflow onto the skin's surface, and all the while the pores are stretching and losing their power to close.

That is why we seldom see blackheads without "shine" and enlarged pores.

The chief thing to be considered is how to purify the skin, reduce the pores to normal and regulate the secretions.

The opening and closing of the pores properly is the keynote of correction. To eradicate blackheads you must penetrate inside the pore where the black speck has made itself at home and as the blackhead becomes smaller and weaker through treatment, close the pore so that no fresh invasion of dust particles and microbes can upset the skin.

Strong soaps are injurious because they dry the surface, thus causing wrinkles and lines without reaching the inner cells. I advise a special wash of gritty texture for the thick sluggish skin and a softer paste of equally cleansing strength for the thinner and more delicate skin. When the skin is thus cleansed, any preparation which follows will be unhampered in its action.

In the daytime use an astringent after washing and use this at intervals during the day in preference to both water and cleansing cream. At night after washing and before putting on an astringent, put a small quantity of stimulating nourishing cream on cotton that has been soaked in hot water and wring dry, then rub the skin with this until your face flushes. This will help you immeasurably as nothing overcomes blackheads as efficiently as functioning of a skin that has become sluggish owing to their presence.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS FOR MAY DISHES

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH
Of Columbia University

May has always been associated in one's mind with May-poles, dancing, baskets of flowers and a general rosy time. And always where there is fun there is food.

One of the old English dishes was junket, or milk thickened with rennet. Rennet comes in tablet form, and one tablet crushed and partially dissolved in cold water will "set" one quart of milk. We have variations of this by serving fruit with it, or freezing it. The one quart of junket and one cup of cream makes an ice cream that is like that made with all cream. This is the way many a cook makes a rich ice cream, to all being as satisfactory as if much cream had been used. And of course it is much cheaper.

Undoubtedly the Mother's Day idea is taken from the old custom of having a "Mothering Sunday," a day on which young couples went home to mother and got good advice. That was the most served, and usually a luscious pudding.

May is the month when green vegetables begin to appear, not in the northern places, but in the middle and southern parts. I was much interested to read the other day, in an old English cook book dated 1734, a good way to keep green vegetables green when cooking them. The title was "To boil garden things green."

"You must be sure the water boils when you put in your peas, greens, French beans or asparagus; when they are in, make it boil very fast again; you need not cover them, but watch them and may be assured they are cooked enough when they begin to sink to the bottom, provided they have boiled all the time. Take them out as soon as they sink, or they immediately change color."

This may be a help, and it is certainly true. Most people overlook green vegetables; they always change color when cooked for a longer time than needed.

I have found that soaking them in very cold water, and then putting them in rapidly boiling water made for a much more attractive looking vegetable.

The French people usually cook an onion with peas, and add a large amount of sweet butter. Some think that two or three sprigs of fresh mint added is a great improvement. A little sugar is always good in peas, and a great improvement to the flavor of green corn.

ROLLING CORNED BEEF
When you are rolling corned beef you can improve the flavor greatly. If you will add a pinch of ginger, a few cloves, a small onion and a few bay leaves.

COFFEE SPOTS
If coffee or tea is spilled on your table linen, pour boiling water over the stains repeatedly and place on the grass in the sun.

2 cups granulated sugar.
1 cup milk.
2 tablespoons butter.
Pinch of salt.
1 ounce bitter chocolate cut in small pieces.
Mix ingredients and cook to the soft ball stage. Remove kettle from fire and allow to cool 15 minutes. Add one teaspoon vanilla and beat until it is creamy and thick. Add one-half cup of nut meats and spread out in buttered pan one inch thick. Cut into one inch squares. This candy will keep moist in a covered vegetable dish. If you find too firm it is because you have cooked it too long and you can remove a quick frock of white taffeta.

Feminist Traveler Sees Future Art and Learning Coming From the Orient

By MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, May 12.—We have borrowed the kimono from the Japanese, the turban from India, and jewels and embroideries from China, but outside of these superficial acquisitions, what do most of us really know about our oriental sisters?

Mildred Taylor, writer, organizer, lecturer and feminist, is convinced that we know little that we have never even penetrated the inner lives of these mysterious ladies on the other side of the earth.

"Most of us have only two pictures of the oriental woman," she states. "One that of a downtrodden slave of a domineering husband, the other that of a bejeweled seductress. Of the real woman we are ignorant. I believe she has much to give us."

So Miss Taylor expects to spend several years in the Orient, getting firsthand information about the women and children of China, Japan and India, which she will later put in book form.

"I believe," she continued, "the present vogue for oriental costume, jewelry, and home decorations is only the prelude to a much more far-reaching acquaintance with oriental art, philosophy and the science of living. 'Go East,' instead of 'Go West,' will be the cry."

"In our complex civilization we who have never learned to relax or to reflect have much need for the calm and peace of mind which the oriental woman has attained."

"Therefore we can learn what she has to give us we must understand the oriental and do away with the prejudices based on ignorance and misunderstanding that are the bars to friendship."

DRACUT MAN AND HIS SON ARE CHARGED WITH MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE

Following secret indictments returned by the grand jury and capias issued by the superior court charging Elmore L. and Sumner Pierce of Greenmount avenue, Dracut, with murder in the second degree in connection with the death of Oliver C. Bisson, aged 21, of 785 Merrimack street, on the night of April 9, Mount Bartholomew, Dracut, and Inspector John A. Walsh last evening arrested both men and took them to Cambridge this morning for trial in the superior court next Monday.

Elmore L. Pierce was arraigned in the district court on a continued charge of manslaughter yesterday morning and at that time an additional charge of failure to stop after the accident and give the name and address and car registration, was placed against him and he was ordered to furnish a bond of $200 in addition to the $2000 bond on the manslaughter charge. At yesterday's session Martin Hart, husbandman for the defendant, withdrew and it was not until the afternoon that Pierce was allowed to return to his home under new bonds, only to be rearrested a few hours later on the more serious charge. The son, Sumner, was arrested at his place of employment.

The death of Oliver C. Bisson is alleged to have been caused by being struck by a machine operated by Elmore Pierce on the evening of April 9 at the corner of Hall and Alken streets. In the car at the time of the accident were Mrs. Pierce and the son. The injured man was lifted into the car and it was supposed that he was to be brought to a hospital. He was later discovered in a deserted spot in Webster street near the Princeton boulevard and died shortly after being taken to a hospital.

The circumstances of his tragic death remained a mystery for several hours and it was not until the following noon that Pierce was arrested at his work in the Billerica shops. He steadfastly denied being the responsible party, but after a long and severe grilling, he admitted to the police that he was the driver of the death car. He was then bargained with manslaughter and released in $2000

Orders Round-up in Mount Case

CHICAGO, May 12.—A round-up of 41 students who left Northwestern university within four months after Leighton Mount, freshman, disappeared 20 months ago, after an inter-class fight, has been ordered by Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney. One purpose is to check a statement by Mrs. J. L. Mount, the boy's mother, that President Scott of the university told her, 16 students were expelled after the class rush. President Scott, before the grand jury, denied that any students were dismissed as a result of that affair. The grand jury ended a week's work on the Mount case yesterday and, reports indicated, was no nearer a solution of the mystery than when it began its inquiry. Next week only morning sessions will be devoted to the Mount case.

Believe Kidnapped Policeman Murdered

CLEVELAND, May 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Search for Patrolman Dennis Griffin, kidnapped policeman, formerly of Springfield, Mass., who is believed to have been murdered, was continued today by hundreds of policemen after an all-day and all-night hunt yesterday failed to bring any trace of the officer, his abductor or the automobile in which the patrolman and his prisoner started for a police station yesterday morning. The search was continued early today with hundreds of citizens, farmers, boy scouts and school children joining the police in the hunt. Police efforts today were directed largely toward locating everybody who might have seen the patrolman after he started with his prisoner for the police station. Griffin came here two years ago from the Massachusetts city.

Five Americans Still Held by Bandits

WASHINGTON, May 12.—State department advices today from the American legation at Peking said it was believed the foreigners still held by the Chinese bandits in Shantung numbered 14 men and two women. The American prisoners are J. B. Powell, editor Weekly Review, Shanghai; Leon Friedman of the China Motors Corporation, Shanghai; Leo Solomon, of Shanghai, and Majors Robert Allen and Roland Pinger of the United States Army.

Urges Payment of Ransom

TIENSIN, May 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Payment of ransom, or compliance with whatever other terms the Chinese train bandits of the Shantung hills might demand for the return of their foreign captives seems today the only feasible move. In view of the letter, urging such a course received here from Major Pinger, one of the two American army officers held by the outlaws. Not only was the letter from the bandits received here, but the Pinger dispatch today, but the young son of Major Pinger—Roland Jr.—was also. He came in company with another boy, Robert Allen, Jr., the son of Major Allen, the other American officer held for ransom.

The two lads, clad in Chinese clothing, apparently were in good physical condition when returned to their very anxious mothers. The mothers, who were in the hills by the bandits, had remained here awaiting word of their imperiled families. The boys were enthusiastic about the adventure and said the bandits had taken quite a fancy to them, seeing that they suffered no ill.

Two Women Still Held

SHANGHAI, May 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Two foreign women are among the prisoners at the stronghold of the Suchow train bandits, according to reports brought from the outlaws' retreat by the two American boys—Roland Pinger, Jr., and Robert Allen, Jr.—who arrived at Tientsin after having been released by the brigands.

One of the women mentioned is believed to be Mrs. Manuel Anceira Werea, wife of a prominent Mexican, who is said to have refused to leave her husband. There is no surmise as to the identity of the other woman.

The two released boys told Carl Crow, representative of the American Red Cross, that they saw two foreign women in Chinese dress at the brigands' headquarters. A message was received today from Crow, dated Tsaochwang, near the bandit stronghold, stating "believed all danger of violence to the captives

DANCERS MAKE BIG HIT AT KASINO

Textile Alumni Association Reunion

The building, meeting old acquaintances, and looking over the equipment in the school for about an hour. Shortly after ten o'clock a business meeting of the association was held and considerable business transacted. The main feature of the meeting was the election of officers for the coming year, with the following elected: President, E. H. Warren, '05; vice president, William Walker, Jr., '06; secretary-treasurer, A. A. Stewart, '00; entertainment committee, A. J. Hennigan, chairman, '05; J. Milton Washburn, '21; J. B. Thaxter, '11; R. Fisher, '14; C. W. Peck, '12. The following were elected honorary members of the alumni association: Arthur C. Polard, chairman of the board of trustees of the school; Frederick A. Flather, of the Root mills; Charles H. Barnes, president of the Textile school, and William A. Mitchell, ex-agent of the Massachusetts mills.

In former years a board of directors has been elected, but this year an executive committee will be named in their place. The members of this committee will be named at the banquet. A baseball game between picked teams of the alumni associations was scheduled for 11 o'clock, but owing to the heavy downpour of rain at that time, it was cancelled, and interesting moving pictures concerning the textile industry were shown in the assembly hall. Many of the alumni, however, preferred to wander about the buildings while the pictures were being shown, getting familiar again with the rooms in which they studied years ago.

At 12:30 the dinner hall was sounded, and the men marched into the assembly hall again to partake of a buffet luncheon served by the Page Catering company. Just as soon as their appetites were satisfied, Charles Wells Hubbard, an expert on spinning machinery, gave a very interesting talk on the "New Developments in the Spinning Industry." Mr. Hubbard's talk was exceptionally educational and interesting, and the alumni members were well pleased with it as they considered that they had learned quite a bit more about spinning by hearing him.

The morning session ended with the luncheon and talk and nothing more was on the program until three o'clock, when the Lowell Textile baseball team

"TIZ" FIXES ACHING, SWOLLEN, SORE FEET

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-poisoned, bluish, tormented feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your feet will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand! It's glorious! Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Ward Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Springfield, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved a splendid medicine for me before my fourth child was born. With the first three I had been sick and weak, and had sick headaches twice a week. I couldn't keep enough food down to do me any good, and my work was left undone many a time. My sister-in-law told me to take the Vegetable Compound when I began to have the same old dreadful sickness and headaches and was so worn out. Since then I have only had two headaches, had a good appetite and scarcely lost a meal. I have a fine, healthy baby girl who has never had a sick day. The nicest part is that I am healthy, too. It did me a lot of good, and if I should ever have another baby I will take your medicine at once."

Mrs. HESSIE WARD, 1027 Park Avenue, Springfield, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

"Thank You, Doctor," the Crook Parer To Be Presented as Headliner This Coming Week

The four Dion sisters—real Lowell girls and real sisters—will make their professional debut on the stage of the B. F. Keith Theatre tomorrow heading a big show which Manager Ben E. Pickett has brought together for the day. The sisters are very well known through their connections with amateur theatrics and their singing is unusually good. Their act will without question attract many friends to the theatre for the day. The remainder of the bill will hold many good things, including Polly & Oz in their refined singing act; Weyth &

Wynn, funmakers; Force & Williams, songs and comedy; Eddie Jerome and company, in music and fun; Wilson & Peters, in a pot-pourri and Josephine Golden, singer.

The coming week's bill will be featured by "Thank You, Doctor," which is a farce featuring Eleanor Hicks and Chester Clute. Like all successful farces, this one moves with great speed. This particular farce is a crook farce. The crook in the case is a young woman who becomes assistant to an innocent doctor. He believes that she is following his profession. Bright, dainty adds to the speed of the production and all in all it will rate up as one of the most attractive offerings of the season.

Tom Smith, who is rated as an artist, a gentleman and a scholar, assisted by Harry Newman will prove a most capable comedian also. From the minute he steps on the stage the audience will be fully aware that plenty of fun is brewing. The laughter which will greet the two men will be, without doubt, spontaneous, for much that they do and say will be unusual and unexpected.

A pair of musical comedy stars are Stella Tracey and Carl McBride, who will purvey "Bits of Exclusiveness." Miss Tracey is a dainty bit of femininity and Mr. McBride is a dancer who executes with much grace. The act will be one of the very great favorites of the week.

Helen Moretti is called "The Little Girl with the big voice." Her vocal range and physical attributes are all out of proportion. Her voice is not only big but it is of exceptional quality and it possesses an unusual register.

Arch Stanley is a nonpareil—in other words, he has but one foot. He is a pleasant chap who radiates optimism and who, in the course of his act, dances well. Joe and Willie Hale will give "Bits of Vaudeville" and Mollie and William Hunter are equilibrist who will offer a few genuine thrills.

THE STRAND THEATRE

Excellent Program Next Week, Beginning With Monday Matinee—New Pictures and Vaudeville Sunday

A program of extraordinary merit is scheduled for presentation at The Strand for the coming week. For the first three days of the week, starting with Monday matinee, the big Chicago Daily News prize story, "Broken Chains," with Colleen Moore, Claire

Windsor and others of screen note, will head the bill and the second feature will be Dustin Farnum in "The Buster." For the week-end, beginning with Thursday matinee, Tom Mix in "Arable" and the famous Oscar Wilde story, "A Woman of No Importance," will be presented. The latter program will have for the third feature an Al St. John comedy entitled "Young and Dumb."

The management has arranged an excellent program for Sunday, also. Besides an entire change of pictures there will be five acts of high class vaudeville. "Broken Chains" is a special story.

written especially for the screen by Winifred Kimball, winner in the Chicago Daily News story contest of recent date. Writers of national repute were among the contestants. It's the story of the regeneration of an eastern youth who proves a coward when danger confronts him at his long island home. To escape the disgrace attending his actions in his home surroundings, he flies himself to his father's ranch in the west and there meets and falls in love with a young woman, the wife of a brutal woodsman of that district who is chained up in his cabin. The youth champions the woman's cause and when they are found together by the husband he treats the youth to a severe beating. The latter comes back again and engages in another hand-to-hand fight the most exciting ever filmed, and in which youth triumphs. Miss Colleen Moore, and Miss Claire Windsor are seen in the stellar female roles, while Malcolm McGregor and Ernest Torrence are portraying the male roles. The photography and all other features of this super-production are in keeping with the high standard of story itself. If you are anxious to see a real photoplay containing all of the entertaining elements of a high grade picture, then don't miss "Broken Chains." Remember, it's for three days only.

The Dustin Farnum picture, "The Buster," is another of those lively, vigorous pictorializations for which this particular star is noted. It has action, color and a delightful story in which Mr. Farnum again reflects his exceptional powers and talent as a screen star.

Tom Mix—the mere name means so much to the average picture fan—will be seen in his newest creation of action entitled "Arable." Needless to say that this offering has all of the pleasing characteristics of a Mix production, with the star at his best. It's to be shown during the week-end, starting Thursday.

Oscar Wilde's famous story, "A Woman of No Importance," is a dramatic creation of genuine merit. The story is human, the characters natural and the developments and final climax intensely interesting. It's a superior-grade story produced in a superior way.

The Al St. John comedy, "Young and Dumb," has some new phases of humor-making that will also add variety to the triple-feature program. Added to these features there will be the usual weekly and musical numbers by the Strand orchestra.

The Strand comfort in seeing and enjoying picture programs is not to be equalled in the state. You will say so during the coming summer months. A special ventilating system makes it possible to keep the temperature at normal at all times.

SUNDAY AT THE STRAND

The Sunday schedule for presentation at The Strand should have a strong appeal to all lovers of the better class of entertainment. There will be an entire change of pictures, headed by the great romantic comedy, "Too Much Business." The vaudeville offering will have five acts of high class entertainment that will contribute to one of the best offerings of the season. No better place to enjoy a Sunday afternoon or evening than at The Strand, where genuine comfort and a good program always prevails.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Triple-Feature Program With "Hunting the Game in Africa" as Underlined Attraction for First Part of Week.

A triple-feature program of unusual merit has been booked by the Merrimack Square theatre management for presentation at the popular stage street amusement house for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The underlined attraction, "Hunting the Game in Africa," will be H. A. Snow's "Hunting the Game in Africa," perhaps the most costly and easily the most thrilling wild animal picture ever filmed. Viola Dana in "The $5.00 Baby," one of the state's most entertaining.

OUR LOCAL RENAISSANCE

We are to have a renaissance of our own here in Lowell as a result of the Home Beautiful Exposition which has been such an inspiration to our people, staged as it was in the most beautiful memorial building in the United States. The Renaissance in history is the name given to the style of art, especially architecture, which succeeded the Gothic in Europe and preceded the rigid imitation of the classic in the first half of the 18th century. The spread of classical literature during the 15th and 16th centuries created a taste for classic architecture in every country in Europe and the movement had its effect also in this country. The colonial style was an evolution from Europe and it has been followed here with certain modifications almost distinctly American.

In saying that we are to have a local renaissance in home building, we do not mean that we are to return to classic models, but rather that we are to seek what is simple, beautiful and harmonious in proportion and design rather than what is gaudy or showy without either symmetry or beauty. It is perhaps hard to find two persons who will agree as to the merits of a painting or of the beauty of a building; but if all those who have to do with the building of homes—the architect, the contractor and the owner—feel an impelling influence to strive for the simple, the symmetrical, the harmonious, the beautiful, the artistic, not only in the style of architecture but in landscape gardening, the beautification of the environment, not to speak of the interior furnishings and decoration—then we shall achieve what is meant by the home building renaissance, a great advance toward the beautiful in art and chiefly in architecture.

Indeed it may be said that we have already made a good start in that direction. Our magnificent Memorial Auditorium marks the initial step of this movement, and the Home Beautiful Exposition now in progress in that building, is the next stride onward. It is educational and will have far-reaching effects. Upon the success of this exposition, the Contractors' association, the merchants and various other exhibitors are all to be congratulated, as are the architects who made the floor plans, Messrs. Harry Prescott Graves and Perley Gilbert. The exhibition has been a revelation to the people of Lowell. It has shown them the possibilities of home beautification, and we are confident that the results of this event in our future community progress along aesthetic lines, will have gratifying results in the coming years.

THE I. W. W. PRISONERS

The I. W. W. is conducting an active campaign for the release of its so-called political prisoners, 55 of whom are now in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kansas. They claim that the statutes under which these men were convicted are unconstitutional on the ground that they violate the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech and of the press. In support of their contention, they quote the first amendment to the constitution which reads as follows: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

This amendment constitutes a restriction upon congress only, and does so in order that the states may exercise the right to regulate freedom of the press and freedom of speech, and also to designate in what the violation of these rights consists and to fix the penalty.

It is noticeable that over half the states have enacted statutes against the activities of radical and revolutionary groups as rendered necessary in protecting their very existence against such movements. The statutes fixing penalties for radical action aimed at the overthrow of the government are known as criminal syndicalist or criminal anarchy statutes. They make it a crime to advocate either orally or in writing the use of violence, sabotage, or other unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reforms or the overthrow of organized government by force or other unlawful means. Many prominent jurists have upheld the state laws against the radicals. It is noted also that in these statutes enacted by the states, it is provided that "every citizen may freely speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right. That does not extend the same right to aliens and most of the I. W. W. members are not citizens. Judge Hough, of the United States court of appeals, in a recent decision, said: "Men commit crimes when they counsel or procure others to sin against the statute laws, and they also commit crimes when they confederate to effect that object; and yet it is difficult to imagine any more suitable or usual method of procuring or counseling than by speech. In this sense, men have often been punished for what they have said by statutory enactment."

In reference to the so-called political prisoners of the I. W. W., it appears that most of them were convicted under the Espionage Act of 1917 for opposing the United States in the organization of its military forces for service during the World war; and the conviction of the defendants under this act was sustained by the United States circuit court of appeals; and a petition for a writ of certiorari in the supreme court of the United States was denied by that court, citing the strongest legal authority for the conviction of the prisoners not only as to the statutes under which the conviction was procured, but also on the evidence adduced.

It seems, therefore, that on constitutional grounds, the claim of the prisoners for liberation has nothing to sustain it and that the war is over, is the only thing that will offer any hope of mitigating the sentences of any of these prisoners.

MORE TERRIFIC WAR WEAPONS

It is reported that France has invented a gun that will carry 160 miles. With such a Big Bertha, France could land shells in the British capital, but no such possibility may be entertained. We do not believe that such nations as France and England will care to enter into another war, knowing that the weapons of destruction now available are even more terrific than those used in the World war. The development of aircraft and the possibilities of destruction are more seriously dreaded than any long-range gun yet invented. The Big Bertha used by Germany towards the close of the World war was effective mainly in causing alarm, as its shells usually fell wide of the mark, and when they landed, were not so terrific as might be supposed. However, it may be possible to improve upon these powerful guns both in range and in the weight of the shells, but it is highly unlikely to discount the possibilities of human ingenuity for the destruction of human life. Chemists assure us that the next war will probably be fought with destructive gases that would either suffocate large numbers of people or else spread ruin by starting conflagrations. With all the pacifist movements now in progress, there is little probability of any war in the near future except one forced by communistic nations such as Russia or some nation with an insatiable desire for conquest as some people would class Japan. We feel, however, that Japan is possessed of better judgment than to bring on another world conflict that might have the effect of largely wiping out whatever degree of civilization exists on the Asiatic continent. The world has had too much war already, but we presume that there will still be countries and peoples foolish enough to precipitate international conflicts that may result in widespread destruction of life and property. If any international organization can be effected to stop war for all times, it is bound to come in some form, but it may be quite a number of years before it can sufficiently overcome international prejudice to accomplish its aim.

HOT SUMMER?

This summer will be a hot one, despite the late spring which has been caused by the sun giving off 4 per cent less heat than normally. So predicts Dr. Charles F. Brooks, the astronomer.

The reduced heat of the sun was to be expected, says Dr. Brooks, as a customary part of the "11-year sun spot period" which reached its greatest development in 1917 and receded to its lowest point in 1923.

Brooks points out that the sun every 11 years normally goes through a period of excessive activity and then a recession from it. When Old Sol is hitting on all cylinders, sun spots appear. These warm when the sun slows down and its engine cools. Not scientific terminology, but we trust we have interpreted it so as to be understandable by the millions who are tremendously interested in the weather, but haven't time to "study up" on astronomy.

These spurts of activity, or increased heat followed by subnormal heat, are staged by the sun every eleven years. There was an abnormal radiation of heat from the sun in 1905, the same as eleven years later in 1917. The next cycle will have its climax in 1928.

Dr. Brooks says: "There is a paradox that the cooler the sun the warmer the earth." The period of sun spot maximum is one to two degrees cooler than otherwise.

One scientific explanation is, that when the sun has a mild chill, as at present, its ultra-violet rays have greater opportunity to escape through the sun's atmosphere. These ultra-violet rays form a blanket of ozone around the earth, far overhead. This ozone blanket absorbs and holds much of the heat which the earth radiates or gives off. The radiation is what makes the nights cool even after a hot day. The earth's heat starts returning back into space and the ozone blanket tends to keep it near us, the same as a thermos bottle.

So, says Dr. Brooks, there probably is at present a reduced loss of the earth's heat through space, despite a reduction of the amount of heat we're receiving from the sun. The ozone, formed overhead by nature to counteract the sun's chill, works like a blanket around a steam pipe.

"The net result," Dr. Brooks concludes, referring to the coming summer, "should be a higher temperature, considering the world as a whole, than at the time a year or two ago when the heat received was greater."

Even the facelious who say, "Ain't nuther wonderf'ul!" will have to marvel at nature's marvelous system of checks and balances, revealed in this ozone insulation now turning above our head to compensate for reduced sun's heat and keep us from acute suffering.—N.E.A.

DUST EXPLOSIONS

Flour, under certain conditions, is a high explosive. So is dust. Twenty-one thousand manufacturing plants in our country are subject to the dust-explosion hazard, says D. J. Price of the U. S. department of agriculture. Among dusts that have been known to explode dangerously are powdered milk, fertilizer, rubber, soap, spice, cocoa, paper, aluminum and cork.

There won't be any lame backs and aching muscles when our descendants learn how to harness the terrific power locked up in the atoms of dust. Scientists tell us that the atoms of one ton of coal have enough sleeping energy to blow up the whole earth. Archimedes, it was, who told us that he could lift the earth with a lever if he could only get a suitable fulcrum outside.

SHERLOCK

Sherlock Holmes was a real person—Dr. Joseph Bell, a distinguished Scottish surgeon who died some years ago, according to friends of Conan Doyle.

Doyle says he still gets letters to be forwarded to Sherlock. Many have written, regretting that he has the morphia habit and recommending various cures. A musician, reading of Sherlock's musical bent, sent him a fine old violin. Thousands believe that Holmes is real, that he solved the fiction crimes that made Conan Doyle famous. Street and Smith, publishers, used to get baskets of mail addressed to Nick Carter.

Some people are very glib, as the politicians are fully aware. Some characters in fiction seem to be endowed with life. Such are Hamlet and Shylock, although they lived before Shakespeare gave them immortality in his plays.

CLEVER

A clever new trick for airplanes is invented by an Englishman. It is a revolving platform, which moves rapidly back as the airplane starts ahead, treadmill fashion, so the plane is going fast when it manages to get off the platform. This does away with the necessity of gliding over a long field before rising. Take the ball moving rapidly but staying on the umbrella, twisted in the opposite direction by the Jap vaudeville actor.

It is quite possible that houses will have roofs like this later, in the day of flying fillovers.

PROFITS

Could you make a living farming? Department of Agriculture checks up 6000 representative farms and gives this description of the average farm: It used $15,400 of capital and the labor of the farmer and his family during 1922, for which the family received a return of only $16 cash after paying all bills.

Few city families have that much left at the end of a year. They would conflict that might have the effect of largely wiping out whatever degree of civilization exists on the Asiatic continent. The world has had too much war already, but we presume that there will still be countries and peoples foolish enough to precipitate international conflicts that may result in widespread destruction of life and property.

If any international organization can be effected to stop war for all times, it is bound to come in some form, but it may be quite a number of years before it can sufficiently overcome international prejudice to accomplish its aim.

What becomes of a nail driven into a growing tree? It happens to a nail now when it strikes an embedded nail. A sawyer was recently killed because of the thoughtlessness of one man nearly fifty years ago. Like small nails when placing posters on trees. Remove old nails when taking down or replacing posters.

Expensive Luxuries

"How much a year does it take to support a wife and family?" asked a young man with an inclination in that direction. "O, anywhere between $500 to $50,000 or so," was the confident answer. "Isn't that rather indefinite?" inquired the other. "No, because no married man breathing ever lived this side of his pre-marriage calculations."

Audience Disappointed

"How are you getting on?" asked a friend of an acquaintance who had gone on the stage. "O, I have met with a share of success. I played Hamlet for the first time." "Did you get through all right?" "Yes, except that I happened to stumble and fall into Ophelia's grave." "That must have been embarrassing." "It was, but I wouldn't have minded it if the audience hadn't seemed so disappointed when I got out."

Both Old-Fashioned

An old physician of the last generation was noted for his brusque manner and old-fashioned methods, says the Edinburgh Scotsman. On one occasion a woman called him in to treat her baby who was slightly ailing. The doctor prescribed castor oil. "But, doctor," protested the young mother, "castor oil is such an old-fashioned remedy." "Madam," replied the doctor, "babies are old-fashioned things."

The Right Must Prevail
Fall River News: Joseph G. Cannon at 87 years of age is as optimistic as a chimney M. Dewey at 89. He was greeted on Monday last at his home in Danville, Illinois, by 50,000 people who had assembled to do him honor. Shaking with emotion, as he thought of his retirement from public life, the veteran legislator gave the American people the following message for their encouragement as they look into the future of their nation. He said: "To you, to all the people of America, my observations of half a century. I bring this message: Have faith. Often you feel that you detect a great uneasiness, an unrest, a threatening undercurrent in this government. This is neither new nor unusual. I have learned that America will rise to meet her problems. I have learned that good will triumph over evil. Have faith in the government of your fathers. Show your faith by works to support the government. Have faith that right will prevail."

Boston Globe: The rearranged program for President Harding's western trip, on which he may start June 20, provides for addresses at St. Louis, Kansas City, Mo.; Hutchinson, Kan.; Denver, Salt Lake City, Boise, Idaho, Helena, Mont., and Seattle, and for three addresses in California, including one each at San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego. After so much speaking, the president will be quite ready for a short rest in the Yellowstone park before going to Alaska, speaking on the way at Boise, in Idaho.

Quarter Century Ago

About this time, 25 years ago, the United States was just entering on the war against Spain and the naval and land forces were directed to unite on an attack upon Cuba and Porto Rico. Congress met and President McKinley warmly recommended Commodore Dewey for his great victory at Manila. The sum of $100,000 was appropriated for a sword for Dewey, who was to be made an admiral, and medals were ordered for the heroes of the squadron who participated in the battle of Manila.

Although there was little reason why the United States should dread a Spanish fleet, it was really astonishing, along the eastern coast, lest they should be attacked by a great Spanish armada. The wildest rumors were afloat relative to the position of the Spanish fleet. Vessels entering port reported having seen strange ships near Halifax and they surmised that it might have been a Spanish squadron.

It was also reported that heavy cannoning was heard off New York and Boston and the people of both cities dreaded an attack. The cannonading heard was probably target practice by the fleet as a continuous patrol of United States war vessels was maintained from Portland, Me., to Florida.

Vessels entering port reported having seen strange ships near Halifax and they surmised that it might have been a Spanish squadron.

Catholic Hierarchy Spoke

On May 10, the Catholic hierarchy of the United States issued a strong manifesto repudiating the charge made by some quarters in and out of our midst to the bottom, but fortunately they were disappointed.

The patient calmness, the dignified forbearance, the subdued firmness of the president during the trying times that intervened between the destruction of the Maine and the declaration of war are beyond all praise and should command the admiration of every true American. We the members of the Catholic church, are true Americans and as such are loyal to our country and our flag and obedient to the highest desires and the supreme authority of the nation. We are not now engaged in a war of section against section, or state against state, but we are united as one man against a foreign enemy and a common foe.

The manifesto further set forth the duty of loyalty and concluded by ordering that every priest in his daily mass should pray for the restoration of peace by a glorious victory for our flag.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

Pure Logic

The amateur gardener scratched his head,
"This thing is too much for me," he said,
"I plant tomatoes,
Green peas, potatoes,
Lettuce and beans, to meet our needs;
I treat 'em kind
As I ought to do,
But all I find
When the season's through,
Is a bean or two and a lot of weeds."

The amateur gardener thought and thought
On why his gardening came to naught;
From cerebration
An inspiration
Came suddenly into his puzzled brain;
Then he gave a wink
And he cried, "I'm sore
That I didn't think
Of that thought before,
A logical plan that is safe and sane!"

So the amateur gardener bought the seeds
Of all the different sorts of weeds,
He planted thistles
And things with bristles
And all plant pests he had heard about;
Then corn and peas,
Potatoes too,
And plants like these
Sprang up and grew

LOWELL CO-OPERATIVE BANK MEETING

The annual report of the treasurer of the Lowell Co-operative bank read at the annual meeting of share holders, held at the bank last night showed 6120 members, holding 48,511 shares of stock, the largest in the history of the bank. The assets are now over $334,000 with guaranty and surplus funds amounting to $67,000. Other figures read by the treasurer showed the past year to have been very successful for the bank, and its share holders.

Artemus B. Woodworth was elected a director and president of the bank for the ensuing year. Francis E. Appleton, vice president and director; Charles C. Drew, clerk and treasurer; directors for three years, Stephen W. Abbott, Oliver H. P. Green, Herbert L. Bishop, Arthur Bartlett and Stanley E. Qua.

Justice Stanley E. Qua elected to the board of directors, former attorney of the bank, was sworn into office with the other officials of the institution. By his brother, Francis M. Qua, now attorney of the bank. Other officers elected were: Security committee, George H. Taylor, Warren F. Sanborn, Stephen W. Abbott, Finance committee, Oliver H. P. Green, Herbert L. Bishop, Benjamin W. Clements and Attorney Francis M. Qua.

Seventy-eight loans calling for a total of $230,100, breaking all previous records, were received during the year. The directors expect to take care of all these applications for loans. The series of shares which mature in June will require approximately $100,000.

BAY STATE CHAPTER ELECTS OFFICERS

At the May meeting of the old Bay State chapter, D. H. held recently at the home of Mrs. Charles Blaisdell, 4 Fernald street, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Wesley M. Wilde, regent; Mrs. Charles C. Miller, vice regent; Mrs. Fred Brannan, recording secretary; Mrs. Walter L. Leach, financial secretary; Mrs. Winifred Nelson, treasurer; Mrs. Helen Glover, registrar; Mrs. J. Carleton, secretary; Mrs. Walter N. Bartt and Miss Cora Parker, directors. Routine business was transacted and an interesting paper on "Early Settlement of Georgia," written by Miss Evelyn Wilson, was read by Miss Cora Parker. It was announced that the organization will conduct an outing at the home of Mrs. Charles Willet, Concord Junction next month.

LADD AND WHITNEY CIRCLE

At a recent meeting of Ladd & Whitney circle, 5 Ladies of the G.A.R., the 30th anniversary of the organization was observed with a supper and entertainment. The festivities were conducted in the veterans' wing of the Auditorium and were largely attended. The supper was in charge of Sister Fannie Harvey, assisted by Helen Heydon, Agnes Hubbard and Myrtle Milk. Those who took part in the entertainment, which was given under the direction of Harriet Keefe, assisted by W. Hinkley, were as follows: Little Miss Esther Shubert, Miss Agnes M. Hart, Miss Lillian Leth, Mrs. Anna C. Holland, Mrs. Charles Young and Sister Myrtle Milk, the latter acting as accompanist.

The Looker-on In Lowell

People are probably not generally acquainted with the fact that Collin Mackenzie, custodian of the Memorial Auditorium, gets the autograph of every notable personage appearing there in a book kept specially for that purpose. Signatures are dated and already many pages of the big book are filled with names.

The book in years to come will be very valuable. Even now it would be treasured by autograph collectors and those interested in reading character by handwriting. As one looks over the names, he is struck with the wide variety of style. The book seems to prove also that handwriting does reveal personality, because in many of the signatures the outstanding characteristics of the writers may be discerned. There are some neat, as it printed, others scrawny, obscure, small, fine, large, pretty and indistinguishable.

A few of the residences or addresses given are: Montreal and Toronto, Canada; San Francisco, Washington, D. C., Mississippi, Atlanta, Tipperary, Ireland, New York, Chicago, France, Halifax, North Carolina, Los Angeles, Porto Rico.

Among the first signatures in the book is that of Pierre Montoux, of the Boston Symphony orchestra. His style is scraggly, hurried, though clear and would seem to indicate a nervous temperament. The name is not written on the line but through two lines and upwards on the page.

Perhaps a had contributed to the very crude signature of Irene Castle, but surely none would suspect the writer to be of the type of Mrs. Castle. The style is upright, but very crude, with many of the letters not joined.

One would think that a trained mind would have a trained hand and that is so in the case of E. M. Newman, noted locally by "Newman's" Traces. His signature is simple, upright and seems to indicate a careful, explicit attitude.

Rev. William J. Finn of the Paulist Chorales uses the slanting, news-writer style, which would indicate that he is a much and busy man.

Paderewski, signs I. J. Paderewski, joining the "J" and the "P", and slanting to the right with the letters jammed together. His signature really looks more like that of a business man than of a world-renowned pianist. For an artist who can so delicately touch the keys, one would suppose that his signature would be artistic, but it isn't.

Burton Holmes, lecturer, who makes his living by making himself understood, also writes his name that it might be understood, in a large, scraggly way.

Determination and sternness are plain in the official-looking, large and run-in autograph of S. M. Becker, major general of the U. S. Army. Isaac Marcossow, world-wide news and magazine writer, has developed the small, slanting news-writer style to perfection and uses it in his signature. It is neat and yet, as with everything he writes by hand, it was probably written hurriedly.

Fritz Kretschmer's signature is almost indistinguishable, indicating a very nervous character. It seems as though he just scratched in on the book with one tremble of his hand. His autograph surely would not indicate the wonderful control he has of his hand and arm for playing the violin.

Collin O'More's autograph is very plain and clear, indicating the plain, unassuming individual that he is. Paul Whiteman writes heavily, but a careless, crude signature, with a slightly backward slant in places.

Rudolph Valentino's autograph looks like the product of a writing school, pretty and light, large yet somewhat obscure. His wife's signature is signed immediately under his and is exactly opposite to her husband's, in height, being very small. It is also obscure, however, and would hardly be legible except to one who would recognize the outline.

Again the determination, domination and will of a military officer is apparent in the autograph of Gen. John J. Pershing, who took five lines to write his name and the accompanying scroll beneath it. His signature is large, heavy and clear, and contrary to that of lesser military officers is not burdened with his official rank.

The slow, explicit, careful character of Stephen Leacock is indicated by his autograph, which is not written in ordinary style, but like newspaper type, very large and clear. If the letters were raised, a blind person could read it.

The exceedingly temperamental character of Rachmaninoff and his almost superhuman attention to details and minute effects are displayed in his signature, which is so small and fine that it looks like a series of dots toward the latter part of his name.

James J. Davis, secretary of labor, who is an opponent of child labor, and only wrote his signature, but the following underneath it: "The child is the hand of God—remember on the universal pages of time the history of the human race." One would know that he was interested in his subject when he couldn't sign his name without referring to it.

The Bragglotti sisters, dancers, who were mentioned in the recent Lowell (and here) have autographs that are strong-armed baseball players. Herbie Bragglotti writes a very large, heavy scroll. An ordinary pen could not stand much use from her.

Francesca, her sister, also writes a large hand, but not as heavy. Both signatures are very clear and legible, and are easily distinguishable. He uses backhand style, with small, well-formed letters.

Following the style of many other musicians, Paul Dufault signed his name in a large, scraggly manner.

My City Pump Out Cellars?

During the recent frost, inquiries were made by a certain manufacturer, whose mill basement was flooded by river water as to whether any of the city departments could pump out the water. He got in touch with Chief Saunders of the fire department, suggesting that the firemen might do it. Chief Saunders is understood, however, to be law to prevent such, but he thought it inadvisable for the fire department to set a precedent of pumping out cellars. In the case of any severe frost, the department might be too hard pressed for assistance. Furthermore, fire department pumps are kept in readiness for the case of fire. Damage done to cellars from their common use.

It could not be expected that a city department should furnish pumps to pump out any cellar on request of the owner. In the case of industry disabled by flooded basements or engine rooms, it might be well for the city to pitch in and help.

The street department has pumps which could have been used during the last frost to pump out mill basements, but for the fact that they were in use in regular work.

BIG "POISON PEN" PLOT DISCLOSED

Indictment of George Maxwell Expected to Lead to Others in New York

140. Wealthy Society People Alleged to Have Been Victimized by Clique

NEW YORK, May 12.—The grand jury which has indicted George Maxwell, president of the American Society of Composers, authors and publishers, for sending obscene missives through the mails, has evidence against eight other prominent members of a "poison pen clique" which is alleged to have victimized 140 wealthy society people here, in Philadelphia, Buffalo, Pittsburgh and other cities, District Attorney Banton today disclosed.

Eighty of the alleged victims already have testified before the grand jury which is still in session. Mr. Banton revealed that their statements had led to the uncovering of 147 of the poison pen letters and to the discovery that nine well known families had been broken up, a man and a woman had died shortly after receiving particularly vicious missives and another woman had gone mad.

Maxwell's attorneys have announced that Maxwell, who is in Europe, had denied a denial of the charges. Maxwell had received several of the obscene letters from the alleged clique, said the attorney. He will hasten home to face his accusers.

Allan A. Ryan, the financier, whose wife was named in letters he received and turned over to the district attorney, declared today she also would return from Europe and that he would prosecute the alleged writer of the letters if it took his entire fortune.

Among disclosures already made by Mr. Banton were that a band of anonymous letter writers had been preying upon members of the "404" in this and other cities since 1914, and that the victims included the late Enrico Caruso, the Countess of Santa Fe, the actress, and Albert Gallatin, the banker. Divorce cases involving persons not named by the district attorney are now pending in the courts, he said.

The alleged poison pen clique, according to authorities, was to send letters to middle-aged women, endeavoring to entice them into affairs with members of the group. After several months, the writers, either because their methods failed or because they cooled on the intended victim, would send letters to the husbands, brothers or other male relatives of the women to whom they had written, flouting their names in obscene and defamatory references to the names of the intended victims.

Members of the society which Maxwell headed say it is inconceivable that he could have been connected with such a plot. The letters Mr. Ryan turned over to the authorities, were received by Mrs. Ryan more than a month ago. All were typewritten and unsigned, but in the upper left corner of each were typed the name and addresses of several prominent bankers and clubmen of this city.

Following the style of many other musicians, Paul Dufault signed his name in a large, scraggly manner.

Wortman uses a fine, light hand, with letters very closely written, but readable. He underlined his name.

John McCormack wrote his autograph with a very light touch, slanting style and with small letters, except a large "C" in his last name. He gave his address as Albion, Ireland.

Yesterday afternoon during the time when the baby show was being held at the Hotel Essex, there were scores of baby carriages lined up outside the building, thus creating a baby carriage show. It was certainly an unusual sight.

New Park Proposed

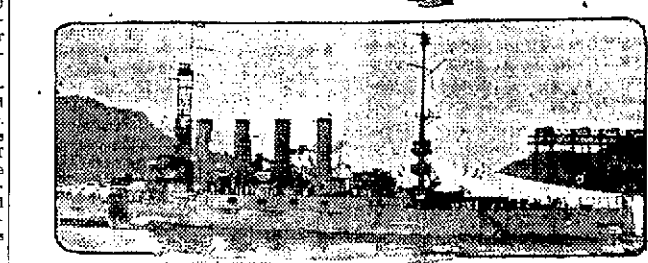

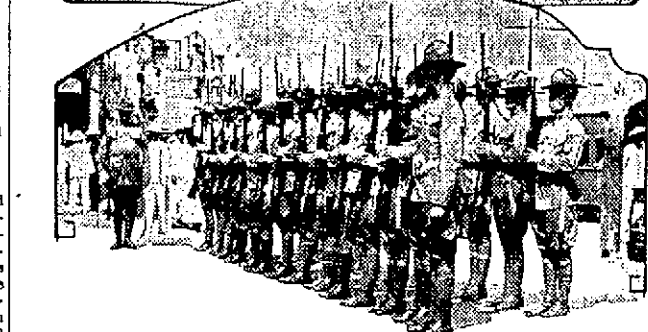

The Butler Athletic association is circulating a petition seeking action from the city government towards the development of the "Old Pair grounds," recently dedicated to the memory of a boy who made the supreme sacrifice in the World war as O'Donnell park, for park and playground purposes. The petition also asks that the park department, the engineering department and the planning board lay out and plan a systematic development of the tract, including a quarter-mile track, football grounds, baseball diamond, tennis courts, swings and sand beds, and also for a public hearing on the subject.

Proponents of the plan plead for the necessity of a playground in that section, claiming that with the cutting out of the Chambers street playground which has been recommended, the nearest playground is in Belvidere. Already thousands of names have been attached to the petition. Regardless of any claims of the Butler association, it does seem wrong for the city to lose these grounds which are already being divided into house lots.

A writ of habeas corpus was recently obtained in England for O'Brien.

Fake Murder Startles Class at Northeastern University—Witnesses Fail to Agree

BOSTON, May 12.—A professor of psychology at Northeastern university has given his students something to think about. Their class was disturbed by a clash between two fellow students, a shot was fired, one of the men fell and the other fled. Professor Milton J. Schlagbaum called on the class to write reports of everything that had occurred. Out of 59 students all but three insisted they saw a revolver, some adding a flash and some smoke. The student supposed to have fired actually held a banana in his hand. The shot was fired in the rear of the room, out of sight.

It was the same with reports of other details of the incident, which took only three minutes. Descriptions of dress varied widely, reflecting the confusion that surrounded the event. The students were equally inconsistent in their statements. One student attempted to give the time exactly, saying he looked at his watch. He was an hour out of the way and he gave a date four days wrong.

Prof. Schlagbaum stated the incident as a test of observation after he had taken the class to a courtroom, where a witness stated positively he could describe everything that happened in a burglary that took three minutes.

For myself—say I don't care;
But I've got a picture of mother and dad.
In a beautiful home somewhere
In a palace of peace the rest of their lives
With nothing to worry about.
When that dream comes true I want to tell you
That I'm ready to be knocked out.

And I know that altho the title will go
With its glory from me to another,
I'll tell you what—you can bet all you've got
I'll still be a champ to my mother.

HERMAN TIMBERG—

By N.E.A. Service
NEW YORK, May 12.—He'll still be the champ to his mother!

When Benny Leonard was a mere kid of 20 years he won the lightweight championship of the world. And in its wake trailed those tantalizing twins—fame and fortune. Men—big and little—sought him out, eager to shake his hand.

Through it all Benny kept his head. He's 25 now and still the champ. The homage a public pays one suddenly elevated to Benny's position has broken many men and women. They couldn't stand the pace. Their heads would swell in the dank air of popular fame.

But not Benny. The power behind the champ is his mother. Benny's devotion to his family is well-known. It is one topic he will always talk about—his mother. She has been his closest friend. He's never too far away to telephone her—even from Los Angeles.

And tomorrow Mother's Day—finds Benny closer to his mother than ever. A group of New York businessmen have banded themselves together this year for the celebration of Mother's Day.

They invited Benny to join with them, and they never found a more eager candidate.

Each one has contributed liberally to a fund. Buttons were made which would be appropriate. The sponsors wanted to eliminate the commercial aspect of the day. They liked flowers, but knew that some florists boosted Mother's Day merely because it meant thousands of dollars for them.

And so they chose buttons, which were to be distributed free to all who might care to wear. The champ is wearing one, in his heart as well as in his lapel. The poem recited by him on the stage has even more feeling behind it than the words show.

He knows the public. He realizes that should some other boxer come along and take away his championship and its accompanying glory, most of the sports world will be bawling him as he leaves the ring. They are even now clamoring for a knockout. That's the way it's always been, and always will be.

But when that time comes, Benny will lose his crown, but he'll still be the champ to his mother.

"Hunting Big Game in Africa With Gun and Camera" is going to startle folks whose only visualization of wild creatures is of the zoo or menagerie. It has been playing in Boston the past few days at $1.50 prices and had an extended run at the Lyric theatre in New York where it commanded $2.50 prices.

The big game presented is from one-third to two-thirds larger than the captive cousins in the menageries. Means have been found of putting many of the larger wild animals in close-ups. Actual combats are shown, and each hunt is a thrilling continuity from the first crackling of the stopping of the charging animal by Mr. Snow's rifle.

The story begins on the west coast of Africa, then South Africa is visited. Native "Zulu" fashions and ceremonies are recorded. The Kimberly diamond fields are explored, and soon the grand safari starts via Mozambique towards the equator.

Old elephant trails constituted the only roads into the jungle. One of these led into the vast crater or bowl of an extinct volcano, where the party nearly lost their lives by an elephant stampede. Attacks on their camp by lions, leopards, hyenas and other prowlers were an almost nightly occurrence. When an ant army invaded, refuge was found only by placing the sleeping cots in the river!

There were many other hardships, privations and breath-taking escapes. But it all the "Snow" party emerged in 1922, with the most complete collection of museum specimens ever made and a series of pictures that for the first time put the kingdom of beasts in matchless splendor and reality. This picture comes here after an engagement of three months in New York city, where it played to capacity audiences, averaging 20,000 a week.

Furthermore, the film is one of the most intelligently edited pictures ever shown. The subtleties are light enough to be entertaining and at the same time informative. They never throw away valuable information for a joke. But on the other hand, they do not tell the whole story and so make the plain pictures only where ex-

Miss Dana appears in the role of a girl who has been reared from infancy by a Jewish pawnbroker. Uncle Ben. She is shown at two periods of her life, first as a child, and then as a girl of thirteen, continually in mischief and always indulging in tomboy pranks. Later, after her return from boarding school, she is seen as a charming miss, with a vivacious personality.

"Forsaking All Others." Starring Colleen Moore and Cullen Landis. Attraction for Monday and Tuesday.

The Sunday show at the New Jewel theatre will introduce Robert Warwick in "Friday, the 13th," one of the most interesting and thrilling features ever made by that capital star, and "Montague Love in 'The Trap,' an intensely dramatic photoplay. There will be the usual excellent comedy and the latest 'roll of the credits' from the News.

Feature for Monday and Tuesday will include "Forsaking All Others," starring Colleen Moore and Cullen Landis in an exceptionally appealing seven-act drama, and "When Love is Young," a new five-act production with an all-star cast. The second episode of the popular "Fighting Blood" series, an episode of "Thunder" and a Harold Lloyd comedy will round out the bill.

FINE TONIC FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

This Case In Lowell Proves That Building Up the Blood Will Strengthen the Nerves

If you want strong nerves you must make the effort yourself. You can help yourself by refusing to worry, by taking proper rest, sleep and vacations, by avoiding excesses and by taking out-of-door exercises. For medicine take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the non-alcoholic tonic.

Mrs. Lizzie Scoble of No. 21 Sawtelle street, Lowell, Mass., considers Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a splendid tonic and used them for nervousness. "I had no ambition for my household duties," and used them for nervousness. "I had very irritable, was all tired out and would wake up in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed. I had severe headaches which would get my nerves all unstrung. I lost flesh and color."

"Through a newspaper I learned of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after I had taken a couple of boxes I noticed my nerves were quieter and I could sleep well at night. I took four boxes at that time, and I have no hesitancy in recommending them for I know they helped me."

The blood can be built up so that it will increase the supply of needed elements to the wasted nerves and this is the only way that the nerves can be reached. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic that especially builds up the nerves because they supply to the blood the elements that the nerves need. Many nervous disorders have yielded to this tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The following methods failed to give relief. They are certainly worth a trial.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by your own druggist or will be sent by mail, postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents per box by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Write today for free book on the blood and nerves.—Adv.

BALTIMORE WOMAN'S MESSAGE TO MOTHERS

At 820 W. Hayward Ave., lives Mrs. Henry Johnson, who a few weeks ago wrote what may be termed a good message to all mothers. She said: "I have used Dr. True's Elixir for more than ten years and know it is good." She used Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, to rid her children of worms. There is hardly a child but what needs Dr. True's Elixir, for they all usually have worms when growing up. Mrs. Johnson appreciates what Dr. True's Elixir accomplishes. Your children will be in better health through its use.

Worry affects the stomach, brings on indigestion, constipation, biliousness. Again, a generally disordered system causes worry—a vicious circle! A clean, healthy system with pure blood, means a clear brain where worry finds no abiding place. SOUTH ENDS WIN OVER BROADWAY RIVALS IN SECOND TWILIGHT LEAGUE GAME, SCORE 12 TO 2

Twelve hits, including a triple and three doubles, by the sluggers on the South End team, caused the 12 to 2 downfall of the Broadway players, in the second twilight league game of the season at the South common last night. Paton and Lawrence tried the task of stemming the sluggers in the winning camp, but the task was too great, and they called upon darkness to close the festivities of the unequal contest.

Five innings of dull, uninteresting baseball, caused many of the fans to leave the enclosure before hostilities were called off by the umpire. The South Ends took to the field with bright, snappy looking uniforms, dispelling one of baseball traditions that new suits are a bother. They certainly were a bad luck sign to the opposition. The game started off like a

The winning South Ends got away to a slow start, but after they got the game going, they were through the infield and into the outer gardens with the speed of rifle shots. Tillson at third and Fratus at

"DOPE" RUNS TRUE TO FORM

Boston Braves Halt Losing Streak and Take Reds Into Camp, 5 to 4

NEW YORK, May 12.—As the major league baseball season nears the end of its fourth week, all the pre-opening predictions, with a slight reservation on the Philadelphia Athletics in the American, and on the Cincinnati Reds in the National, are holding truer to form than in many years.

The New York Yankees are being fought desperately by Cleveland and Detroit for leadership in the Junior circuit, and the New York Giants are out in front in the National, with Pittsburgh leading the wake. The failure of the Chicago White Sox might be taken as a failure of the experts but prediction concerning the Sox were largely hedged by "ifs."

Ten Home Runs in Game

The bombardment of long and heavy hitting that tore up the outer gardens yesterday, particularly at Philadelphia, where a new record of ten home runs was made, is an indication of the slugging that was anticipated. Cy Williams, Quaker centerfielder, made three home runs, quite a feat, but not an all-time record. Williams now leads both circuits in home runs with 12. St. Louis also hit hard but the Philadelphiaans won, 20 to 14.

Pittsburgh comes to the Polo grounds today with a chance to shorten the lead of the Giants. The Robins beat the Pirates yesterday, 7 to 6. The Giants have lost only six of their 23 games and are leading the National League in wins. In two out of three games, taking the rubber game, 7 to 4.

Braves Turn on Reds

The Boston Braves shook off the jinx of the one-run margin losses by trimming Cincinnati 5 to 3. The Braves lost to Washington again, 4 to 1, and fell back into a second place with Cleveland, whose game with the Yankees was called off because of rain.

The Philadelphia Athletics also missed another opportunity, after showing the promise and lost the final game of the season to the Yankees, 14 to 3. The Yankees were prevented from playing by rain.

Second accepted some hard hit chances

Pitcher Garrity got into a bad hole in the second inning, but over anxiety on the part of the Broadway hitters to sock the ball, enabled him to pull through with only one run chalked against him.

The umpire came in for the usual amount of criticism from the Boston faithful in honor of the ump's part of the fun at baseball games. The arbitrators satisfied the players with their decisions.

Daly looked good at first for the losers. He swung a wicked stick and disposed himself in a creditable manner around the initial sack. The younger shapes up like a real baseball player.

Make THE Backyard Pay

Extension Horticulturist, United States Department of Agriculture

Children are told to eat carrots if they want color in their cheeks and backs to be strong and able to romp and play. Just how much there is to this is hard to say, but all the root crops are rich in vitamins and the elements that aid digestion. Carrots are rich in the coloring matter known as "carotene," which is also present in green grass and gives the rich color to the cow's milk during the early summer. Radishes are effective for warding off scurvy and similar disorders and are eaten more as a salad than a true vegetable.

Root crops such as carrots, beets, parsnips and salsify yield large quantities of actual food from a small garden. Parsnips may be grown as an early spring crop in the south and used before the extremely hot weather of summer. In the north parsnips require the entire growing season for their development and may be left in the ground during the winter and to a certain degree improve with freezing.

The essentials for growing root crops are a deep, rich, well-drained soil, good seed, proper thinning and frequent shallow cultivation. None of the root crops with the possible exception of beets, can be transplanted successfully as the breaking of the tap root in transplanting causes them to grow rough and distorted. The proper method is to sow and sow the seed 8 to 10 inches deep, working fine fertilizer to the full depth of sowing, then sow the seeds where they are to grow and thin out the plants so that every plant has the room to develop. In the case of beets what appears to be a seed is really a seed "ball" containing one to three seeds, consequently beets usually come so much thicker than the gardeners expect. Carrot and parsnip seeds lose their vitality or power to grow very quickly and seed of last year's production should always be used.

When it comes to planting the beets, carrots and other root crops the soil which has been spaded and fertilized should be raked smooth and the little rows or furrows formed by means of the hoe handle or a rounded stick drawn along a tight line. The distance between rows may be about 18 inches for beets and carrots and at least 24 inches for parsnips and salsify. The seeds should not be covered more than 1 inch deep on sandy land and less on heavy soils, and the soil used for covering them should always be fine and mellow. If the soil is in the least dry it should be firmed over the seeds by laying a board on top of the row after the seeds are covered, then walking on the board.

Thinning the plants is the important part in growing all root crops. Carrots should be thinned twice, the first time to about one and one-half inches and later when the roots are large enough for use as "baby" carrots every other one can be removed. The same plan may be followed in thinning beets, the thinning being done as green tops appear as small table beets cooked and buttered.

Parsnips and salsify should be thinned to an even stand of three to four inches at one thinning. After thinning, the soil should be drawn around the remaining plants. Frequent shallow cultivation and irrigation during extremely dry weather are essential to the quick growth of all the root crops.

PLEASANT EVENING AT ALL SOULS' CHURCH

A record-breaking crowd attended the supper and entertainment at All Souls' church last night and were well repaid for their attendance. The supper, served in the parish house, was of the highest order and the arrangement of the small tables, seating four each, gave friendly groups an opportunity of sitting together.

Following the supper, Booth Tarkington's one-act comedy, "The Ghost Story," was given by the members of the Tiptoe and Lambda Phi clubs of the church. The play was fitted to the young people who gave it and it was well presented. The story is well known. A Harvard senior, bound for his Easter vacation, tries to get an opportunity to propose to his girl, but she is always surrounded by a group of friends. As the time flies he sees that immediate action must be taken or he will have to go back without accomplishing his purpose. He finally hits on the idea of sending the friends away by telling a half-raising ghost story.

The result is quite different from what he expected and he goes back to school without accomplishing his purpose, although the girl aids him as much as she can.

Anita Ahlberg took the part of "Anna Severn," and Richard Field of "George." The group of friends were played by Walter Lindsey, Donald McInnis, Barrett Fisher, Richard Quimby, Priscilla Fox, Margaret Amiot, Katherine Prichard and Corinne Staples, and Dorothy Marden played the part of the maid.

Miss Edith Brinkne directed the play, the scenery was arranged by Frank Cheney and Harold Nickerson, the properties were under the direction of Katherine Baker and Joseph

TEXTILE FRATERNITIES HAVE CELEBRATIONS

The annual banquet of the Omicron Pi fraternity was held last night at their chapter house on Pawtucket street, with about 90 active chapter and alumni members gathered around the festive board.

Alumni members began to drift in to the chapter house early in the evening and for an hour prior to the time of the supper there was a steady renewal of old acquaintances.

The supper was prepared by the active members and the active members also served it.

Following the supper a short business meeting of the alumni of the fraternity was held, at which plans for the immediate future were made and other matters turned over to the trustees for recommendation. Officers for the coming year also were elected.

The Beta chapter of the Delta Kappa Phi fraternity also celebrated last night. A large number of the alumni of this chapter gathered at the "Patriot" house on Mt. Vernon street during the late afternoon and early evening and engaged in the swapping of stories reminiscent of days when they attended the Moody street school. Lambert Sullivan, president of the local chapter, was in charge of the reception committee, and as soon as the guests had all arrived, the active and inactive members journeyed down to Marie's restaurant, where a banquet had been prepared for them. It was the 21st annual banquet of this chapter and the boys were out to make the most of it. As soon as the supper had been finished, the toastmaster, William Parkus, one of the alumni, called the meeting to order. A short business meeting was then held, the most important matter coming up for action being the discussion of plans for the formation of a Lowell Alumni chapter of the fraternity.

Following the business meeting, Toastmaster Parkus called on several of the alumni for short talks and they responded cheerfully. Among the speakers of the evening was the retiring president, Lambert W. Sullivan, and the president-elect, Maurice A. Villeneuve.

Talent from Keith's circuit furnished an interesting entertainment during the evening and members of the fraternity also aided in the program. Among the prateral entertainers were Joseph Donovan and Alcock Campbell, singers of catchy songs, accompanied on the piano by Everett Willey and on the banjo by Harry Swain.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Phillip Cammell, Maurice A. Villeneuve, Harold Goller, William Rivers and Alcock Campbell.

Mr. McCann will do general contracting and jobbing as well.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Owen Davis' Intensely Human Drama, "Dreams for Sale." Attraction at Opera House Next Week

"Dreams for Sale," that big human drama by Owen Davis which is believed to be the finest offering that this great dramatist has given to the American stage, will be the attraction that will be presented at the popular Opera House all next week, starting Monday evening.

"Dreams for Sale" was originally produced at the Playhouse, in New York, by William A. Brady, with a distinguished cast. At that time Mr. Davis saw the presentation and with his wide knowledge of plays realized that here was an exceptional play for stock and so he watched for its release. But it was some time before this play got on the road. However, last month this play was released for stock and Mr. Davis immediately bought it as he felt that it would be ideal for his two new leads.

The story of "Dreams for Sale" deals with a fight between two big business men in the Maine lumber woods. They are both trying to secure certain rights to land in the Maine woods. Years before one of them has forbidden entrance to his home and his broken off sister. For years they have hated one another, into this mesh of human emotions are swirled the daughter of one and the nephew of the other. Side by side with them lives a sturdy, red-blooded specimen of the best in American manhood, his future tied up with that of the girl's father, his heart here to do with a she may see fit. With the consummate skill of a great writer Owen Davis has woven the threads of his story so that they provide two hours and a half of the greatest entertainment.

Because of the reputation that "Dreams for Sale" earned when it was playing at the Playhouse, New York, the management expects that there will be a big demand for seats and makes the suggestion that it will be well to secure tickets as early as possible in order that favorite seatings may be secured.
